One cup uncooked rice, 1 quart canned tomatoes, 1½ teaspoons salt, 2 onions, ¼ cup flour, 7 eggs, ¼ cup grated cheese, 2 cups bread crumbs, ¼ cup melted butter or other fat. Cook the rice in a large quantity of lightly salted boiling water for about 20 minutes, or until tender, wash in water, drain, and let steam and swell over hot water. Prepare a sauce by cooking the tomatoes and seasonings for 10 minutes, strain, and thicken with the blended fat and flour. Make a layer of the rice in a large shallow greased baking dish, drop the raw eggs carefully on the rice, pour on the sauce and sprinkle over the top the grated cheese mixed with the bread crumbs. Bake in a slow oven (about 375 degrees F.) until the eggs are set. Serve in the baking dish.

Cheese Souffle

Four eggs, 1½ cups milk, 1 cup fine, dry bread crumbs, 1 tablespoon butter or other fat, ½ lb. American cheese, ¾ t. salt, ⅛ t. paprika, 3 drops Tabasco sauce. Heat the milk, bread crumbs and fat in a double boiler. Shave the cheese into thin slices, add it to the hot mixture and stir until the cheese is melted. Add this mixture to the well-beaten egg yolks. Season to taste with paprika and Tabasco. Fold the hot mixture into the stiffly beaten egg whites containing the salt, pour into a greased dish and bake in a very moderate oven (300 degrees F.) for one hour, or until set in the center. Serve immediately.

Fruit Whip

Fruit whips can be made of any fruit pulp of pronounced flavor and color. Heat the fruit pulp to dissolve the added sugar and combine while hot with the stiffly beaten egg whites so as to cook the eggs partially and give body to the mixture. After the fruit pulp has been combined with the egg whites and sugar, the mixture may be baked if desired. When baked in a dish surrounded by water in a very slow oven (225 to 250 degrees F.) for amout one hour, the whip should not fall and may be served either hot or cold. Or, fruit whips may be served as soon as mixed, without cooking.

Baked Caramel Custard

One and one-half cups sugar, 1½ cups water, 1½ quarts milk, ¼ teaspoon salt, 3 tablespoons sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 7 eggs, butter. Melt and stir the cup and a half of sugar in a smooth skillet over a low heat until the sugar turns a rich brown color, add the water, continue to stir until a thick caramel sirup has formed and remove from the fire. Heat the milk slightly, add the salt, 3 tablespoons of sugar, three-fourths cup of the caramel sirup, and vanilla, and stir into the slightly beaten eggs until well mixed. Butter custard cups, put in each about 2 teaspoons of the caramel sirup, fill with the custard mixture, put a small piece of butter on top, and bake on a rack in a pan of hot water in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 45 minutes, or until set. Test by inserting the point of a knife in the center of the custard. If it comes out clean remove the custard at once from the hot water. When cold turn out in individual plates and the caramel sirup in the bottom of the cups will run down over the custard like a sauce.

THE MARYLAND BIBLE SOCIETY'S CORNER

"The Word of Our God Shall Stand Forever"

Doubtless some of our readers have been mentally propounding this question: What has the Maryland Bible Society done, and what is its program for the future? These are pertinent questions and deserve full and complete answers.

There are two great objectives ever before the Maryland Bible Society—to get the Bible spread and read. By spreading we mean the widest possible distribution of the scriptures, to the end that no one who desires a Bible may be denied. To get it read by those who already possess a copy of the Word of Life is not always the easier part of our program and yet a recent article in the daily press reports an increase of sales of the Bible which seems to indicate a revival of personal religion in Europe. A total distribution of almost 3,000,000 copies on the continent of Europe alone, is certainly a fine omen for Bible reading. In Italy, according to a recent report, monks and nuns are now selling Bibles. In France, Italy, Spain, Portugal, Switzerland and Belgium the number of books containing portions of the Scriptures sold in the past year was 1,146,210, which is 82,387 more than in 1930. The circulation of such books in Western Europe, including Great Britain, has almost doubled in the last ten years.

The founders of the Maryland Bible Society were devoted to the program of distribution. In their first annual report the statement is made that the Treasurer had received from the beginning $1,427.50 and had disbursed $558.75, so that their remained a balance of $868.75. They evidently were governed by the old adage:

"Get more than you spend;
Have more than you lend."

Solicitors by order and in behalf of the Board were sent through the different wards of the City of Baltimore and circular letters were addressed to most of the ministers of religion of all denominations throughout the State of Maryland as well as to many people, who, it was concluded would be inclined to cooperate in the important work of carrying divine instruction, hope and comfort into the dwellings of the poor. The report of the first year reveals that the Society had bought 500 English and 151 German Bibles and 100 German New Testaments and had distributed 240 English Bibles and 32 German volumes. This is certainly a creditable showing for an infant organization beginning, without resources or experience, a task of such magnitude and leaves a record which reflects great credit upon the pioneers to whom the present fine organization owes its life..

A foreshadowing of the beautiful ministry now being carried on by the American Bible Society appears in a paragraph of the second report which states that 24 quarto Bibles had been purchased "for the accommodation of pious readers of an advanced age and defective vision." One hundred years later the American Bible Society presented to the blind its Revised Braille and New York Point Bibles, bringing light to those who set in darkness and causing the blind to see.

TO TRY BROADCAST FROM MOVING B. AND O. TRAIN

Attempt Will Be Made On Sunday Night, March 27th

Radio broadcasting of a regular program of entertainment from a rapidly moving train will be undertaken Sunday night, March 27, from 9:00 to 9:30 p. m. (Eastern Standard Time.)

The studio will be a dining car in a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad train running between Washington and New York. The furniture in the car will be supplanted by a 12-piece orchestra, vocalists and announcers performing before a microphone suspended from the ceiling. The kitchen and pantry, where dishes and viands are ordinarily stored, will house a short wave transmitter and control board.

If the attempt be successful—and engineers of the Columbia Broadcasting System are confident of its practicability—it will be the first time, it is believed, that a regular, complete program of entertainment, similar to those sent out from permanent studios, ever has been transmitted from a temporary studio aboard a train. The broadcast will be attempted while the train is running at speeds varying from 40 to 70 miles an hour.

The program will be transmitted from the train by means of an antenna which projects above the roof of the studio car, running its full length on one side and across each end. The signals spanning the ether between transmitter and receivers will be picked up by two stations, one at Beltsville, Md., ten miles outside of Washington, and the other at Laurel, Md., approximately twenty miles from Baltimore.

The master pick-up station will be at Laurel, whence what is being broadcast from the moving train will be sent by special circuits to the Baltimore and Washington outlets of the Columbia System, and from there distributed to WABC, New York, and a nation-wide network.

Aside from the fact that this attempt will mark a departure in radio science, historic significance is added by the fact that eighty-eight years ago over this same stretch of the first railroad, the Baltimore and Ohio, Samuel F. B. Morse made his first successful tests of the telegraph as a means of communication. On May 24, 1844, as a result of experiments conducted by Professor Morse, the first telegraph line was installed for regular use between Baltimore and Washington.

The train will include in addition to the studio car, other passenger cars to accommodate broadcasting engineers, railroad officials, representatives of the press and other guests. These cars will be equipped with loud speakers so that, while riding on the same train, all of the passengers will be able to hear the program from one of the Columbia systems just as will the radio audience listening in as far away as the Pacific Coast.

The program to be carried during this unique broadcast will be the regular Ever-Ready Radio Gaieties, featuring Belle Baker and Jack Denny and his orchestra.

BITTINGER

During the first days of the blizzard which swept over this section beginning on March 6, a turkey gobbler on the farm of Silas C. Beachy, near this village, disappeared and was not found until thirteen days later, when it emerged from a huge snowdrift where it had been snowbound during the intervening time. The bird survived the experience, apparently not much the worse for its entombment. Believe it or not.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Perry Wilburn one day last week and the parents are exceedingly happy.

Albert Markley and son, of Oakland, motored to this village on business last Saturday evening.

Pat R. Mayhew, Hobart Livengood and Gorman Bittinger, of Meadow Mountain, were business visitors in town one afternoon last week.

Melvin Georg, of Accident, motored to this village last Sunday evening for a short call upon his brother, Oswald Georg.

Dennis Brenneman is spending this week in Oakland as a member of the grand jury from this district.

Rev. Restler, of Springs, Pa., conducted services in the Glades Mennonite church near here Sunday morning.

Clarence Stephens spent Saturday and Sunday with his aged mother at her home near New Germany.

The Accident school bus from this community has not been running for the past two weeks on account of the recent storm.

Victor McQuiggan, of Braddock, Pa., is spending some time at the home of Miss Edna Wiley, near here.

MT. LAKE PARK

Summer Home Again Entered

For the second time in the past three weeks, the Sharps cottage, located just below the Allegheny House and opposite Romney Cottage, has been entered by thieves and a quantity of household effects taken and carried away. On both occasions entrance was effected by forcing a window on the lower porch. A bent iron poker is evidence of the means taken to force the lock of a trunk, from which a number of articles were removed, the other contents being scattered on the floor. All the beds were stripped of coverings, including sheets and blankets, and other bedclothing was removed from a cot on which they had been stacked.

There has been a good deal of night prowling in certain sections of the Park, and while for a time it was attributed to boys out on a lark, the facts that several unoccupied houses have been entered now leads to the suspicion that other dwellings have been marked down for attention.

The Park is very hard to effectively police by one officer and parties with the intent to break and enter, and keep him pretty well located, and while he is in one section of the Park and at a distance from where the depredations are being committed, the thieving goes on. A few more charges of bird-shot might be a deterrent.

A New Order—One Member

Word has come to the writer that Bob Moomaw has instituted a new order with but one member to date, the chief ceremony of which calls for a plunge in the lake in mid-winter. It is reliably reported that while Bob was testing the ice recently it did not prove as strong as he had anticipted with the result that he suddenly received an icy bath. And was it cold?

Spring, Officially, Is Here

Spring, officially, is here, but as we write this item on Tuesday, there are snow flurries sweeping across the glade and it looks as though the robins have sung their last morning song for a few days. We hope we are wrong in our prediction, but the outlook is not encouraging.

Since we wrote the above weather report, the sun has decided to get us in bad, with the result that we are having a beautiful day. The mountain top is a pretty good place after all and we should be especially thankful that but few of our people are in real distress in contrast with the tragic condition in the Pittsburgh area where radio reports indicate that unless quick relief is forthcoming 150,000 men, women and children will begin to starve. A distressing condition in this enlightened land of plenty a short year ago.

Oakland Folk Attend Church

We doubt if there is another town in the country that observes Holy Week as religiously as does Oakland. Each day finds the stores and other places of business closed for a noonday church service. On Good Friday business ceases for a longer period. Whatever may be your religious belief or church learnings, whether you are a modernist or a fundamentalist, a pause in your daily grind will stimulate you to renewed activity.

Woodland Work

Working in the woods was the regular winter job in the East in earlier days, and still is so where woods remain in appreciable area. Now the idea is improvement of the scattering woodland rather than slashing it down. A sunshiny day in winter is an especially good time to look the woods over. The tops can be seen clearly then, the trees getting past their best noted more carefully than in summer. It is quite surprising how much in the way of both timber and fuel can be removed from 20 acres of our common woodland without robbing it of anything that would be improved by another year of standing room. And it is not a bad form of "winter sport" either, when one has a sharp ax, cross cut saw and congenial working companion.

VOTERS TO BLAME.

A Washington newspaper correspondent writes an amusing piece about the pitiful plight of national legislators just now, confronted with such problems as prohibition, taxes, soldiers' adjusted service certificates, and so on, and an election in the autumn. They are bound to get in wrong with one sea of constituents, he points out, if they get in right with others.

"It is every man for himself," says the correspondent. "There will be record vote after record vote of which there will be rumblings and reverberations in the congressional campaigns later in the year. Some will avoid as much trouble as possible by an expedient which will cause it to be recorded that when the roll was called up yonder they weren't there. But ducking is nearly as bad as voting on the wrong side."

It is all painfully true. Set forth in this tone of mild razzing, it makes the reader—who is also a citizen and a constituent—grin. The situation really ought to make everyone unusually thoughtful.

After all, what is the purpose of a legislature? To make laws for the good of the whole nation, or to make laws that will win the biggest number of votes? In an ideal situation the first should automatically achieve the second purpose. That it does not is the voters' fault quite as much as the legislators'.

It is the voter who wants everyone else taxed but himself, who wants the government to balance the budget while spending money generously on his community. If the public were interested in sound legislation first, the Congress would also be.

TO TRY BROADCAST FROM MOVING B. AND O. TRAIN

Attempt Will Be Made On Sunday Night, March 27th

Radio broadcasting of a regular program of entertainment from a rapidly moving train will be undertaken Sunday night, March 27, from 9:00 to 9:30 p. m. (Eastern Standard Time.)

The studio will be a dining car in a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad train running between Washington and New York. The furniture in the car will be supplanted by a 12-piece orchestra, vocalists and announeers performing before a microphone suspended from the eeiling. The kitchen and pantry, where dishes and viands are ordinarily stored, will house a short wave transmitter and control board.

If the attempt be successful—and engineers of the Columbia Broadeasting System are confident of its practicability—it will be the first time, it is believed, that a regular, complete program of entertainment, similar to those sent out from permanent studios, ever has been transmitted from a temporary studio aboard a train. The broadeast will be attempted while the train is running at speeds varying from 40 to 70 miles an hour.

The program will be transmitted from the train by means of an antenna which projects above the roof of the studio ear, running its full length on one side and across eaeh end. The signals spanning the ether between transmitter and receivers will be picked up by two stations, one at Beltsville, Md., ten miles outside of Washington, and the other at Laurel, Md., approximately twenty miles from Baltimore.

The master pick-up station will be at Laurel, whence what is being broadcast from the moving train will be sent by speeial circuits to the Baltimore and Washington outlets of the Columbia System, and from there distributed to WABC, New York, and a nation-wide network.

Aside from the fact that this attempt will mark a departure in radio science, historic significance is added by the fact that eighty-eight years ago over this same stretch of the first railroad, the Baltimore and Ohio, Samuel F. B. Morse made his first successful tests of the telegraph as a means of communication. On May 24, 1844, as a result of experiments conducted by Professor Morse, the first telegraph line was installed for regular use between Baltimore and Washington.

The train will include in addition to the studio car, other passenger cars to accommodate broadcasting engineers, railroad officials, representatives of the press and other guests. These cars will be equipped with loud speakers so that, while riding on the same train, all of the passengers will be able to hear the program from one of the Columbia systems just as will the radio audience listening in as far away as the Pacific Coast.

The program to be carried during this unique broadcast will be the regular Ever-Ready Radio Gaieties, featuring Belle Baker and Jack Denny and his orchestra.

BITTINGER

During the first days of the blizzard which swept over this section beginning on March 6, a turkey gobbler on the farm of Silas C. Beachy, near this village, disappeared and was not found until thirteen days later, when it emerged from a huge snowdrift where it had been snowbound during the intervening time. The bird survived the experience, apparently not much the worse for its entombment. Believe it or not.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Perry Wilburn one day last week and the parents are exceedingly happy.

Albert Markley and son, of Oakland, motored to this village on business last Saturday evening.

Pat R. Mayhew, Hobart Livengood and Gorman Bittinger, of Meadow Mountain, were business visitors in town one afternoon last week.

Melvin Georg, of Accident, motored to this village last Sunday evening for a short call upon his brother, Oswald Georg.

Dennis Brenneman is spending this week in Oakland as a member of tho grand jury from this district.

Rev. Restler, of Springs, Pa., eonducted services in the Glades Mennonite church near here Sunday morning.

Clarence Stephens spent Saturday and Sunday with his aged mother at her home near New Germany.

The Accident school bus from this eommunity has not been running for the past two weeks on account of the recent storm.

Victor McQuiggan, of Braddock, Pa., is spending some time at the home of Miss Edna Wilcy, near here.

MT. LAKE PARK

Summer Home Again Entered

For the second time in the past three weeks, the Sharps cottage, located just below the Allegheny House and opposite Romney Cottage, has been entered by thieves and a quantity of household effects taken and carried away. On both occasions entrance was effected by forcing a window on the lower porch. A bent iron poker is evidence of the means taken to force the lock of a trunk, from whieh a number of articles were removed, the other contents being scattered on the floor. All the beds were stripped of eoverings, including sheets and blankets, and other bedclothing was removed from a cot on which they had been stacked.

There has been a good deal of night prowling in eertain sections of the Park, and while for a time it was attributed to boys out on a lark, the facts that several unoecupied houses have been entered now leads to the suspicion that other dwellings have been marked down for attention.

The Park is very hard to effectively police by one officer and parties with the intent to break and enter, and keep him pretty well located, and while he is in one seetion of the Park and at a distance from where the depredations are being committed, the thieving goes on. A few more charges of bird-shot might be a deterrent.

A New Order—One Member

Word has come to the writer that Bob Moomaw has instituted a new order with but one member to date, the ehief ceremony of which calls for a plunge in the lake in mid-winter. It is reliably reported that while Bob was testing the ice recently it did not prove as strong as he had anticipted with the result that he suddenly reeeived an icy bath. And was it cold?

Spring, Offieially, Is Here

Spring, officially, is here, but as we write this item on Tuesday, there are snow flurries sweeping across the glade and it looks as though the robins have sung their last morning song for a few days. We hope we are wrong in our prediction, but the outlook is not encouraging.

Since we wrote the above weather report, the sun has decided to get us in bad, with the result that we are having a beautiful day. The mountain top is a pretty good place after all and we should be especially thankful that but few of our people are in real distress in contrast with the tragic condition in the Pittsburgh area where radio reports indicate that unless quick relief is forthcoming 150,000 men, women and children will begin to starve. A distressing condition in this enlightened land of plenty a short year ago.

Oakland Folk Attend Church

We doubt if there is another town in the eountry that observes Holy Weck as religiously as does Oakland. Each day finds the stores and other places of business closed for a noonday church service. On Good Friday businoss ceases for a longer period. Whatever may be your religious belief or church learnings, whether you are a modernist or a fundamentalist, a pause in your daily grind will stimulate you to renewed activity.

OAKLAND A. A. DEFEATED BY OLSON'S SWEDES 44-26

Visitors Exhibit Excellent Brand of Basketball at All Times

The Oakland Independent basketball team lost to Olson's Terrible Swedes, America's championship traveling basketball club, on the Oakland High school court on Saturday night, 44 to 26.

Such an exhibition of passwork, shooting and handling of the ball had not been seen in Oakland for several years, and had they extended themselves, the visitors could have increased the score considerably. They were content, however, to make the game interesting.

Pollock had a big night by looping them in from all angles, and was high point getter for Oakland with seven field goals. Oakland hit its stride in the third quarter when they gathered most of their baskets, but could not keep going in the final frame. Silverwood, of the Swedes, had eight field goals to his credit. The largest crowd of the season witnessed the game.

The lineup and summary:

Oakland—26		Olson's Swedes—44
Pollock	F	Kentling
Hanst	F	Silverwood
McComas	C	Howard
Lee	G	Mozingo
Nally	G	Scofield

Field Goals: Oakland, Pollock 7, Hanst 3, McComas 3. Swedes, Kentling 3, Silverwood 8, Howard 5, Mozingo 3, Scofield 2.

Foul Goals: Silverwood 1-1, Mozingo 1-1, McComas 0-1, Lee 0-2, Nally 0-1. Referee, B. O. Aiken.

Season's Summary

Oakland scored 612 points during the season to 568 for their opponents, while winning 11 of the 21 games played. The highest score was made against Rowlesburg, when 58 points were scored.

McComas led the scorers with 207 points, having shot 96 field goals and 15 out of 47 fouls. Hanst was next with 62 field goals and 18 out of 50 fouls, while Pollock was third with 61 field goals and 12 out of 37 fouls.

Lee made 16 goals and 6 out of 21 fouls for a total of 38 points, while Nally scored 15 goals and 4 out of 18 fouls. Graves, substitute, made 15 goals and 3 out of 8 fouls for a total of 33 points.

Oakland defeated Frostburg State Normal, Aurora and Rowlesburg two games, and Bayard, Co. G. Cumberland; Love's Store, Lonaconing; High School, Blue Ridge Colleginans, once. The locals were defeated by Davis, twice; Terra Alta, twice; Good Will Five of Lonaconing, three times, and Olson's Swedes, Co. G, and Bayard, once.

The local team won seven home games and lost five, while four games were won away from home and five lost.

The scores at the quarters were 15-2, 19-6 and 32-11. In the preliminary game the Bruce High girls defeated the Oakland High sextet by the lop-sided score of 63 to 4.

COUNTY AGENT'S COLUMN

J. H. CARTER,
Resident County Agent,

Recently County Agent J. H. Cartre received a letter from Baltimore and Jersey City markets stating that beginning April 15 undocked and ram lambs would be discriminated against. It stated further that if producers shipped undocked ram lambs they would be separated from other lambs and sold from $1.00 to $3.00 per head less than docked ewe and wether animals. This loss of $1.00 or more will be passed on to the producer, and justly so if he continues refusing to supply the market with what the public demands.

Docking and other operations making the lambs more marketable are easily performed. The county agent will supply information on request or he will give a demonstration at any producer's farm if requested. Bulletins on the subjects will be mailed if asked for.

The following is a paragraph taken from the letter mentioned above: "Undocked and 'bucky' lambs never develop into desirable market lambs. 'Bucky' lambs are high in cost of production, low in market value and are a positive hindrance to the educational campaign which is being conducted by the National Live Stock and Meat Board for the purpose of teaching the consumer the tasty qualities of good lamb."

Considering the market conditions producers cannot afford to neglect docking and fitting their lambs for the market. The simple operation may mean a profit or loss on your lamb crop for 1932.

The county agent is anxious and willing to help any and all producers in getting this work done. A telephone call or a letter will bring him to your place.

THE REPUBLICAN

VOLUME 55. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND, MARCH 31, 1932. NUMBER 7.

SCHOOL BOARD REQUESTS $460,386.06 FOR 1932-33

Of This Amount Garrett County is Asked To Furnish $257,075, The State to Pay Balance

PRESENT ANNUAL BUDGET

A total of $342,924 for current expenses, $116,195 for capital outlay, and $1,286 for debt service, making a grand total of $460,386.06 was the amount estimated as necessary to run the public schools of Garrett county for the shool year 1932-33 in the annual school budget presented to the Board of County Commissioners on Monday afternoon.

The amount requested from the county commissioners was $257,075.06. Receipts from the State to help pay for the current expenses were estimated at $203,311, $3,904 more than last year.

State aid was divided as follows: $3,960 for general control; $145,351 for instructional service; $54,000 for auxiliary agencies.

Capital Outlay

The amount of $116,195.10 requested for capital outlay was divided as follows: for land, Accident school, $2,100; Oakland elementary, $5,000.

New buiidings, Grantsville, $40,000; Accident $20,000; Kitzmiiier, $40,000; Vindex, $3,000; Shalimar, $489.70.

New equipment, Swanton, water and toilets, $900; Kitzmiiler, toiiets and toilet rooms, $3,000; Grantsviiie fire escape, $770; Oakland fire escape, $935.40 (already erected.) No state aid is given for capital outlay.

The largest item in the estimated receipts from the State and other sources was $136,091 from the equalization fund. Garrett county is the only county to receive such a proportionately large amount through this fund, and this is due to its thinly populated area, there being only 30 people to each square mile. Vocational education is helped by the state to the extent of $8,238. The state pays all charges for transporting pupils, which amount to $54,000.

The State pays $2,760 of the superintendent's salary and 1,200 of the attendance officer. The supervising teachers receive $4,480 out of a total of $6,720 in the State aid on salaries.

The county is requested to levy amounts covering the operation of the school plant, including janitors' wages, janitors' supplies, fuel, water, light, power and other costs, of $19,000; maintenance of buildings, upkeep of grounds, repair and replacement of equipment, amounting to $11,000; auxiliary agencies including school libraries, health service and community activities, amounting to $2,000; and part of the total for teachers' salaries.

It is estimated that teachers in elementary schools will cost $148,000, $111,664 of which is furnished by the state, leaving $36,336 for the county. Teachers in high schools will cost, it is thought, $68,000, of which $24,828 is furnished by the State, leaving $43,172 for the county.

The budget was submitted by the County Board of Education to the Board of County Commissioners as provided by law and according to the rules and regulations of the Maryland State Board of Education. It is necessary that the budget be in the hands of the commissioners twenty days before the usual date for levying county taxes.

HEAVIEST STORM OF YEAR HITS COUNTY ON SUNDAY

Sixteen Inches of Snowfall Is Recorded—Huge Snowdrifts Block National Highway

MOTOR TRAVEL CRIPPLED

Oakland and Garrett county and other nearby points are uncovering from the grip of an Easter snowstorm, heaviest of the year, that crippled motor travel, interrupted wire communication and brought prospect of a raise of streams to a near-flood stage.

It was the second snowstorm of the year, and the second storm for the month of March, both of which tied up traffic and caused considerable damage to property.

Huge drifts blocked the National Highway in Garrett county, causing interurban buses to remain in Frostburg and Grantsville until plows of the State Roads Commission removed the snow. The buses attempted to buck through the snow to Uniontown, but were forced back on Savage Mountain. Three other buses bound from Pittsburgh to Cumberland, were stranded at Grantsviiie on Monday. Hotels in Frostburg and Grantsville were filled with bus passengers and tourists on Monday.

The storm began calmly enough on Sunday evening, after a day of continual rainfall, and on Monday morning, Garrett county was blanketed under 16 inches of snow. A change in the wind from east to west caused it to drift on Monday morning, and before noon route 37 was completely blocked.

Baltimore and Ohio railroad freight and passenger trains operated on regular schedules. Wires along the B. & O. were down on Monday and telegraph service was suspended.

Motorists who ignored the warnings of road workers and attempted to drive through the snow toward Grantsviiie were blamed for much of the congestion on the highway. Trucks and snow plows of the State Roads commission were unable to get through because of the drifts on the mountains which were seven and eight feet deep.

Temperatures remained above or near the freezing point, and the damage from wind and snow did not reach the proportions accounted for during the biizzard of three weeks ago.

The meeting of Aliegany and Garrett county forest wardens, which was to be held Monday at the Court House, Cumberland, was postponed. Only one of the sixteen wardens was able to reach Cumberland, and District Forester H. C. Buckingham said the meeting would be held later.

World Observes Easter—Services Well Attended

The eyes of Christianity that for a 12-month period have looked upon international dissension, economic tribulations, crime, strife and political bitterness, were raised aloft Sunday to a promise of happier events as symbolized by the resurrection of the Redeemer.

Throughout the Lenten Season special emphasis was laid on the events leading up to the crucifixion of Christ and His resurrection, and a number of services were held through Holy week in the various churches of Oakland. Easter services were especially well attended, according to the ministers of town.

At Jerusalem thousands of pilgrims joined with its native Christians in a colorful Easter celebration which was in contrast with the tense situation of last year when the rites were conducted under the protection of British machine guns because of religious friction between Moslems and Christians.

At Washington President and Mrs. Hoover arose early for the sunrise service at Arlington National cemetery.

Relief May Have To Be Abandoned Because of Lack of Cash

Because of the fast diminishing cash on hand the local Relief Committee will soon have to abandon the aid which it has been dispensing during the past winter. In only the very needy cases will it be able to act.

Now that spring is here it is hoped that many persons will have some outside work on their grounds which they will want done. If they will apply to any member of the Relief Committee, that committee will place them in touch with those desiring work. Citizens are asked to cooperate in this manner.

DEEP CREEK MEETING IS POSTPONED FOR FEW DAYS

Snowstorm Keeps Citizens From Oakland on Monday Night

The meeting of those interested in in the Deep Creek Lake water pageant which would open the summer season here, which was to have been held on Monday evening, was postponed, due to the illness of Miss Sara B. Huff, music director, and the severe storm which blocked all roads in this section.

This pre-season festival which includes a sports day and an evening musical pageant, will be one of the larger events of the Aliegheny Tableland's summer program, according to I. S. Middaugh, Institute director.

Another date will be set in the near future for the planning of all details.

Community Meetings

Requests for community meetings have been received from Crellin, Kitzmiiier, Kempton, Accident, Bittinger and Pleasant Valley. Musical groups will be organized at these communities and plans will be made for carrying out a program for the summer. Other communities interested may arrange for dates through John H. Carter, county agent, or Miss Margaret K. Burtis, home demonstration agent.

Community sings will be held at Accident on Wednesday, April 6, at 7:30 p. m., and at Kempton on April 14, at 8 o'clock.

Anti-Saloon League

A two-day conference of the Anti-Saloon League of America will be held at Mt. Lake, August 13-14, Mr. Middaugh said, which will bring to the Park five of the national speakers of that organization. Sunday dates are being filled rapidly, he stated, and it is hoped that a pamphlet containing the dates throughout the summer may be published in the near future.

Mr. J. B. Watson, Confluence, Pa., president of the Allegheny Tableland association, has called a meeting of the directors at the White Swan hotel, Uniontown, on Friday evening, April 8, at 7:45. The entire summer program of the Tableland will be gone over at this time.

Since the success of every project depends more or less upon worthwhile publicity, every citizen and organization is being urged by Mr. Middaugh, director, to tell others about the summer program at every opportunity.

Mr. Middaugh has spoken at a number of community meetings and will present the program at the Morgantown District Methodist conference at Kingwood the week of April 10; at the director's meeting at Uniontown on April 8, and before an extension conference in Cumberland in the near future. The program pamphlet, when published, will be distributed through the advertising channels of the B. and O. railroad and the Blue Ridge bus lines.

Brotherhood Holds Meeting

The Brotherhood of St. Mark's Lutheran church met last Tuesday evening. The topic discussed by various members was "The Resurrection." G. J. Altstetter, president, was in charge, and Donald R. Sinceli led the round table discussion. Mr. Sincell was chosen as the speaker for the local Brotherhood at the rally to be held in Grafton on April 17. Refreshments were in charge of Ernest Townshend, Sr.

Snow Caves in Roof of Shed

When the heavy snow slid from the roof of the main barn on the farm of L. H. Fike, near Oakland, the past week, it caved in the entire roof on the annexed shed beside it.

The Annex shed was 20 by 70 feet and the entire roof fell in as did also one end of the building. The main barn is 40 by 70 feet and is covered with steel. The heavy snow all slid from the roof of the main barn at once, according to Mr. Fike.

Maryland Theatre to Show Pictures Four Nights Each Week

Beginning next week, the Maryland Theatre will not operate a moving picture show on Monday and Tuesday, due to small attendance. The arrangement is expected to be only temporary. Later in the year, if business conditions warrant running six days instead of four, B. I. Gonder, manager, stated he would revert to a full schedule.

ARCH SPIKER STRUCK BY AUTO; INSTANTLY KILLED

Is Declared Unavoidable Accident by County Authorities

Archibald H. W. Spiker, aged 66, a farmer residing about three miles south of Oakland, on route 37, was instantly killed Monday morning at 9:40 o'clock when he was struck by an automobile driven by Harold Archibald, of Morgantown, West Va.

Mr. Archibald was exonerated from all blame as a blinding snowstorm obstructed his vision and he was unable to see Mr. Spiker who was walking in the middle of the highway. Walter H. Haenftling, sheriff, Walter W. Dawson, State's attorney and Corporal Currie investigated.

The body was taken to the home of Owen Martin, nearby. Mr. Spiker received two broken legs, a broken arm, and head injuries. He was thrown into the air when struck and landed on the hood of the car, caving it in.

The deceased is survived by one son, Chambers A. Spiker, of near Oakland; and also one brother, Dice Spiker, south of town.

Mr. Archibald, who struck him, was enroute from Morgantown to Thomas, West Va., and had Miss Frances Doak, a teacher in the Thomas High school, as a passenger. At Gortner he found he could not get through on account of the blocked highway, and was returning to Oakland when the accident occurred.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon, with interment at the White Church.

HOOVER IS INDORSED IN PRINCE GEORGES

G. O. P. Central Committee To Ask Aid in Naming Delegates

The Republican central committee of Prince Georges County will ask 23 other Republicans to help it select delegates to the State convention, it decided yesterday after adopting a resolution indorsing President Hoover and thanking his supporters in the State.

Republicans from all sections of the county will augment the central committee when it decides which candidates for Republican delegates will be supported. Usually the candidates are selected by the committee alone. A date and meeting place for the selection have not been chosen, but the "caucus" will be called together by S. Gardner Coale, chairman of the committee.

The resolution, adopted at the meeting in Marlboro, was the first formal indorsement of Hoover by any Republican committee in Maryland, committeemen said. It read:

"That this committee heartily indorses the untiring, wise and constructive efforts of President Hoover to protect the Nation and its citizens in this world crisis and it congratulates United States Senator Phillips Lee Goldsborough and Republican State Chairman Galen L. Tait for their unswerving support of the President." It continues with the opinion "that the Nation will be best served by a continuation in office of President Hoover and those who have supported his program."

MAJORITY PLEAD GUILTY

The present term of the Circuit Court, which convened on Monday of last week when the grand jury also went into session, that body adjourning on Wednesday after finding sixty-two indictments, will likely adjourn this afternoon after hearing one or two civil cases to be tried before a jury.

The trial of criminal cases was completed yesterday afternoon with the finding of a not guiity verdict in the ease of William C. Welch, indicted for possession and sale of intoxicants by a jury after an hour's deiiberation.

Judge Doub was on the bench during the week, Judge Sloan being engaged elsewhere in his judicial duties.

At the call of the docket Tuesday morning when Court convened following the four-days' recess, the great majority of those indicted, when arraigned before the Court entered pleas of guiity confessed either in person or by their attorneys, where the prisoners were fortunate enough to have some one to represent them.

Robert L. Groves, bastardy; plea of guilty confessed.

Raymond Ream and Cecil Rosenberger, stealing chickens; jury trial; verdict guiity. The prosecuting witness was Thomas Wagoner, of near Finzel. In the trial of the case it developed that Rosenberger and Ream had upon two occasions entered the hen house of Wagoner and took about fifteen of his Rhode Island Reds, among the birds being a rooster blind in one eye. The rooster was introduced as evidence by the State and it was proven that the bird was found in the possession of the traversers. Ream was recently discharged from the Maryland Penitentiary after serving 87 days of a three-year term following his convicition in the local court.

Five youths, Edward Schmidt, Earl Shuttiesworth, Jesse Shuttlesworth, Paul Woife and Franklin Wolfe, from the vicinity of Red House, were paroled when they confessed having taken an electric motor belonging to James Hamilton, a farmer at Red House.

Clarence Paugh and Wallace Stahln, burglary. The two young men were indicted for having broken into a store at Vindex and stealing therefrom a quantity of merchandise. Both confessed their guilt and were sentenced to serve three years in the Maryland Penitentiary.

Hold-Up Youths Paroled

Wesley Hatfield, Richmond, Va., and Harold Russell, Fairmont, who were implicated in the attempted robbery of the Pritts filling station on Route 50 late last year, entered pleas of guilty confessed and were paroled by the Court. The other member of the party, a brother of Hatfield, is now serving a prison sentence in Virginia for stealing an automobile.

Frank Stewart, desertion and nonsupport; plea of guilty confessed; sentence suspended for one year.

Bigamist Pleads Guilty

Edgar F. Cornelius, of Pittsburgh, Pa., who was married in Oakland to Mrs. Marie Gank, of Keyser, while he had one wife living in Pittsburgh, entered a plea of guiity when arraigned. Cornelius, at the time of his arrest in Pittsburgh, was a candidate for Poor Director but was defeated at the primary election following. He said, when arraigned that he was without funds and did not want a lawyer to represent him.

Lesson for April 3

GOD IN CREATION

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 1:1-5, 26-31.
GOLDEN TEXT—In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth.
PRIMARY TOPIC—In the beginning—God.
JUNIOR TOPIC—God the Creator.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Maker of All Things.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—God in Creation.

Genesis, the book from which the lessons of the quarter are taken, as its name indicates, is a book of beginnings. It contains the only reliable information we have of the origin of the heavens and the enrth, plant and animal life, human life, human institutions, and human relations. Without it we would be absolutely ignorant as to the origin of these fundamental things. The first chapter of the book from which our lesson is taken is one of the most wonderful in the Bible. Indeed, it is the key to the whole Bible.

I. God (v. 1).

He was before all things. He had no beginning. Everything but God had a beginning. God, the uncaused cause, is the cause of all things. "Before the mountains were brought fortb or ever thou hadst formed the earth and the world, even from everlasting to everlasting, thou nrt God" (1's, 90:2.)

II. The Origin of the Universe (v. 1).

It was created by God. All things came into being by the will and act of a personal God. The Hebrew word translated "create," according to reliable authority, is the strongest word which the Hebrew language has to express the idea of the origination of substance. The first four words of the Bible exhibit the one fundamental, all-pervasive principle of philosophy of every right life. In the beginning of the universe—God. In the beginning of all science and philosophy—God. In the beginning of every life—God. In the beginning of every year—God. In the beginning of every day—God. In the beginning of every business—God. In the beginning of every human relationship—God. In the beginning of every thought—God.

III. The Degeneration of the Earth (v. 21).

Between verses one and two is a clearly marked interval of perhaps long duration. The earth which was created by God was later overtaken in a cataclysmic judgment. The Hebrew word for "was" might just as well have been translated "became." Instead, therefore, the earth having been created a void or chaos, we see that it became chaos through a judgment. In Isaiah 45:18 the prophet expressly declares that God did not create the earth a waste, but that he formed it to be inhabited.

IV. The Regeneration of the Earth (vv. 3-25).

As previously noted, the second verse of Genesis does not describe the state of the earth when it first came from the Creator's hands, but a changed condition which took place subsequent thereto. The following verses reveal a new effort of creative power by which the earth is again fitted up for the habitation of man. The power active in this reorganization is the Holy Spirit. On the first day the voice of the Almighty was heard saying, "Let there be light," and the darkness was dispelled by the light. In the second day the expanse or firmament was made which separates the waters above the firmament from those below it. The third day dry land appeared clothed with vegetation. The fourth day witnessed the appearance of the lightholders, the sun, moon, and stars. They were not created then, but set free from darkness and ruin. On the fifth day fish and birds were created and on the sixth day cattle, creeping things, beasts of the field, and man.

V. The Origin of Man (vv. 26-31).

He was created by God. This precludes the foolish idea that man ascended from or through the brute. He came into being through a special creative act of God. This image and likeness is not physical or bodily, but intellectual and moral (Eph. 4:24; Col. 3:10). God's likeness is reflected in man's three-fold nature. Man is spirit, soul, and body (I Thess. 5:23). As there is a trinity and unity in God so there is a trinity in man. Spirit is that part of man by which he has the power to know God. Soul is self-conscious life, the seat of man's emotions and desires. The body is the seat of the senses, enabling man to have world consciousness. God made man to be a personality capable of having fellowship with himself, and with whom he could share his glory.

INTERESTING ACOUNT OF THE OLD OREGON TRAIL

One of the most interesting accounts of the long and tedious journey from the East to the Northwest in the early days was that left by General Joel Palmer, young Indiana statesman who made the trip in 1845, keeping a careful record of the events and writing down good advice for venturesome spirits who were to follow him over the trail of the covered wagon. In an interesting story of Palmer and his adventures in the current number of the National Republic, Franklin F. Korell writes:

"As we skim over smooth concrete highways or negotiate the journey to the Pacific in a comfortable Pullman, it is difficult to realize that less than a century ago the western half of the country was an almost unbroken wilderness and that the change has come about not by some great upheaval, but slowly and painfully by the forward march of heroes who are now half forgotten. Yet many of these pioneers who took the trail to the West, unmentioned though they may be in the annals of history, have left their mark on the country and left behind them, too, records of their exploits.

"Among those half forgotten men who have left behind an interesting record of their adventures is Gen. Joel Palmer, whose journal of his early western travels is almost unknown to the present generation of Americans.

"Palmer, like many of the pioneers of the Northwest, was born in Canada, the year of his birth being 1810, although his parents had gone to the Dominion from the state of New York. While he was still young, the future pioneer's parents moved to the then western state of Indiana, locating in the hamlet of Laurel, in Franklin county, not far from Cincinnati.

"The future adventurer's first step before the public was political. He was well thought of by his neighbors and friends and when he was thirty-four years of age they elected him to the State legislature. But Palmer came of a pioneering family and he determined, before settling down to a life of Hoosier politics, to take a trip to the Oregon country. Consequently, early in the year 1845 he traveled by easy stages to the Missouri frontier, where he joined a body of emigrants and helped in the organization of one of the important caravans of 1845. The wagon train moved forward to Fort Laramie, thence to Fort Bridger and Fort Hall by way of Soda Springs. The next stop was Fort Boise, then the main caravan went down the Umatilla and Columbia, finally arriving at the Dalles in September.

"Palmer spent the winter of 1845 and 1846 examining the resources of the new country and so favorably impressed was he that in 1847 he took his family to the new country in what was called at the time 'Palmer's wagontrain.'

"The next historic events in the new country was the deplorable Whitman massacre and in the organization of military force to punish the Indians, Palmer was chosen quartermaster and commisary general. From that time on, he was known as General Palmer.

"Palmer next acted as a commissioner to visit the Indians of the region and to treat with them and he was so successful that President Pierce appointed him superintendent of Indians for the Oregon country in 1853. Soon afterward Indian warfare broke out in southern Oregon and after the trouble was put down a reservation system was organized by Palmer and the Indians of the southern region were moved into the Grand Ronde reservation. Later Palmer had difficulty subduing the Indians east of the mountains who were wilder than those to the south. He retired from the office of Indian commissioner when his office was merged with that of Washington territory, returning to his home in Dayton, a town which he had laid out in 1850."

MAPLE SYRUP PRODUCERS BUSY WITH SPRING TAPS

County Manufacturers Expect to Exceed Last Year's Output of 17,000 Gallons of Syrup

GARRETT CHIEF PRODUCER

Maryland maple syrup and sugar producers are busy at present gathering the maple sap and manufacturing maple syrup and sugar, according to John H. Carter, county agent, who reports that already 12 producers have been visited by W. C. Beven, of the State Department of Markets, relative to inspection of their product.

Mr. Beven states that an excellent grade of syrup is being manufactured, although it is taking about twice the usual amount of sugar water to do it. The ultimate aim of the Extension Service of the University of Maryland is to standardize the product, build up a market in Baltimore and Washington for the entire production in the county and give the producer a greater net profit.

An attempt is being made this year to make a complete survey of the maple sugar industry, as a number of inqniries have been received by the county agent relative to supply and grade of syrup, and it is almost certain that when standardized the entire production can be disposed of through the Extension Service of the University of Maryland.

Garrett Chief Producer

There is produced in Maryland annually about 17,000 gallons of maple syrup and 175,000 pounds of maple sugar, practically all of which comes from Garrett county. Of 154 producers in the State, 148 are located in this county, according to reports.

Two years ago, to insure the production of a high quality and uniform product, a number of producers of the county formed the Garrett County Maple Products Association, which works in cooperation with the State Department of Markets, and the University of Maryland Extension Service in providing a grading service.

The first year the Association was established approximately 2,000 gallons of syrup was inspected by the Association, and last year the number of gallons was increased to 3,000. This spring, if there is a good run of sap, it is believed that the number of gallons to be inspected will be materially increased. The inspection work this spring is being carried on by W. C. Beven.

Three Grades

The syrup is placed in three grades by the inspector. The best is sold under the trade-mark, "Crest O' The Alleghanies," and the other grades are known as "Fancy" and "Prime." The third grade is classed as "Standard."

THE MARYLAND BIBLE SOCIETY'S CORNER

"The Word of Our God Shall Stand Forever"

In this year, which commemorates the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington, it is interesting to recall that on January 1, 1800, Dr. Bend, later to become the first president of the Maryland Bible Society, preached a funeral sermon commemorating George Washington. "There were giants in those days," and Dr. Bend was one of them. While his interests were as varied as the needs of the young Republic, his loyalty to the cause of Bible distribution never flagged.

About 1811 one John Hancock, a resident of New Jersey, bequeathed to Dr. Bend 100 English New Testaments, with the request that they be distributed among the poor. This distribution was made with the utmost care, as in every period of the Society's life the supreme object has been to get the Bible read. The Board expressed at this time a "fervent wish that the prosperous and the wealthy, who have learned to estimate the value of the Holy Scriptures, and the comforts of the Christian faith and hope, would redeem from uses merely secular, a portion of the property which they are about to abandon in death, and in this way make heirs of their indigent brethren for whom Christ died."

These Pioneers early realized the world-wide scope of the task to which they felt themselves called. We therefore find that not only had correspondence been entered into with the Bible Societies of Philadelphia, New York and Albany, resulting in the reception of counsel and assistance for the Baltimore Society, but lines had also gone across the sea. Before the declaration of war between the United States and Great Britain, in 1812, an official intercourse had been opened with the British and Foreign Bible Society. This happy relation was not seriously disturbed even by the thunders of war.

Up to this period of the Maryland Bible Society's life, no definite plan had been formulated for its perpetuation. It was at this juncture that Dr. James McHenry came to the Presidency and leadership of the Society. He was a native of Ulster, who had emigrated to America in early life, and had fought through the Revolutionary War, serving for a large part of the time as one of Washington's aides. He had also served in the Maryland legislature and in the Continental Congress and was an intimate friend of Alexander Hamilton, of the Marquis de le Fayette and Timothy Pickering. He had amassed a comfortable fortune in business, but had been called back to public life by Washington in 1796, to become Secretary of War, a position he continued to hold throughout the most of the administration of John Adams. He was a member of the First Presbyterian church, and doubtless through the influence of his pastor, the Rev. James Inglis, was led to assume leadership in the Bible Society.

His interest grew with his association, until he expressed it in an address which is in reality the first financial and missionary program of the Maryland Bible Society. To quote a part of this address, he declares: "This new Society is formed for the sole purpose of distributing the Holy Scriptures more effectually and extensively among the multitudes, whose circumstances render assistance in this way a solemn duty. McHenry deemed that, "it may not be improper to state, for the information of the public, two fundamental articles of our association. One of them provides that all copies of the Scriptures distributed or published by this Society shall be without notes, and of the versions in common use among the Churches in whose languages respectively it may be deemed useful to distribute them."

The second article provides that, "Every person becoming a member shall at the time of subscribing to its constitution pay the sum of $5.00, and the sum of $2.00 every year afterwards. Persons subscribing or giving $30.00 or upwards shall be members for life without any further contribution."

Thus did this old soldier seek to provide the sinews of war that his cohorts might be fully armed with the sword of the spirit which is The Word of God.

Now comes Ingredient X. It brings new wonders in chick life—new wonders in growth. It is the secret process of synchronizing proteins and minerals — the nicking together of the right protein ingredients in Purina Startena and Purina Growena. Ingredient X is the greatest feeding discovery since vitamins. You cannot see it in the feed, but it shows clearly in the chicks—in added life and growth—better feathering.

Ingredient X, the result of long years of research work is found only in the Checkerboard bag—in Startena and Growena. Start your chicks on Startena. Grow them on Growena. You'll raise more and bigger chicks—you'll have big framed pullets, fully developed and ready for early laying.

We have Purina Startena containing Ingredient X. Come in.

FIRE ON THE FARM—

The farmer has a very real interest in the fire menace, nearly one-fourth of the annual national fire loss, or $100,000,000, occurs on farms, and farm fires account for 3,000 deaths. The farm fire victim suffers greater proportionate loss than the victim of a city fire. The latter may lose his home or his place of business, but rarely both. When the farm home burns, the fire often wipes out barns and other buildings, perhaps destroying the development of a life-time of work.

The cure for the farm fire is, as in the city, unremitting care and diligence— and better fire fighting facilities. Progress in this direction has been made in a number of states. First-class rural fire departments are made possible by motorized fire apparatus, good roads and telephones. Ingenuity has been shown by rural fire fighters in overcoming lack of water, through the use of windmill tanks, multiple hose connections and relays of trucks. Some departments use chemicals only, which are extremely effective in fighting the common roof fires. An Iowa law has empowered townships to vote a tax for the maintenance of fire protection, either independently or in conjunction with other communities.

The bulk of states, however, lags behind in rural fire protection and there is a general lack of efficient, modern facilities. As a result the farmer bears a larger share of the fire loss—both in lives and property—than any other classes of citizens.

In Garrett county, where it is still difficult to travel the unimproved roads at certain seasons of the year, a reserve water supply, obtained by damming a stream near the home and outbuildings, will do much to lessen the danger fo complete destruction of property. With a water supply of such nature the DeBerry home, which was located on Route 37, north of Oakland, could have been saved with slight damage, but without it firemen were practically helpless.

The adequate development of the farm fire department—along with the dissemination of knowledge on how to prevent fire—offers a fertile field for organizations interested in the farmer's welfare.

WRIGLEY'S SALESMANSHIP

The late William Wrigley was a great believer in advertising, as well he might have been for through advertising he built in a few years a great fortune through the sale of an utterly unnecessary article. He gave the philosophy of his salesmanship a few years ago in these words:

"Tell 'em quick and tell 'em often. You must have a good products in the first place, and something that people want, for it's easier to row down the stream than up. Explain to folks plainly and sincerely what you have to sell, do it in as few words as possible, and keep everlastingly coming at them.

"Advertising is pretty much like running a furnace. You've got to keep on shoveling coal. Once you stop stoking, the fire goes out. It's strange that some people's imagination can't compass this fact."

REPUDIATING THEIR OWN LEADERS

Down to defeat goes the Democratic leadership of the Democratic House of Representatives and the Democratic Ways and Means Committee. Speaker Garner, Chairman Crisp of Committee and Floor Leader Rainey are repudiated by members of their own party in the House. Following the banner of strange device borne by Representative La Guardia, a Republican Socialist, these rebels, aided by other rebels from the Republican side, have rejected the manufacturers' sales tax written into the revenue bill. They have left a chaotic situation in their wake and threaten to put the country in for aggravating and far more burdensome taxation to replace the void left by the sales tax, which would have been painless to consumers.

True, certain Republicans have been misled by La Guardia, but these would have been powerless had there been anything like control over the Democratic membership. Democratic rebellion will prove not only costly to the taxpayers. It will demonstrate to the public that, following precedent after precedent, the Democratic party as represented in Congress is incapable of facing grave conditions and handling them in a practical way. Precisely what Republicans in Washington—and elsewhere—have anticipated has happened. The Democrats of the House have split and previously injured their own party. It has been only a question of time when they would do this very thing.

Well, the sales tax is out. Now what? Burdensome normal income tax rates with surtaxes verging upon confiscation will produce but a comparatively small additional revenue for the Federal Treasury. Sales tax opponents are relying upon their levies on estates and inheritances to yield wonderful returns. But the Secretary of the Treasury tells them that these taxes, huge as they are in the higher incomes, will not bring in more than $20,000,000 additional for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1933, and not more than $135,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934. And these are liberal estimates.

So what is to be done? The blind followers of La Guardia have made a botch of revenue raising thus far. They can be depended upon to continue to make a botch of it unless common sense is restored in the House to the point where they may be overcome and in turn repudiated.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

Policeman Fleckenstein was assaulted by some unknown person one night during the week, the assault upon the officer taking place at the corner of Oak and Third streets. He was struck in the face with a large rock and as a result was confined to his home for four days.

David Welling was preparing to build a home on Alder and Seventh streets.

A petition for the establishment of a postoffice to be known as Lewis, this county, with C. A. Ashby as postmaster, was received by the Postoffice Department in Washington. The proposed office was to be located at the mouth of Snowy Creek, four miles from Oakland, where the town of Crellin is now.

Thomas Gonder was bedfast for a number of days as the result of an attack of inflammatory rheumatism.

Daniel Chisholm, druggist of Oakland, had a number of men at work along the east bank of the Big Youghiogheny River, west of Oakland prospecting for coal. Some success was met with in uncovering a small vein.

The railroad from Hutton to Lewis and Company's saw mill at the mouth of Snowy Creek (Crellin), was completed. The first car passed over the new road on Saturday.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Children returning to their homes from school at Jennings found the dead body of John Wesley Hare, who had committed suicide, according to a report.

A bill enabling the voters of Oakland to vote upon the question of local option for the town, was introduced in the Maryland Senate by Senator Harvey J. Speicher.

Miss Eleanor Hinebaugh and Julius Littman gave piano solos at the literary program at the local high school. Others on the program included Bernadette Hart, with a recitation; referred question, Delbert C. Davis; debate, R. Welch and Elliott Shircliffe, affirmative; Morris Sincell and Playford Naylor, negative.

Members of the Lutheran women's society gave a birthday surprise party at the home of Mrs. B. H. Sincell at which Mrs. John G. Robinson was the honor guest.

The appointment of W. A. Smith as Fish Commissioner for the Western Shore of Maryland was confirmed by the State Senate.

PHILADELPHIA GIRL WILL BE APPLE BLOSSOM QUEEN

Miss Helen Ames Washington, 18 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Lafayette Washington, of Overbrook, Philadelphia, will reign as "Queen Shenandoah the Ninth," over the annual Shenandoah apple blossom festival in Winchester this spring.

The festival will be held two days while thousands of apple orchards of the Shenandoah, Cumberland and Potomac valleys are in full bloom, which in normal seasons blossom about the first of May. The festival dates will not be determined upon until ten days before the celebration is held.

Miss Washington is a collateral descendant of George Washington whose bicentennial birthday is being celebrated this year. Blossom festival authorities said they considered it appropriate to have a member of the Washington family as reigning queen of the fete, which will have a colonial setting and background.

ANNUAL REPORT OF CIVIC CLUB PRESENTED TUESDAY

Miss Lottie M. Loar, President, Gives Report of Projects Conducted Throughout Year

BEAUTIFYING FEATURES

A report of the activities of the Oakland Civic Club for the past fiscal year was presented by Miss Lottie M. Loar, president, at the meeting of the club held on Tuesday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. George D. Sprague. The report follows:

Our slogan, "Beautifying of Home and its Surroundings."

With Mrs. H. H. Harned as chairman we again registered with the National Yard and Garden Contest Association with approximatcly 140 entrants. Our prizes were in gold, bulbs, shrubbery and magazines, and were distributed in every section of town. To create more interest when awarding them a special program of music, fancy dancing, moving pictures, "The Home and What can be done with it", and an address, "Nature," by a local speaker, was arranged to which the public was welcomed. Cards were sent to each entrant and a special invitation was extended to the Civic Club at Kitzmiller. An informal reception to our visitors and members followed in the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Naylor.

We assisted in one orthopedic clinic.

Beginning in September we have worked in relief for unemployed in making garments, bed covers, collecting used clothing, mending, darning and altering the same, making them ready for distribution. We appreciate the aid given us by the Gortner Sewing Circle and the many women of our town.

For disarmament: In November papers were read followed by discussion by members. In January an address was made by Mrs. Sallie Burch, of Washington, D. C., and Loch Lynn Heights, on the disarmament conference in Geneva.

We continued our work of conservation by adding, through cooperation of the Boy Scouts and District Forester H. C. Buckingham, approximately 1,500 more trees to the same number planted last year on the State reservation at Herrington Manor. Plans are made to plant at least 1,000 again this year.

Living in the midst of beautiful scenery, it seemed fitting that our part toward the Washington Bicentennial celebration should be the planting of more trees. Through the Maryland Home Extension service we obtained plans for beautification of the High School grounds. We planned to begin this work by the Civic Club planting the first tree and others being added from year to year. But with the cooperation of the schools and eleven organizations—Rotarians, Sisters, Volunteer Firemen, Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band, Knights of Pythias, Mothers' Circle, Legion Auxiliary, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Mountain Lake and Loch Lynn Homemakers, including our own, the work was accomplished last April.

Twenty-three varieties of shrubbery and trees, 98 in all, were used. Also two sugar maples were planted on the Grammar School grounds. On February 22 these latter trees were dedicated to Washington's memory with appropriate exercises by teachers and pupils of the school.

Our outstanding project was the leasing from the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad the site of the old Oakland Hotel for purposes of beautification or perhaps a part to be later dedicated to Washington. On May 12, our first planting was inaugurated by Mrs. John L. Alcock, of Baltimore, our one-time State president, donating and planting the first tree, a Siberian elm. Mr. H. R. Laughlin, division superintendent of the Baltimore and Ohio, lifted the first shovel of earth and planted the second tree, a sugar maple.

During this ceremany Mrs. Alcock also presented to the club a seedling from the famous American Elm under which Washington stood when accepting command of the American Armies, this to be transferred later to Washington Spring Park. At this time 37 other trees were planted, twenty-six of them by as many different organizations.

Following the ceremony in which many of our townspeople took part, a tea and reception in honor of our guests and those participating were given at the William-James Hotel. Thirty-five more trees have been added, making 72 in all, to which we hope to add several hundred more, along with rhododendron, laurel and azaleas.

The local Masonic fraternity will restore Washington Spring to its original condition and beautify its surroundings as their tribute to Washington.

February 22 was celebrated by us in the planting of a native American elm near this spring. An appropriate program was made more impressive by the attendance of two color bearers with their accompanying guards.

An ice pond has been constructed for ice skating and hockey. An entrance to this pond, with descending steps, was built under the supervision of an engineer.

Approximately one acre has been plowed and graded, Mr. A. R. Martin donating his team and scoop, and is now ready for seeding. A large portion of this land has been partially cleaned off, although much remains to be done. Some of this work was done by the Knights of Pythias and the Volunteer Firemen, to whom much credit is due. We also received help from the refief committee as a "made work project." Plans are completed by which the hillside across the State road, once a part of these grounds, will be reforested, using 2,000 red pine trees. Mr. E. R. O'Donnell is superintending this work.

The Baltimore and Ohio landscape gardener has made two visits to plan for the park.

In the summer we had a weiner roast and one corn and weiner roast for the entire community. Interest was increased at regular meetings. In July, Miss Priscilla Teytle, of New York, and Miss Mabel Wyant, Parkersburg, traveling in foreign countries for a number of years, described their visit to Rome during the Holy Year of 1925, and their trip through Northern Africa.

In August there were solos by Mrs. Gordon Mealy and story telling by Mrs. Grant. In September a description of the flower show held in Cleveland, by Mrs. Harned, was given. In February, a Washington program featuring a paper on "Washington the Christian," was given by Mrs. Ernest Liller, and Mrs. Frederick Thayer, Jr., sang "Trees."

A perpetual reminder of the existence of a civic club in town was a bed of ever-blooming flowers at the railroad bridge on Oak street.

We desire to extend thanks for the cooperation of our mayor and council and to all who have aided us in any of our work; especially do we appreciate the generosity of space accorded us by local papers.

Respectfully submitted,
LOTTIE M. LOAR, President.

11 APPLY FOR TRAINING IN C. M. T. C. FROM HERE

Eleven Garrett county young men have made application for enrollment in this year's Citizens' Military Training Camps since the opening of the procurement campaign on February 15, it was announced yesterday by F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent of Schools, Oakland, chairman of the county C. M. T. C. committee.

The quota for this county is ten and although the enrollment will continue, Mr. Rathbun warned local youths against delay in filing applications. The response throughout the Third Corps Area of which Maryland is a part has far exceeded the record of any previous year, indicating that late applicants may miss the opportunity of attending camp.

More than 11 have procured application blanks from Superintendent Rathbun, but not all have been turned in to the C. M. T. C. headquarters. Those who have asked for application blanks are Lee Ashby, Paul Dawson, Lambert Ramsey, Morgan Adams, Robert Bowen, Charles Hardesty, Norman Sereno, Gerald Bradley, Earl G. Harvey, Arthur Lawton, Jr., Waller P. Hoye and Humbird Offutt.

"Young men between 17 and 24 of good character and sound physique are eligible to apply," the county chairman said. The Government will furnish railroad fare to and from camp as well as supply uniforms, laundry service, good wholesome food and other accommodations while in camp without charge.

Four camps are open to Maryland candidates this year. All Infantry candidates will train at Fort George G. Meade, Maryland, where 2,100 students, including 250 Signal Corps candidates will assemble for the largest camp in the corps area. A limited number of students who have completed the first or basic camp may qualify for attendance at the Field Artillery camp at Fort Hoyle, Md., the Cavalry camp at Fort Myer, Va., or the Coast Artillery camp at Fort Monroe, Va. In addition some Basics with special aptitude will be accepted for the Field Artillery and the Signal Corps camps.

All training camps in the Third Corps Area, this year, will come under the control and general direction of Major General Paul B. Malone, new corps area commander, and a strong and enthusiastic advocate of the value of these camps in citizenship training. General Malone served on the General Staff in the War Department under Major General Leonard Wood, then chief of staff, during the formative period of the first establishment of Citizens' Training Camps in the United States and was later recalled from duty in Hawaii to command the first Officers' Training Camp at the Presidio of San Francisco.

Allegany High Basket Shooters Cop State Championship

Allegany High School's (Cumberland) basketball team, which defeated Oakland High School in the elimination, won the scholastic cage title last week by downing Cambridge High School at Easton, 43 to 12.

In Allegany's march to the State title, it also defeated Hagerstown, Frederick and Silver Springs. Oakland High School scored more points against the State champions than any other two teams in the tournament. Last year, Kitzmiller, Garrett county champions, also gave Allegany its hardest fight, losing 27 to 21. This is Allegany's third straight title.

This year's scores are as follows:

Allegany 41, Oakland 29; Allegany 22, Hagerstown 11; Allegany 48, Frederick 9; Allegany 35, Silver Springs 16; Allegany 43, Cambridge 12.

Road Bids Confirmed

Confirming a story appearing in The Republican two weeks ago concerning the awarding of bids for two sections of concrete road in Garrett county, a dispatch in the daily papers of Tuesday gave the names of the low bidders and the amount of the bids.

M. F. McCabe was the low bidder on the 2.43 miles stretch of 16 foot concrete road to be built from a point on the Kitzmiller road near Altamont toward Swanton. His bid was $46,351.

Sam Polino, Fairmont, West Va., was low bidder on the 1.70 miles of 16 foot concrete road to be built from Gorman, toward Loch Lynn. His bid was $58,778. The Roberts Paving company scored second low bidder.

These figures do not include overhead and cement, which are furnished by the State.

Number Tens

By ALICE C. MEYER-WING

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.) (WNU Service)

MATTIE REYNOLDS took stock of her wardrobe: a half worn-out coat, a three-year-old flimsy blue silk and two print dresses, a wool sweater and one pair of shoes without holes in the soles. Nothing to wear anywhere. Certainly nothing to wear to a wedding. And Joe had just sold the cnives for a hundred dollars.

What a lot of things a hundred dollars would buy. . . . Oh, well, she knew when she married Joe Reynolds that his farm—

"But there's just one more payment after this, honey," he'd said when she mentioned a rug for the bedroom—aad clothes. "Clothes? Why, girl, you always look dressed-up to me, and as for a rug—well, you just wait till the last payment is made. It'll hurt your eyes the way we'll doll up. Just one hundred more and my girl'll have a home."

And now had come that invitation to Ernest's wedding. "And I haven't a thing to wear," she told Joe, "except that flimsy old silk—and I hate it, Joe."

But Joe was immovable. The payment must be made promptly. "And as for that wedding invitation—"

He didn't finish the sentence but Mattie knew the invitation hadn't interested her husband. Well, it interested her—aad they'd go. It would be the last affair of any kind they would attend together. She'd cadured this old, unpaid-for farm as long as she could. One suitcase would hold every garment she possessed. Joe could have the dishes; their few pieces of furniture. She was sick of the whole mess.

But she would like to look nice at Ernest's wedding. Ernest had been fond of her in the old days.

Well, there were those two five-dollar bills hidden away in the toolhouse. Joe was saving them for seeding the small meadow. And there were four dollars and seventy cents—she'd kept careful of the count—in her dime bank, almost another five. Joe had been dear about dimes for her little bank—but too determined about business. Always business first, with Joe.

"Fifteen dollars would buy that flowered satin dress she'd seen in the window of the village store, marked down from twelve-seventy-five, and shoes. The very best shoes in the store would cost less than five dollars.

Here her glance rested upon Joe's best on the closet floor beside her own. Their bulk reminded her of something Ernest had said once, about Joe's "number tens" being in the way when her future husband had been slow to catch a figure in the square dance. She had resented the iafcrred comparison at the time. Ernest wore sevens.

Thoughtlessly, she picked up tbe big shoes beside her own small ones, idly turaed them over. Why! there were holes in the soles. Joe's best. Joe would go stark aaked to make those detestable payments. Well, let him.

Let's see. Where was she? Yes, her dime-bank money for shoes; the ten dollars for the satin dress.

She would walk to the village.

She paused before the mirror in the store window. The fresh air had lent additional color to her cheeks, a bluer blue to her eyes—why, three years couldn't be an eternity. She was still young, nnd lovely—and there was the flower-budded dress. She felt a bit of civic pride as she looked at the store things in the windows. Like a shop in the city. Men's articles on one side. Women's on the other.

With her hand on the doorlatch, she faced the men's window: Shoes. Well, what of it? Of course there would be men's shocs in the men's window. Except for one pair, all her own had holes in the soles. This stony country left its mark, nnd she and Joe—

But Joe hadn't even one pair without holes in the soles. These men's shoes in the window—the price screamed at her—were exactly four-seventy. Warm, thick-soled, dressy looking.

She was suffocating . . . . too warm in the store. She would walk to the post office. Those shoes—she would look at the other window as she passed through the door.

She walked past the post office, turned aad passed it again. On down to the the blacksmith shop. Back again: Rosebuds. Men's shoes. Rosebuds. But she must hurry. She'd planned hot biscuits for Joe's supper. She smiled, thinking of her husband's boyish liking for hot biscuits and his pride of her skill in making them. And how proud he was of—Heavens! Why need she, at this moment, remember his pride in her ecoaomies! He must never kaow how she'd felt about these farm payments. It was for her he'd been so determined. . . . a home for his girl . . . . comforting . . . . protecting. . . . She put her hand to her face, wet with tears.

A thousands loving little characteristics that were Joe came rushing through her mind. Good, genuine, big-footed Joe. Tears were streaming now. Thinking of Joe—and weeping. She liked men with big feet. It took a good foundation to build oae. Joe was a builder. Her husband. She loved him.

She would press the old blue silk, put fresh lace in the neck. Joe had always told her how sweet she looked la blue; blue like her eyes. But she must hurry.

Boldly, she re-entered the store—and when she left it, she carried a single package under her arm: Men's shoes. Number tens.

WASHINGTON'S TRAVELS

George Washington, soldier-statesman, has eclipsed George Washington, the traveler—yet as a traveler, and as a geographer who gained his information at first hand, the Father of His Country earned the right to another "first."

Many places Washington visited have been unaware of the fact; other places where he is reputed to have "stopped" or "spent the night" are far from the verified records of his travels. This information developed when the map makers of the National Geographic Society started on the extensive research task—research consuming more than a year—to record all of Washington's journeys on a single map.

Thorough checks were made of the diaries of Washington, of the contemporary accounts of his travels, and in many ccases personal visits had to be macle to places and musty courthouse files scanned, because of places that have changed nnmes, or have their names duplicated.

The compilation of his information shows that George Washington traveled over a larger area than any other official of his time. His travels extended from the heart of Georgia to Kittery, Maine. Westward, he went to the vicinity of Lake Erie, in Pennsylvania; to the neighborhood of Point Pleasant, in West Virginia, and to Gallipolis, Ohio.

In three sea voyages Washington made, one was to foreign soil, Barbados. But the most amazing aspect of his travels, perhaps, are his journeys on horseback—journeys ranging from Virginia to Fort Le Boeuf, and from Mount Vernon to Boston. However, so far as records show, he did not visit the birthplace of his mother, Epping Forest.

Long Horseback Trips

Washington's horseback trips were often arduous. He was known to average 35 miles n day for periods of more than a week. Once he rode 560 miles in 16 days. That trip was from Cumberland, Md., to Williamsburg, Va, and two days of the 16 were "time out", waiting for an armed escort. He carried the pay for Braddock's army in his saddlebags.

Horses often broke under the strain, when public duty called Washington to move with dispatch. For instance, when riding to join General Braddock, upon reaching the vicinity of what is now Charles Town, W. Va., he reported that he killed one horse outright and had rendered the three others he had brought along unfit for service.

When there was no urgency of public business his horses fared better. After his trip to his western lands in 1784, during which he had twice crossed the Appalachians and had been so far from civilization that he could get no corn for his horse (and nothing or only boiled corn for himself), he sets down with satisfaction that he had traveled 680 miles between the first day of September and the fourth day of October, on the same horses.

Washington's geographic instincts began to develop on this early trip. The trough of the south branch of the Potomac, where many years later President Grover Cleveland fished for bass, he described as (a) couple of Ledges of Mountain Impassable running side and side together for above seven or cight miles and ye River down between them." He adds: "You must Ride Round ye back of ye mountain for to get below them."

With boyish zest Washington nte his evening meal on Friday, April 8.

"We camped this Night in ye Woods ncar a Wild Meadow where was a Stack of Hay after we had Pitched our Tent and made a very Large Fire we pull'd out our Knapsack in order to Recruit ourselves every (one) was his own Cook our Spits were Forked Sticks our Plates was a Large Chip as for Dishes we had none."

Good Pay, Small Expense

A letter written to a friend while on one of the several other surveying trips he made to the waters of the Shenandoah, the Cacapon, and the South Branch in 1749, 1750, 1751 and 1752 indicates it was the good pay that reconciled young Washington to the hardships of a surveyor's life. Therein he says that had not slept above three or four nights in a bed, but after walking all day he lay down "before the fire upon a Little Hay Straw Fodder or bairskin which ever is to be had with Man Wife and Children like a parcel of Dogs or Catts and happy he that gets the Berth nearest the fire there's nothing would make it pass of tolerably but a good Reward a Dubbleloon ($7.16 2-3) is my constant gain every Day that the Weather Will permit my going out and some times Six Pistoles ($21.50)."

Traveling expenses were low in those days. Virginia had a law that rates for accommodations in each county should be fixed by the court, and that any keeper of ordinnry inn not observing these rates should be heavily fined, half the fine going to the informer. The Augusta county court order shows that a hot dinner cost 9 pence; a cold meal, 6 pence; lodging, with clean sheets, 3½ pence; twenty-four-hour stabling and fodder for a horse, 6 pence; and corn or oats, per gallon, 6 pence. When it is remembered that the Virginia shilling was worth 16 2-3 cents of our money, we see that a hot dinner cost 12½ cents and other service in proportion.

From Staunton, Washington rode to Fredericksburg by way of Charlottesville, making the 114-mile journey in three days and still being fit enough to piny billiards the evening he arrived.

On Wednesday, February 4, 1756, Washington set out for Boston to lay a case of military precedence before Gen. William Shirley, commander in chief of the British forces in America. He reached Philadelphia the following Sunday, and took five or six days to look around the city.

He apparently made the 90 intervening miles to New York in two days following. And what must the New York of that day have meant to the young Virginian, who had spent the last three years mostly in the primeval forests or fighting French and Indians on the savage frontiers.

A Visit to New York

There was the "Microcosm" to visit described at the time as a world in miniature, which took 22 years to build. Washington's enthusiasm for it is written in his accounts, for on two separate occasions he enters items "for treatg. Ladies to ye Mi(crocos)m." There was also a rout at Mrs. Baron's, and tips to the servants in the household of Beverly Robinson, son of the speaker of the Virginia House of Burgesses. The young officer was always punctilious in tipping the servants in households where he was entertained, and equally so in entering these items in his account books—two traits that have aided a grent deal in tracing his travels.

Two days before he was twenty-four years old he set out on the last leg of his journey to Boston, and the "Pennsylvania Gazette" carried the news that "Colonel Washington, of Virginia, but last from Philadelphia, left this city (New York) for Boston."

On his way to Boston he stopped with a Mr. Malbone, in Rhode Island. He entered a tip for the latter's servant of 4 pounds and another item of 5 pounds for a broken bowl.

In Boston he stopped at Cromwell's Head tavern. He saw General Shirley, who decided the question of command at Fort Cumberland in his favor; visited a man-of-war in the harbor, lost some money at cards at the governor's house and then set off for Virginia. But at the governor's he had met such people as John Adams, and made a deep impression by his recital of conditions in western Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania. Unconsciously he again was playing into the hands of destiny, for John Adams was one of those who 19 years later joined with Thomas Johnson of Maryland in making him eommander in chief of the American forces.

Another interesting phase of Washington's travels began when he determined to make a personal survey of the frontier with a view to establishing a chain of forts at the important passes, in the hope of dnmming the Indian tribes behind the Allegheny divide.

During the French and Indian War days, villages and towns near the frontier had not yet begun to take shape, except in the case of county seats. Places were known as "John Smith's Plantation," "William Scott's Mill," "Tasker Tosh's Fort," "Big Lick," etc. The changing ownerships of five generations, together with the substitution of bridges for fords, have obliterated these names from map and memory alike.

It was necessary, therefore, to ge patiently through scores of massive land-grant books, dozens of old deed books, and all the survey records that have survived, in order to find out where the early settlers lived.

Mr. Friend Contributes Another Letter Bearing on Taxes in Garrett County and Lectures the County Authorities.

Mr. Clifford Friend, of near Accident, contributes a third article on the tax question in Garrett county, which is printed below, and in which Mr. Friend charges that the officials of the county have remained inactive in coming to the relief of the taxpayers. Mr. Friend's letter follows: To the Editor of The Republican.

At Hagerstown, Washington county, a Tax Payers' League was formed under date of March 23 with over four hundred interested tax payers in attendance. The object of the league will be to confer with the County Commissioners in an effort to reduce public expenses.

In Frederick county last week the Board of Education and the County Superintendent of Schools formally announced that they and their teachers will voluntarily accept a salary reduction in case the County Commissioners and other office holders do likewise.

In both counties the Commissioners have announced that they will gladly cooperate with the taxpayers in every way possible in an effort to reduce public expenditures.

The prevailing economic conditions in Washington and Frederick counties are identical with existing conditions in Garrett county today. But, in those two counties officials and office holders are sitting at the council table with tax payers and together they have adopted, or will adopt, resolutions for economy that is calculated to carry their respective counties thru this emergency.

Garrett county remains inactive. Our officials have buried their heads in the sand. Thus they have chosen to ignore the signs of the approaching storm. Our citizenry has waited for their leadership. It was altogether fitting and proper that they should wait. But while patience is a virtue, procrastination is a sin. If the urge for economy is so pressing in a wealthy county like Frederick then how much more glaring must be the need in our own modest county of Garrett?

Washington County Commissioners have announced through their attorney that the tax rate ean and will be reduced. Garrett county officials and office holders have stubbornly maintained that due to certain state laws tax reductions are impossible.

In the meantime unncessary road construction is being carried on. In the vicinity of Bloomington a new road costing seven thousand dollars has been authorized. Money to pay for the road is not now in the public treasury, nor was there any hope that the county could pay for the road in 1932. Therefore our Commissioners have borrowed the money from a private source and have promised that trusting individual to pay him out of 1933 revenue.

Is it any wonder that our people are beginning to deplore the unnecessary spending of funds? Have we not a right to expect of our public officials that they consider the times?

We delegate to certain men the power to lay taxes upon our property in order to defray the expense of our local government. But the power to tax is the power to destroy. Through taxes property can be confiscated nnd no court in the land can stay judgment.

This being the case, can we citizens afford to sit by while our office holders continue to draw enormous and indefensible salaries? Must we organize ourselves in order to combat the nonsensc of orgnnized political slush?

We have asked for a program of economy because economy is so plainly necessary. We have not asked the impossible. We have outlined a plan whereby quick and effective economy can be had, but we do not ask our officials to embrace this program in full. Perhaps they can devise a better one.

Our Tax Payers' Committee is willing and anxious to meet with our Commissioners and office holders in an effort to devise ways and means to curtail public expense. We would like to study with them the problems of our local government. We will only ask for fair play, a square deal and we promise a square deal in return.

CLIFFORD FRIEND.

Accident, March 29, 1931.

The following is a letter received from Mr. and Mrs. Desmond Bittinger. Mr. Bittinger is the son of Mrs. Jonas Bittinger of Eglon, and is a missionary in Africa.—Editor.

Marama, Nigeria, vis Jos West Africa, January 27, 1932.

Dear Friends:

It is now a month after Christmas and we are still getting some Christmas cards that were scnt a month and a half before Christmas. This makes us know two things—that we are off a ways from home, and that there has been somewhat of a depression or a smash-up or something of that nature in England which has caused them to run fewer boats down the coast of Africa. And we aren't on the coast of Africa but up in the center of Africa just a bit south of the Sahara Desert. We heard from some source or other that some young chap had flown an aeroplane across from South America to the shore line of our country but we had to learn that by the round-about way of having the news go back to America and then come out to us in letters. We didn't see him or we might have tried to get him to fly back with a letter to some of you folks.

This is a peculiar country we live in. Just now and for several months heretoforc we have been having winds from the north-east. They come to us laden with Sahara Desert sand so fine that it is finer than dust. It hangs in the air like a dense fog on the tops of some mountains, so that it is impossible to see for more than several hundred yards. This is not only occasionally; it is constantly for the months of the dry season. Ones papers that he forgot to put away become covered with powdered sand. The sides of buildings facing north become grey with sand adhearing to them. Ones dishes at dinner time feel gritty. One constantly burns and smarts. But worst of all is the treatment one gets when he falls to sleep with his mouth open! It isn't flies he gets this time, but he finds himself spitting sand for as much as a week thereafter. This harmatan as the English call it or purdu as the Buras call it has one nice feature however. It relieves the monotony of a temperature which sometimes gets up to one hundred and twenty degrees or more. While the sun is hidden by the sand the atmosphere becomes cool. After having suffered temperatures of above a hundred constantly for months it seems to get quite cool. In the evenings and mornings one can enjoy to sit by a fire and toast his feet or some other part of his makeup if he prefers it.

Some little time ago we decided to take a little trip up through the southern reaches of the Sahara and see how we liked the earth's largest desert from Tripoli, and had the interesting experience of meeting caravans that had been traveling for months and which would, on arriving at their destination immediately start out on a trek of months again. We saw all kinds of caravans: donkey, hundreds of them go together; camel, horses and cows. They have the humped-back cow here and the hump makes a place to anchor ropes to tie on the loads. The cattle are as large as two of our largest ones at home and have horns that would put the Texas longhorns to shame. We estimated some of the horns to be eight inches through at the base nnd to have a spread of from seven to nine feet between the tops. The natives would tie loads on these oxen until they looked like they were ten feet high and then a family would crawl up on top of that and thus the journey would stretch out and out. They were at home wherever they stopped.

We tried to follow the trail thru the sand with our Harley-Davidson motorcycle. Sometimes when the sand was a bit more compact we would speed it up a little and then strike a place that was softer and find ourselves skidding around and starting back for home just as if we had been on some nice slick North American ice. At intervals along the route wells had been dug. Some of them were four hundred feet deep. They had been dug by hand, of course, and were kept from caving in by small withes or saplings woven together and lining the well. By these wells stood tall Arab women, straight as arrows, drawing the water in little sheep-skin containers and pouring it in troughs so the camels could drink. One had to think of Abraham's servant going to hunt for a wife for Isaac some few years back. In that kind of a country one could think that it had been but yesterday, for everything apparently was carried on as it had been for the last fifty centuries.

Well, we got home and brought the Harley-Davidson along. He served us well throughout the entire trip.

I will conclude this by telling you that some days ago the natives came running to our door with the interesting information that "Bulum ata tsi timma ar yeur," which, being interpreted is, "The baboons are killing our sheep." I went down with my rifle to take a shot at them but before I got there the natives had frightened them away and they had gone down from off the mountain on which we live into the valley and started up the other mountain. There were about sixty of them and out here they get to be as large as large bears at home. Some of them stand as high as a man's shoulders, or nearly so. They were a thousand feet below me and nearly a mile nway. I could see them from the dust they raised as they ran away in a herd or drove. I shot in their direction to scare them away still further and was surprised to see that my shot kicked up more dust in their midst. Suffice it to say that I got a nice specimen and a little boy which she was carrying on her back at that distance. I will have to admit that it was more luck than good marksmanship, however.

We wish everybody success thruout the year.

Mr. and Mrs. Desmond Bittinger.

At a special meeting of the town council last Monday evening, action on filling the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Councilman Utterback and his subsequent election as Mayor in the place made vacant by the resignation of Mayor Clayton, was deferred owing to the absence of one of the members of council.

The names of several persons have been suggested to members of Council to be submitted to the body and we believe circulated, urging the selection of certain ones. In this formative period of new regime, the selection of the right man is important. And while we are a small community, yet policies adopted for the government of the town are, comparatively, just as important to us as a similar action would be to Baltimore or Cumberland.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the U. B. church will hold an April Fool social next Friday evening in the Aid Hall in Loch Lynn. The affair will be under the auspices of the men who are honorary members of the organization.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Leighton motored to Fairmont for the week-end.

By the way, we have just learned there is another petition in circulation. This time in Loch Lynn the citizens of which community are asking that a postoffice be established there. No doubt but that the people across the railroad track know what is best for their town and far be it from us to oppose anything our good friends, Mayor Hardesty, Charley Martin, John Ream, Buddy Weeks, Ben Harvey and others may want, but to a man up a tree the establishment of a postoffice in Loch Lynn would appear somewhat like fastening two tails on one dog. This comparison may not be very elegant, but you know what we mean—the expense and trouble of wagging both tails at the same time would not be worth the energy expended.

GRANTSVILLE

Grantsville Hard Hit By Storm

Snow, which began falling here early on Sunday afternoon, attained a depth of 20 inches by Monday morning, tying up traffic over the National Highway and all lateral roads, cutting off electric current and disrupting telephone service.

The town was jammed with tourists Monday night, many of the travelers being obliged to actually hunt for rooms.

The highway east of town was not opened to traffic until Tuesday morning, while traffic on country and lateral roads was still closed Tuesday at noon.

The enforced stoppage of traffic caused the stocks of gasoline and bread to dwindle to the vanishing point. Added to this the disruption of electric service Sunday night had its effect on the water supply of homes and hotels, as electricity is used to pump water from wells on the premises to privately owned tanks..

The local telephone service was not interrupted, but the long distance lines were out of commission, adding to the anxiety of tourists and others desiring to communicate with points east and west.

An Interesting Fact

AMERICAN METHODISM BEGUN IN MARYLAND

The seed of American Methodism was sown in Ireland.

As early as 1727, a religious society existed at Oxford, among the members of which were John and Charles Wesley. They were called Methodists, from the methodical way in which they performed their religious duties. At least that was one of the derivations of the name.

John Wesley was the founder of Methodism in England, and following in the footsteps of many of his religious predecessors sought other lands to conquer. He went to Ireland and among his converts was Robert Strawbridge, at whose house in Ireland Wesley preached.

In 1760, Strawbridge came to America and settled on Sam's Creek, in Carroll County, Maryland, and as soon as his house was built and in order began to hold religious services and to form class meetings. Thus Carroll county can properly be regarded as the cradle of American Methodism.

The first Methodist society was formed at Strawbridge's home in 1763 or 1764, and the first log meeting house, 24 feet square, was erected in the latter year, about one mile from the Strawbridge home, near New Windsor, in what was then Frederick County. A tablet has been recently placed in honor of Strawbridge and to mark the near-by site of the First Methodist Episcopal chapel in America.

The farm of 50 acres on which the Strawbridge home stood, was purchased in 1773 from John England, Sr., for one dollar per acre, after Strawbridge had resided there thirteen years. His activities radiated from this farm and the societies which he formed were subsequently joined together in the historic "Baltimore Circuit" formed in 1768. He extended his labors to the Eastern Shore of Maryland and Virginia and into Pennsylvania, so that by the time Francis Asbury visited Maryland in 1772, he reported that he traveled "three hundred miles in six weeks" visiting the preaching places of Strawbridge on both shores of Maryland.

When the first annual conference of the church was held in Philadelphia in 1773, 500 members were reported from Maryland of the 1160 in America. At the close of the Revolution, the membership had grown to approximately 15,000.

The first General Conference met at Lovely Lane Meeting House in Baltimore and the Methodist Episcopal Church of America was organized in 1784.

From the humble beginning at the Strawbridge home in Carroll county these societies spread until today in the Methodist Episcopal church alone there are approximately 21,000 ministers, 15,000 lay preachers, more than 5,000,000 members and nearly 29,000 churches.

PERMITS NEEDED TO OPEN SUMMER CAMPS IN STATE

Applications For Such Should Be Made Promptly

Operators and owners of summer camps have been notified by Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, that sanitary inspections of such camps have begun and that applications for permits should be made promptly so that camps may be visited and any changes that may be required may be made before the season opens.

Last year's permits do not hold open for another season. A new permit is required each year, Dr. Riley said. All camps—whether new or old—that meet the State requirements, will be duly certified and will be posted with the official placards furnished by the State Department of Health.

The camp regulations apply to all places used as a camp or picnic ground for a period of six days or longer and accommodating ten or more persons. Applications for permits must state the exact location of the existing, or proposed camp; the purpose for which it is to be used, whether as a picnic ground, a tourist, or recreation camp; for religious exercises; as a labor camp, or whatever it may be. The approximate number of persons to be cared for must also be stated. The source of the water supply, the proposed method of sewage and garbage disposal must be indicated, and also, whether or not food is to be sold.

Sanitary supervision and inspection of tourist, recreational and labor camps, under the present regulations was begun in 1926. Each season has shown a gratifying increase, Dr. Riley said, in the readiness of the operators to fulfill the requirements. During the first year 105 camps were inspected, and 49 met the requirements and were licensed. In 1927, 78 were licensed, and in 1928 there were 76 licensed. In 1929, the number licensed jumped to 85, and to 94 in 1930. Last year, applications were filed by the operators or owners of 114 camps, of which 96 met the legal requirements.

Sixteen counties were represented by the camps licensed in 1931. Anne Arundel led with 17; Frederick came next with 16; Carroll with 13 was third; Harford came next with 11; Cecil with 10, was fifth; Charles and Kent each had 5; Garrett, Queen Anne's and St. Mary's had 3 each; Baltimore, Calvert, Howard and Washington, each 2, and Montgomery and Wicomico counties had one each.

During the coming season the camps will again be under the supervision of the County Health Officers and the Bureau of Sanitary Engineering of the State Department of Health.

Operators or others interested may obtain application blanks, copies of the regulations governing camp sanitation and blue print plans for the protection of springs from contamination, and for proper disposal of sewage, by writing to the State Department of Health, 2411 N. Charles street, Baltimore, Md.

Removing Spots and Stains from Rugs and Carpets

Small spots—To remove ordinary dirt spots, brush thoroughly with a soft brush. Then sponge with mild, warm soapsuds and rinse carefully with clear warm water.

Ink Stains—Take up freshly spilled ink with blotting paper. Then sponge the spot thoroughly with sweet milk, allowing the milk to stand several minutes. Wash out the milk with clean hot water; to assist in drying, sprinkle with cornmeal. Old ink stains may be removed by moistening a crystal of citric acid and rubbing the spot gently, repeating until it disappears. Be sure to remove all traces of acid with clear water.

Paint Stains—Fresh paint, if moist, can be removed by cleaning gently with a cloth wet in turpentine. If hardened, remove as much as possible by gently scraping, then moisten remainder with a very little vaseline and proceed as with wet paint.

Acid Stains—Acids, such as vinegar and lemon juice, quickly affect colors. Sponge at once with ammonia water, four tablespoons of water to one of ammonia. This will sometimes even restore changed colors.

Iodine Stains—These glaring stains can be removed by applying first pure alcohol and then lukewarm soapsuds made with a mild soap. Rinse with clear water.

Chocolate—Sprinkle with powdered borax; then soak for fifteen minutes with cold water. Remove gently with cloth and cold water. When dry, remove borax with whiskbroom or a vacuum cleaner.

Grass Stains—Moisten cream of tartar and rub into stain. When thoroughly dry, remove from nap with vacuum cleaner, or sponge with alcohol.

Grease Spots—Grease spots, which rot fabric, should be removed at once with carbon tetrachloride. Apply with a soft cloth, taking up the soil as it dissolves with a clean cloth or blotter. Another simple method is to sprinkle the spot with fuller's earth. When the grease has been absorbed, remove with whiskbroom.

THE REPUBLICAN

VOLUME 55. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND, APRIL 7, 1932. NUMBER 8.

THREE IN RACE FOR U. S. SENATE ON G. O. P. TICKET

State Senator Wallace Williams of Cecil County, Becomes Third Entry in Maryland Contest

SEEK SEN. TYDINGS' SEAT

Apparently holding the backing of some of the strongest leaders in the party, State Senator Wallace Williams of Cecil county, has become the third entry in the race for the Republican senatorial nomination, and precipitated what may be a three-way primary fight.

Senator Williams, a past commander of the State American Legion, filed his certificate of candidacy in the office of the Secretary of State at Annapolis last Thursday, just before the deadline halted any other aspirants.

Williams' entry added to those of former Representative Linwood L. Clark of Baltimore county, and Harry T. Phoebus, Somerset county Republican leader and business man. Clark was the first to enter the race and Phoebus filed his certificate on Tuesday of last week.

Tydings Nomination Assured

Closing of the lists not only halted any further entries on the Republican side, but assured the renomination of Senator Millard E. Tydings on the Democratic ticket by default. No other name has been entered to contest for the Democratic nomination.

The Cecil countian's entry Thursday followed conferences with party leaders throughout the state and in Baltimore City, and it was these which led to the belief that he might be given organization backing for the nomination over Clark and Phoebus.

All three of the Republican aspirants for Tydings' seat are known as drys, and the nomination of any one of them will afford a clean cut wet-dry fight in the November election unless the nominee changes his stand, as the Democratic incumbent is an out and out wet.

Clark always has been dry, and Phoebus, so far in his public career, has taken the arid side whenever it was brought to an issue.

Williams An Avowed Dry

Williams is an avowed dry, and at the last national convention of the American Legion was the only one of the 18 Maryland delegates to vote against the prohibition resolution.

Williams is the son of the late Frank T. Williams, long Republican leader of Cecil county, and for many years its representative in the State Senate. He was a member of the First Maryland Infantry when the United States entered the World War and was commissioned a lieutenant and went overseas.

Later he was elevated to a captaincy and placed in charge of a machine gun company, which took part in the engagements at Alsage and later at St. Mihiel and the Meuse-Argonne drives. He was cited twice for his part in these engagements.

On his return, Williams formed the Elkton Post of the State Legion and twice was elected commander, and later commanded the state department of the Legion.

Dr. Clarke states that the scarlet fever cases around Grantsville have decreased rapidly since March 1 and that no new families have been quarantined since March 17. At the present time there are only five families quarantined for scarlet fever. A large number of influenza cases are reported, all occurring in and around Kitzmiller.

Final Session of Court Thursday Brought Joy to Some

The final day's session of the recent term of the Circuit Court for Garrett County was held last Thursday afternoon when Judge Doub had the prisoners confined in the County Jail who had been previously sentenced brought into court and there he reduced the amount of fines imposed and the length of their prison sentences in nearl yevery case.

nearly every case, which was good news to the unfortunates and brought smiles to their faces.

Those who had not been previously sentenced and upon whom the Court proceeded to pass sentence were as follows:

Raymond Ream, stealing chickens, one year in the House of Correction. Ream had been released from the Maryland Penitentiary on March 18, 1931, after having served less than three months of a two-year sentence.

Cecil Rosenberger, who was convicted along with Ream, was paroled for three years.

Abraham Andriatis, manufacture and possession of liquor, one year in the House of Correction.

Charles Earl Klingensmith, theft of furniture, two years in the Maryland Penitentiary; sentence suspended for three years.

Edgar F. Cornelius, of Pittsburgh, who entered a plea of guilty on an indictment charging him with having committed the crime of bigamy, was sentenced to serve 9 months in the House of Correction, the sentence being suspended, however, until the September term of the Circuit Court. Cornelius stated that he was a druggist by profession and that he had a position awaiting him in Pittsburgh.

PLANNING ANOTHER ROAD INTO PENNSYLVANIA

Third Highway Into Somerset County to be Built

Plans for the construction of a third hard-surfaced road leading northward from the National Highway into Somerset county, Pennsylvania within a comparatively short distance of each other are being made, according to Chairman G. Clinton Uhl, of the Maryland State Roads Commission, who has advised Congressman S. A. Kendall of Pennsylvania, that such plans are being considered and are well on the way toward completion. The road will begin at the Mason and Dixon Line, a short distance south of Pocahontas, Pa., and passing through the village of Finzel, Garrett county, will connect with the National Highway at a point immediately west of Savage River.

The new route, it is said will avoid the mountains on the National Highway between Grantsville and Frostburg and will shorten the distance between Meyersdale and Cumberland about ten miles.

Congressman Kendall, in urging Mr. Uhl to take action on the project recited that engineers of the State Roads Commission surveyed the route about two years ago. Mr. Uhl advised Congressman Kendall that the road would be built this year and that bids will be advertised within the next six weeks.

Families in Oakland District Still Requiring Assistance

A check-up has been made and it is found that there are persons who are still in dire need of staple food products, therefore it will be necessary for the local relief committee to carry on for several weeks longer. The citizens of this community and district have already been generous in their support and only through their cooperation has the work been carried on throughout the winter.

At present the funds in the treasury of the relief committee have reached the vanishing point. If there are any individuals who still feel that they can make a cash donation to this fund, or if there are any living within the town of Oakland or in the country who can possibly donate supplies, such as potatoes, flour, beans and canned goods, the committee urgently requests them to make every effort to do so.

This winter the committee helped 80 families, or a total of 600 individuals.

SEED-FERTILIZER LOANS AVAILABLE FOR FARMERS

Mortgage on 1932 Crop Required as Security by Government

Loans for the purchase of seed and fertilizer will be made to Garrett county farmers through the United States Department of Agriculture, according to John H. Carter, county agent. As security for the loans the government requires a first mortgage on the 1932 crop produced by the borrowers.

No loan in excess of $400 will be made to any one applicant. As much as $3.00 per acre can be borrowed, and on truck crops and potatoes as much as $12.00 per acre can be secured for crop production. Also loans can be had for the purchase of spray material for truck crops and producing orchards.

No loans will be made to an applicant who has other means of livelihood than that of farming. Neither will a loan be made to a farmer who did not farm in 1931.

Those who secured loans last year and have not paid this year can obtain a loan providing they have used the previous loan for the purpose for which it was granted; that they made a diligent effort to properly tend their crop and that they applied the proceeds of all cash crops to the payment of their Federal seed loans. An additional mortgage must be given on the 1932 crop to secure the 1931 loan before an additional loan can be negotiated.

County Agent John H. Carter states that all applications must be made through his office, third floor, Court House, Oakland. The farmer will make application to the United States Department of Agriculture, subject to their approval, and when approved a check will be mailed to the applicant.

No loans will be made after April 25. The county committee in charge of the Federal seed loan includes C. A. Ashby, Deer Park, chairman; H. P. Miller, Grantsville; Paul Friend and Delbert Davis, Oakland.

Five applications for loans have been filed with the county agent thus far this year.

LARGE STILL IS SEIZED IN GARRETT COUNTY RAID

Prohibition Agents Confiscate Plant and Arrest Four Men

Steve Kopen, Gus Marrass, Harry M. Reall and U. R. Cooper, all of the Red Oak community of Garrett county, were arrested Tuesday afternoon by Federal Agents William R. Harvey and Leon Poore.

The men were brought to Oakland and given in charge of Sheriff Walter H. Haenftling, and later were accorded a hearing before Justice W. A. Gonder. All were held under $500 bond for their appearance at the September Term of the Circuit Court, and all with the exception of Kopen were able to give bond. In default he is being held in the County Jail.

According to the officers the men were arrested about 17 miles from Oakland in a rural section known locally as Corona School, in the Potomac River Valley. A 100-gallon still in operation, 24 mash barrels and a quantity of alleged liquor and whiskey mash were confiscated and destroyed.

The still was located in the back yard of the home of "Jake" Cooper, and the mash was found at the home of his neighbor, Harry Reall.

The officers who made the arrests stated that the men admitted having operated the still for sometime, and claimed they had no other means of making a livelihood aside from farming in a small way.

The plant, according to Officer Harvey, was well equipped and is one of the largest seized in the county in a long while.

FEDERAL OFFICERS GET STILL AT BLOOMINGTON

Charles Wigley Pleaded Guilty To Possession of Intoxicants

Working upon information they secured, Federal Prohibition Officers Leon Poore and William R. Harvey went to Bloomington Friday from Cumberland and raided the place of Charles Wigley. They seized 24 bottles of home brew and one and one-half gallons of alleged whiskey and a 35-gallon still, located a few hundred feet from Wigley's house, but on his property. He stated he knew it was there but did not know to whom it belonged. When the officers arrived at the house, Wigley poured the whiskey in the bathtub but the officers obtained it as it ran from the sewer pipe on the outside of the property.

Wigley was arraigned before Commissioner Thomas J. Anderson in Cumberland on Saturday when he pleaded guilty to the possession of intoxicants but not guilty to the possession of the still and manufacture charge. He was held under bond of $500.

National Pike Landmark Burns At Addison, Pa.

When fire was discovered early one morning last week in the century-old Jasper Augustine brick residence at Addison, Pa., a call was sent for the local fire company. The men responded immediately but the fire had gained such headway that it was impossible to save the structure.

The house was a landmark along the National Highway. It was erected in 1832 and contained 18 rooms. For two generations it was the property of John Mitchell. It was then purchased by the late Jasper Augustine and was owned at the time of the fire by Clarence Augustine.

It was said that the loss of $25,000 was well covered by insurance.

WORK OF RELIEF SOCIETY COMPLETED MONDAY NIGHT

Central Committee Decides To Disband, Feeling That It Has Served Its Purpose

COMPLETE REPORT GIVEN

The Central Relief Committee, at a meeting on Monday night, feeling that it had served the purpose for which it was formed last October, decided to disband, according to Dr. George E. Clarke, a member of the committee.

The following communication from the committee addressed to the residents of Garrett county, was handed The Republican for publication:

Oakland, Maryland,
April 4, 1932.

To the Citizens of Garrett County.

At a public meeting held in Oakland, Maryland, Thursday night, October 29, 1931, we were selected to act as members of the Central Committee of the Garrett County Relief Associations. Plans for this association were adopted at this meeting. Following is the first paragraph of the resolution:

"The purpose of this plan is to provide relief to members of Garrett county who will not be in a position to care for themselves during the ensuing winter."

Feeling that this committee has served its purpose and that we have done what we could to assist the needy in our county, we now feel that this problem should be handled by the regular relief organization in our county and by our public officials in whatever manner they through their experience and good judgment think best, and to the best interest of the people of Garrett county.

The report of this committee for the entire county up to March 15 is as follows:

Number of families aided..... 266
Total individuals 1416
Value of clothing, $507.00; value of food, $1110.88; cash, $523.75; outside aid, $1896.38; unemployed, 146; under employed, 910.

Thanking the people who have so willingly helped to supply the needs of the unemployed during the past winter, and we wish to especially mention Miss Katherine Kirwan, executive secretary of the Maryland Children's Aid Society, for the excellent work she has done in the county, and Miss Alice O. Davis, of the Coal Relief Section of the American Friends Service Committee, who assisted Miss Kirwan in organizing our schools so that the under-weight children could be furnished with milk and other wholesome food at noon each school day; also Dr. Clarke for his willing and able assistance.

Respectfully yours,
CENTRAL COMMITTEE.

Forest Control Organization Prepared for Peak Conditions

Buckingham at Cumberland was negotiating with the West Virginia Game, Fish and Forestry Commission for opening of the Pinnacle lookout station in West Virginia, which renders valuable detection service for Maryland woodland areas.

The nine forest guards already on duty were augmented by employment of eight others in various sections of the state, and requests for special vigilance were sent out to Maryland's 650 forest wardens. Jasper H. Cross was assigned as forest guard at Oakland, filling the vacancy created through the promotion of Cecil Ramsey, of Oakland, to the position of principal forest guard.

Lesson for April 10

HOW SIN BEGINS

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 2:15-17; 3:1-3.
GOLDEN TEXT—Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation: the spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak.
PRIMARY TOPIC—The Garden God Planted.
JUNIOR TOPIC—How Sin Started.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How to Overcome Temptation.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Our Responsibility for Our Sins.

A look out upon the world proves that man is not what he should be. It is not reasonable to suppose that man is now what he was when he came from the hands of the Creator, much less an improvement. The only way of accounting for this is by the historic fall of man as given in the Bible.

I. Man's Probation (Gen. 2:15-17).

1. The place (v. 15). It was in the beautiful Garden of Eden. Man's environment was suited to his nature.

2. The necessity (v. 16). This grows out of man's constitution. Adam was created with the possibility of character, but not with character. Alternative choice makes character possible. Freewill was what made Adam a real man.

3. The means (v. 17). It was most simple, just one prohibition. The tree of the knowledge of good and evil was forbidden. Alongside of this small restriction was placed a large privilege—the tree of life.

II. Man's Temptation (3:1-8).

1. The method (vv. 1-5). Satan, a personal, malicious being, appeared in the guise of a serpent. Notwithstanding the growing unpopularity of the doctrine, the fact remains that there is a personal devil. This is proven both by the Scriptures and experience. He did not appeal directly to the man. He chose to appeal to the woman through the serpent, and through the woman to the man.

a. He found the woman while alone.

b. He insinuated doubt into Eve's mind as to God's word and love. This is his method today. He tries to get people to doubt God's Word and then to doubt his goodness. He persuaded Eve that God was withholding from her something that was good. He today induces men to say that God is cruel, harsh, and unjust. He gets young people to think that father and mother are too exacting. As soon as one doubts God's word, he begins to criticize it and to disobey it.

c. To get Eve to doubt the penalty of sin. There is much flippant jesting about eternal punishment. Be it remembered, however, that this does not change its reality.

d. He appealed to innocent appetite. He agued that there would be no harm in eating, but great advantage.

e. Eve gazed upon that which God had forbidden and lusted after it.

2. The fall (vv. 6-8). The steps in the fall seem to have been rapid. From doubting God's love, Eve went to doubting his word. From gazing upon and lusting after that which God had prohibited, there was but a short step to indulgence. Eve not only disobeyed, but involved Adam in her sin.

III. Man's Judgment (vv. 9-24).

God's holy nature is such that when men sin he at once manifests himself. God called Adam and Eve to account the same day.

1. A disturbed relationship with God (v. 8). The introduction of sin marred man's familiar intercourse with the Almighty. Adam and Eve not only hid from God's presence, but when summoned by him began to make excuse and Adam even laid the blame on God.

2. The degradation of the serpent (v. 14). He henceforth became the type of sin and Satan (Num. 21:9; John 3.14; Rev. 12:9).

3. The undying enmity between the seed of the woman and the seed of the serpent (v. 15). This bitter enmity has continued from that day to this.

4. The ultimate victory of the woman's seed (v. 15). Satan's seed has harassed the woman's seed through the centuries, but on the cross the final stroke was made which crushed his head (John 12:31; Heb. 2:14; I John 3:8). This is the first gleam of the glorious gospel of Christ.

5. The judgment upon the woman (v. 16). This relates primarily to her as a wife and mother.

6. Man's new relationship to the earth (vv. 17-19). The earth was cursed on his account.

7. Death (v. 19). This includes spiritual and physical death.

8. Expulsion from the garden (v. 24). When man's nature was changed by sin, out from the beautiful garden he must go.

RANDOM SAYINGS

Apparent need is not always real need. He is our best friend who helps our real need.

It is a higher exhibition of Christian manliness to be able to bear trouble than to get rid of it.

If you have something good to say to a man better look him up and say it now. He won't be able to read his tombstone when he's dead.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By Scoop Himself

Introducing to You—

Mrs. Scoop, late of St. Paul, Minnesota, now of Oakland, Md., thank heavens, who arrived Sunday night from Parkersburg, West Va., via Ford coupe, owned and operated by one Scoop Himself.

Born on a farm and proud of it, proficient in 4-H Club work and addicted to homemaking, thank heavens again.

Is glad she went to college, and boy, so am I, or I would never have met her.

Believes that she will become a censor of this column, but believe me one censor in the person of the Boss Editor is plenty.

Wants to live where there's room enough for a garden, but something tells me who will have to do most of the hoeing, weeding, spading, digging. Also eating.

And a lot of other nice things. For further particulars apply to Scoop, or see for yourself.

Nobody in my state of mind should ever be compelled to write a column, but the Boss Editor has demanded that his readers be not deceived or disappointed. So here you are. My column, that is, not my life.

WHO REMEMBERS?

HOW MANY DO YOU KNOW IN THIS WEEK'S PICTURE?

The picture today is another of the many sessions of Normal School held at the Oakland Grammar school during one of the summers of the past.

These summer sessions of county normal school always caused a flutter among the young men of the town, according to several who used to be "young gentlemen."

Perchance, then, this photograph might stir up fond memories, and on the other hand, it might bring forth those thoughts that would be better off in the innermost recesses of the cranium.

Anyway, it is hoped this photo does not give away the ages of any of those in it.

CHILD HEALTH DAY TO BE CELEBRATED IN MARYLAND

Children Have Inherent Right to Health, Director Says

Plans for the celebration of May Day—Child Health Day—throughout Maryland have been announced by Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health. The first day of May, which has come to be associated throughout the length and breadth of this country as the starting point for the year's activities in child health, falls on Sunday, this year, and the special May Day games and dances and other exercises in commemoration of the spring festival, in which the children themselves take part, will accordingly take place at some favorable time before or after the first of the month.

The activity in which the State Department of Health is particularly interested and which is carried on in cooperation with the county superintendents of schools and the State Department of Education, is the health examination of the five and six year-olds in preparation for their admission to school in the fall. These examinations will begin during May and will continue through the summer. Arrangements for the health conferences at which these examinations are conducted and for the special public exercises in the interest of child health, will be made for each county by the county health officer and the county superintendent of schools.

The purpose of the nation-wide celebration of Child Health Day, Dr. Riley said, is to direct attention to the inherent right of every child to health, happiness and intelligent care; to opportunities for normal growth and development, physical, mental and spiritual. Emphasis is laid in all of the plans for this year's observance of the day, on the importance of community interest in child health.

The Maryland May Day Committee is composed of representatives of State, county and city departments of health and of education; of parent-teacher associations; state and county medical societies; service clubs; organizations concerned with the care of handicapped children; recreational groups and others interested in the health and welfare of the children of Maryland. Dr. J. H. M. Knox, Jr., Chief of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health, is chairman of the State committee.

Why Eat Wheat? For Good Nutrition, To Save Other Foods and to Save Money

Graham or whole wheat flour, or the cracked or whole grain of wheat, can be used in breads, cereals and other dishes two or three times a week. This does not mean to do away with white bread or other cereals, but only to substitute for a part of it, when you have wheat on hand. The whole wheat or graham flour can be ground at local mills. The cracked wheat can be ground in the home with any hand or coffee grinder. The whole grain can be used as it comes from the field. It should be sorted, washed carefully and soaked overnight. (1½ cups of water to each cup of wheat before cooking.)

Whole wheat flour should not be sifted. It is heavier than white flour, thus batters and doughs will be softer or thinner and will not rise as much. A little less fat may be used and brown sugar, sorghum or honey combine better than white sugar with whole wheat.

Scalloped Ham and Whole Wheat

Soak the wheat several hours, then place in a greased baking dish with a slice of fresh or cured ham, season with salt, if necessary, add liquid (water or milk) to almost cover. Cover the dish and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.). Cook until ham is done. Cooked wheat may be used. (Whole wheat and cheese may be prepared in the same way).

Whole Wheat Pudding

To one cup of cooked whole wheat, add 2 unbeaten eggs, 2 cups milk, 2 to 4 t. sugar, ½ cup raisins or fruit (dried or canned). Stir enough to mix. Pour into custard cups or a baking dish. Bake in moderate oven as for custard.

Whole Wheat Chowder

Two cups diced carrots, 1 pint boiling water, 1 pint milk, ½ cup diced salt pork, 4 tablespoons chopped onion, 1 tablespoon flour, 2 cups cooked whole wheat, pepper, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley. Cook the carrots in the boiling water until tender. Fry the salt pork until crisp, remove it from the fat, and cook the onions in the fat. Stir in the flour and cook a few minutes longer. Mix all ingredients in the upper part of a double boiler, stir until well blended and cook about ten minutes.

Whole Wheat and Beef

Two tablespoons fat, 4 tablespoons chopped onion, 3 cups water, 1 pound beef, diced, ¼ of a chili pepper, salt, flour, 2 cups cooked whole wheat. Melt the fat and cook the onion for a few minutes, then add the meat which has been lightly rolled in flour. When the meat has browned somewhat add the water. Partly cover and simmer until the meat is tender. Stir in the chili pepper and the wheat and add salt to taste.

Land Mark To Be Preserved

Word has just reached here that Cheat Bridge, the 98-year-old landmark that spans Cheat River five miles south of Rowlesburg and about seven miles west of Aurora, West Va., will be preserved and kept as an historic relic after traffic is discontinued over it and diverted to the new bridge now under construction at that point.

It has been explained that it was necessary to take this up with the War Department as the regulation is that where an old bridge spanning a navigable stream is replaced by a modern structure, the old one must be torn down, but Col. C. P. Fortney, chairman of the State Roads Commission, was able to get a dispensation in this case.

The old covered wooden bridge which has been condemned was one of the greatest pieces of engineering in its day. It was constructed with wooden pegs as nails were not in use at that time. In later years it has been repaired in many places and nails have been used. Although the old bridge is not considered safe for the heavy loads of today, it is still in a splendid state of preservation.

RADIO ADVERTISING

Do you own a radio? Are you operating it now? To what station is it tuned? What product is being advertised?

Let enough people answer these questions and the real value of radio as an advertising medium will be ascertained. Exactly 27,919 American citizens were asked those four questions during the past few months. The survey, sponsored by the Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers' Association, covered the entire country. The questions were asked by telephone between 8:00 and 8:30 p. m. (best radio time) when weather conditions insured good reception.

Editor and Publisher, newspaper magazine, reports the results: Of 100 homes called, 51 have radio sets. Of the 51 with radio sets in the homes, 41 had someone at home on a typical evening. Of the 41 radio owners who are at home, 24 have their sets turned on during the best hours of the typical evening. Of the 24 listeners, 13 make up the largest audience reached by any one station in each vicinity. Of the 24 listeners, eight know that the program is supposed to advertise. These eight must be divided among the stations heard, leaving possibly three or four out of a hundred families as "effective circulation" for a single program.

This information should and will be passed on to all important national advertisers. It effectively refutes the absurd claim that radio advertising is the best and most effective kind. It will strengthen the newspaper's claim to superiority in the entire field of advertising.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

H. W. Hesen had a pig on his farm that had four perfectly formed front feet.

The Luteman murder case, which had occupied the attention of the Circuit for upwards of a week, ended on Tuesday morning and a verdict of not guilty but insane was rendered by the Court. Lutcman was sent to an insane asylum.

Postoffices at Accident and Deer Park were authorized by the Department at Washington to issue money orders.

Sunday was a typical spring day and the streets were filled with men and women promenaders bedecked in light suits.

The attention of the health officer was called to the existence of a pool of stagnant water on Liberty street near the Baltimore and Ohio depot following the suggestion that it was a disease-breeding spot.

A necktie making and hat trimming race was advertised to take place in Hamill and Little's Hall, Oakland.

Baltimore and Ohio eastbound passenger train, due in Oakland at 6:30 o'clock, met with a slight mishap at Bloomington when a wheel in a rear truck of a parlor car burst and threw the hind end of the car over on the station platform. The rear end of the car was smashed and the platform demolished. Some of the railroad ties were reduced to kindling wood. No one was injured but trains were delayed three hours.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

At the oraganization of the new city council E. G. Naylor was elected president of the body; John C. Dunham succeeded himself as clerk. Other appointments were as follows: Town treasurer, Arthur Townshend; tax collector, D. M. Mason; street commissioner, A. C. Wotring; water superintendent, John Compton. The new members of council were John W. Davis, Henry Lauer and Dr. B. Frank Selby, and the hold-over members were E. G. Naylor, T. A. Gonder and Bowle Johnson. Dr. McComas was mayor.

A carload of potted plants and cut flowers were shipped by the H. Weber and Sons Company to Clarksburg and Fairmont for the expected Easter demand.

The barn on the farm of Daniel Sweitzer, south of Oakland, and near Eglon, was struck by lightning and the building with its contents completely destroyed, entailing a loss of several thousand dollars.

Oakland was to be visited by a party of Pittsburgh manufacturers, jobbers and wholesale merchants, on their twelfth trade extension tour. They were to remain here forty minutes and were being transported by the Baltimore and Ohio in a special Pullman-equipped train.

The deaths of former County Treasurer Thomas B. Wiley, of Bittinger, and Mrs. Mary Helbig, wife of Mr. John Helbig, Sr., were recorded.

Miss Mary Rebecca Thayer was elected to membership in Phi Beta Kappa, national scholastic society of Cornell University. Only four of the large graduating class received the honor and Miss Thayer was the only woman.

DIED.

MRS. IDA M. PHARES

Mrs. Ida M. Phares, 67 years of age, died at her home in Crellin last Thursday evening at 6:30 o'clock, following an attack of pneumonia, with which she was taken ill a few days prior to her passing. A short funeral service was held at the Crellin home Saturday afternoon, which was conducted by Rev. Walter B. Brock, pastor of the Garrett Memorial Presbyterian church in Oakland, assisted by Rev. Dr. Lacey, of Elkins, West Va., following which the remains were taken to the home of Mrs. Phares' sister, Mrs. J. H. Hartley, Elkins, where another service was held Sunday. Interment was made in the Elkins cemetery. The deceased is survived by two daughters, Mrs. D. R. Kellough, of Cumberland, and Mrs. C. O. Discher, Macon, Ga., and by one son, Harold Phares, of Crellin. Her husband, Alfred Phares, died at Elkins on August 7, 1927.

MICHAEL LEGEER

Michael Legeer died on the evening of March 31 of heart disease at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Swauger, near Jennings, Garrett county, with whom he resided for the past five years. He came to the United States from County Cork, Ireland, where he was born in 1859. He settled at Vale Summit in Allegany county in 1865 and engaged in mining in that region for fiftcen years. From there he removed to Garrett county in 1882, purchased a farm in the vicinity of Jennings, opened a coal mine on the place and followed mining and farming during the remaining active period of his life. After coming to Garrett county he married Miss Lydia Stark, whose death occurred in 1915. He is survived by one sister, Miss Mary Legeer, who resides in Somerset, Pa. Funeral services were held on Sunday afternoon in the Bittinger Lutheran church, his pastor, Rev. J. E. Walls, officiating. Interment was made in the village cemetery, Bittinger.

MRS. SADIE WILES SMOUSE

Mrs. Sadie Wiles Smouse, aged 56 years, wife of W. H. Smouse, of Oakland, died suddenly at 3:30 o'clock Sunday morning at her home on Center street, following a heart attack.

The deceased was a native of Preston county, West Va., being a daughter of the late Abraham Wiles, who is remembered by many of the older residents of Oakland. She is survived by her husband and two sons, Hervey Smouse and Ralph Smouse, both of Oakland, and by two brothers, Raymond and Charles M. Wiles, of Terra Alta, West Va., and a half-brother, H. W. Porter, who resides in the State of Washington. She was united in marriage to William Henry Smouse April 14, 1896. Funeral services were held at the family home here Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, being conducted by the Rev. Charles A. Shilke, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church, of which Mrs. Smouse was a consistent member and regular attendant at all the services until prevented by failing health. She had been a sufferer for a long time as the result of successive attacks of asthma. Interment was made in Oakland cemetery.

The following poem, read at the service by Rev. Shilke, is dedicated by her family to the departed:

We Watched Her

We watched her breathing through the night,
Her breathing soft and low,
As in her breast the waves of life
Kept heaving to and fro.

So silently we seemed to speak,
So slowly move about,
As we had lent her half our powers
To eke her living out.

Our very hopes belied our fears,
Our fears our hopes belied—
We thought her dying when she slept,
And sleeping when she died.

For when the morn came dim and sad,
And chill with early showers,
Her quiet eyelide closed—she had Another morn than ours.

Card of Thanks

We desire to express our sincere thanks to those who were so kind and helpful to us after the death of our beloved wife and mother. Also to those who sent floral tributes, the flower girls and those who so kindly donated the use of their cars.

Last Monday at Towson when the Circuit Court was in session and a divorce case was being heard, a small boy appeared with magazines under his arm and inquiringly asked the Judge: "Saturday Evening Post?" Unsuccessful in selling his wares, either to the judge, attorneys, bailiff and clerk, he withdrew, unaware of the ripple of amusement which swept the courtroom.

To the Farmers of Maryland

Addressed to the farmers of Maryland, United States Senator Phillips Lee Goldsborough, sent the following to The Republican with the request that it be given publicity in these columns:

The agriculture industry is struggling manfully to rehabilitate itself. Due to drought, crop failure and other circumstances during the past two or three years, many farmers in most of the States of the Union have found themselves in desperate straits. The Federal Government is desirous of relieving this situation to as great an extent as possible. In the Reconstruction Finance Corporation Act recently passed by Congress, special consideration was given to the agricultural situation and funds for loans to farmers based upon the requirements of the applicant for seed, fertilizer, fed and work-stock, and fuel and oil for tractors and other necessary supplies, were made available up to a maximum of $400.00 for the individual farmer.

Those in need of additional funds for spring planting should make prompt application to their county agriculture agent, located at their county seat, where full details and application blanks will be furnished. The deadline for filing applications is April 30th.

Are Not In Sympathy With Movement To Establish Postoffice In the Town of Loch Lynn Heights.

To the Editor of The Republican.

We should like very much to offer a correction relative to an item published in your current issue under the Mountain Lake news, implying that we are in favor of a petition being circulated in Loch Lynn in an effort to have the Postoffice Department establish an office within the town of Loch Lynn Heights.

Our views are to the contrary, and we will indeed be grateful if you can spare space enough in your next issue to inform your readers of this correction.

Respectfully yours,

COUNTY AGENT'S COLUMN

J. H. CARTER,
Resident County Agent,

Important to Sow Adapted Seed

No doubt, in the past a large part of the failure with alfalfa was due to the planting of unadapted seed. If unadapted seed is planted, the crop may do very well the first year, but disappear the second year, and some other cause given for its failure. Some crops may last even longer, but most disappear after the first winter.

In the past it was very difficult to secure the strain of seed wanted from the region desired. No doubt much of the seed ordered as adapted was either all unadapted or mixed with unadapted, and a high percentage of failures was the result.

Now, however, with several new laws in operation a farmer may make sure of getting the kind of alfalfa seed he orders, for (1) all imported seed are stained, (2) seed certification is practiced, (3) the seed growers, the seed dealers and the U. S. Department of Agriculture cooperating, verify the source of certain lots of alfalfa seed and such seed is now on the market.

What Alfalfa Seed Maryland Farmers Should Avoid

(1) Avoid seed from the Southwest, Arizona, New Mexico and California. Seed from that region will not give a thriving crop under Maryland conditions.

(2) Avoid all imported alfalfa seed except Ontario Varicgated. It is now easy to tell if any lot of seed is imported or has imported seed mixed with it, for all imported alfalfa seed must now be stained before it can enter United States trade channels.

a. If grown in regions that produce seed not adapted anywhere in the United States about 1 percent of it must be stained red.

b. If from regions that produce seed that may be adapted to some regions in the U. S., some of the seed is dyed green.

c. If from regions that produce seed that may be adapted to some region in the U. S., but the facts are not yet fully determined, some of the seed are stained orange red.

d. If from Canada, some of the seed are dyed violet.

Of all these imported seed, the last named is the only one adapted to Maryland conditions. Any lot of alfalfa seed with red, orange red or green stained seed in it, should be avoided for all or part of the seed would almost be sure to be unadapted and a failure to get a satisfactory alfalfa field would be almost sure to follow.

COURT FILES OPINION IN COAL LAND DISPUTE

In an opinion signed by Judge Albert A. Doub, in Circuit Court, the court decrees that the $40,000 judgment filed in Allegany and Garrett counties, purporting to be a lien on the property of the Penn-Mar Realty company, is null and void. The option was given in the equity suit of Vance H. Burtner and wife against the Independence Fire Insurance Co., Penn-Mar Realty Co., and others.

The court cited that in as much as the preliminary injunction assured by the Court of Common Pleas, June term, 1930, in Philadelphia, Pa., restraining the plaintiffs and defendants from encumbering any of the property, still stands, no final decree requiring the defendants to execute the mortgage for $50,000 to Vance H. Burtner, can now be passed. In conclusion, the court stated the case would be held open for any future order or decree, and if necessity arises, the court can appoint a trustee to execute the mortgage.

A further hearing of counsel will be held before the court may pass a decree in connection with the royalties due by Roscoe J. Ross, under the lease, and payment of any notes which may still be due to the Penn-Mar Realty company. However, an injunction will be issued restraining the Independence Fire Insurance company from enforcing the judgment for $40,000.

Vance H. Burtner, one of the plaintiffs, and his brother, Clair P. Burtner, one of the defendants, were engaged in business together and owned almost all of the capital stock in a number of corporations, including the Penn-Mar Realty company, which owns coal lands in Garrett and Allegany counties. Disputes over the conduct of their various enterprises resulted in an agreement to settle affairs by making exchanges of assets owned in common. The litigation grew out of such adjustments and settlements, including payment of $50,000 by Clair P. Burtner, secured by mortgages.

Danforth, chairman of the board of directors of Purina Mills, has presented a book entitled "Adventures in Achievement" to Howard Stanley Frantz, freshman in the high school at Friendsville, who has achieved success in the local community. A number of boys from the Friendsville F. F. A. Chapter wrote essays about farmers in the community. The prize essay of young Frantz follows:

A Farmer Who Achieves

As I write I am looking at rolling, productive fields enclosed by well-kept fences that add attractiveness to the large and beautifully painted buildings of the highly cultivated farm of Charles Rush. This wonderful success of farming has been achieved by the efforts of Mr. Rush in buying and selling good crops and cattle.

Mr. Rush has developed a good breed of short-horn cattle. His chickens, sheep and hogs are of the best. He has a fine team of young horses which he always keeps shining and clean. He always grows a fine line of crops.

The honesty of Mr. Rush has won him respect from his neighbors. He is an honest dealer, friendly and kind. This honest and upright man is one of the many farmers who have achieved success.

Joe's Faith

By CORONA REMINGTON

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)
(WNU Service)

SHE was only a little maid in a big hotel and he the chef, but he had generations of chefs behind him and hers was a family of the highest type of maids. One aunt had been in the Delpont family for twenty-five years, and nt one time her first cousin had been employed in the White House.

When Joe Porter had first mentioned marriage to Cornelia Allen she had hesitated although she did love him.

"Well, I'll never marry anybody else," he vowed. "You're as pretty as a little pictnre and your folks are all honest and fine people, and I love you and I believe you love me, too. Isn't that reason enough why we should get married?"

Cornelia said nothing for a moment, she merely permitted him to keep his arm around her, which was a sort of consent, he considered, since she never had done this before. She did love him, she knew she did.

"But, Joe, I wanted to go up in my work—get to he ladies' maid to somehody hig in society," she protested, and her dark eyes so close to his looked troubled, almost tragic.

"Thnt don't matter," he answered. "They'll never love you like I do, honey, so you'd hetter tnke me."

It was a wrench to give up her ambition, but at last she consented nnd once done she gave herself up entirely to her new plans in life, and as the days sped by she grew happier and happier.

She was in the midst of doing her work on the fifth floor one dny when she received a summons to go to the office of Mr. Williams, the manager, at once. Puzzled, she hurried down and found her employer talking to a stranger whom she supposed to be a guest. He secmed disturhed ahout something and would scarcely let Mr. Williams speak, hut with a gesture of the hand the manager silenced him nnd addressed the maid himself.

"Cornelia, did you clean up 516 this morning," he asked.

"Yes," answered the girl, her face suddenly paling. "Why? What's the matter?"

"You know what's the matter," broke in the guest.

"I don't!" protested the girl on the verge of tenrs.

"Did you let anyone else in the room while you were cleaning it? I mean, did any of the other maids come in?" continued the manager.

"No, sir, I was the only one in and I locked the door as soon as I had finished."

"Well, you have my wallet, then, with $116 in it," broke in the guest angrily, "because I left it under my pillow and forgot to take it downtown when I left this morning. As soon as I missed it I rushed back to my room and it was gone. You may both come up and look."

Together the three took the elevator to the fifth floor and hurried down the long, red-carpeted corridor to room 516. After a thorough search they were forced to give it up. The wallet was not under the mattress nor on the floor beneath the bed. In fact, it was npparently nowhere.

"Go on to the servants' quarters," ordered the manager harshly, and Cornelia fled out of the room. But she did not go to the servants' quarters, instead she sought out Joe and told him of her undeserved disgrace.

"Kid, you never did it," he declared, holding her close. "And I'll hreak nnybody's face who comes here saying you did."

"I'm so g-glad you still b-helieve in me," Cornelia said, clinging to him. "You're the only one thnt d-does. I'll be nshamed to look at anybody around here after it gets out because most of 'em'll think I did steal it—going to be married and everything, they'll think I wanted it to huy clothes with. Oh, Joe, I'm so wretched." And again she burst into tears. "You'll be disgraced if you marry me hecause there's lots'll always helieve I did it."

"They'll not either. They know you too well."

But Joe was wrong. By noon the news had seeped out and at lunch Cornelia could not eat, for the suspicious glances that were shot in her direction and whispered mumblings that went on among the servants.

The next morning the manager sent for her again and she was horrified to see the same guest sitting there at the side of the desk. This time Mr. Williams let the other man do the talking.

"Here's a twenty for you," he said. "I fonnd my wallet. I'd slipped it inside the inner pillow slip when I thought I was just putting it under my pillow. As soon as I lay down last night I felt it under my head. Sorry it happened."

"I don't want your twenty dollars," saind Cornelia, with the dignity of a princess, "but I'm glad you found your purse. All I want is that you or Mr. Williams tell the servants at dinner today that I did not take it."

"Be glad to," said the manager warmly.

Once out of the office, she shed her dignity like a clonk and rushed out to find the chef. After she had told him she gave him a little sudden hug.

"I'll always l-love you a little more for l-elieving in me so hard," she said.

"Then it was lucky for me it happened," he laughed, and hecnuse she was so happy she had a little glad cry on his shoulder.

THE SPLENDOR OF THE CROSS

From An Oakland Pulpit

Far be it from me to glory save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ through which the world hath been crucified unto me, and I unto the world.—Galatians 6:14.

Journeying toward the East, in the early morning, across Flanders' fields redolent with the fragrance of flowers and the rosemary of remembrance and the lingering incense of sacrifice, the traveler beholds before him vast acres blossoming with crosses, countless crosses, silhoutted blackly against the blushing splendor of the dawn.

But a little later, looking back upon that sorrowful scene, the traveler sees those dark crosses gilded and glorified by the rays of the rising sun. What a difference it sometimes makes to look at a dark and perplexing problem from a new and different point of view! And if the traveler be of thoughtful mood the experience may be for him a parable of hope, suggesting that even so the piteous sacrifices of war may yet, in the Providence of God, be glorified in the splendor of the new brotherhood of man which they made possible.

We have been gazing upon the Cross of Christ, as we have been journeying through the somber Lenten season. It has been looming darkly before us, growing in its mysterious majesty as we approached closer and closer to it; growing in its solemn significance as we meditated upon it.

Our journey has brought us through the Holy Week, past Good Friday, to the splendor of Easter revelation. Now, from our point of view, let us look back upon the Cross and see sombre shadows illuminated by the triumphant light streaming forth from the empty tomb where the angels, clothed in shining garments, announce, "He is not here, He is risen!"

For it is the glory of the resurrection that transfigures the cross, changing the symbol of defent into the sign of victory, changing the ugly instrument of torture into a beautiful fount of joy and blessing, changing the shadow of death into the splendor of life eternal.

May we unite our voices with St. Paul in his cry of ecstasy:

Far be it from me to glory save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ through which the world hath been crucified unto me, and I unto the world.

Truly it is vain for us to exult in the Cross of Christ unless we allow it to work its transforming miracle of grace in our heart and mind and character—unless the old sinful self is crucified with Christ, that a new self, born from above, may be raised with Christ to walk with him in newness of life. Truly Christ died and rose again in vain, unless we share the fellowship of His sufferings that we may be partakers of His glorious resurrection—being raised by divine grace from the tomb of selfishness, malice, envy, jealousy and all uncleanness, to live the new life of righteousness, mercy and truth—faith, hope and charity—which is the eternal life in the midst of time.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

It goes without saying that the past two and a half years have been anything but pleasant for at least ninety-eight per cent of the American people when we examine this thirty month period from the financial standpoint. Practically everyone has taken a loss of some sort or other. As one man put it to the writer the other day: "If you had anything in 1929 and still have it, then you have lost Money." This is a broad statement but one which is pretty generally true. Real estate, securities, commodities, all have shrunk in value during the past three years.

And so, if we fail to give the matter a sufficient amount of philosophical thought, we are apt to come to the conclusion that our lot, in these trying days of 1932, is about the hardest of any in the history of the country. Of course this is pessimistic exaggregation. The country has safely gone through a number of depressions, some of them as bad as the one we are now going through. Moreover our method of living, and our standards of living are so high today, that the comforts and conveniences of the average man, on a small salary, would have appealed to the rich as luxuries a few generations ago, even if they had been obtainable at any price. The lighting and heating of our homes, our fine highways and hospitals, are a few of the many examples.

Those of us who cannot be convinced that times have ever been harder in the United States than at present should study the life and writing of George Washington, whose bicentennial birth year is now being observed. The terrible handicaps he had to overcome make our present day difficulties seem trifling. Some time ago Alexander Brin, chairman of the Program Committee of the Massachusetts George Washington Bicentennial Commission, in an address summed up some of the hardships which the founder of the nation had to undergo. Some of the things worth repeating, in Mr. Brin's address, follow. Read them and then thank fortune that your lot is not as hard as was that of George Washington himself:

"A knowledge of the trials and tribulations of Washington will make Americans realize the folly of undervaluing our own country, of growing impatient with American progress and of losing confidence in American's destiny. Washington's courageous and steadfast devotion against unexampled odds, his belief in the possibilities of the American Republic, is a challenge to us today.

"From Washington's own diary and letters we learn that in the years when he led his country in the battle for independence, that even the troops under his command were dispirited and dissatisfied and in some cases were in mutiny; that the currency issued by the Congress had lost all its value; that there were no funds with which to pay the soldiers; that the army was lacking in food supplies, ammunition and transportation facilities. In the early spring of 1781 the Continental currency was worth only a fraction of its face value. For example, a $500 bill was worth but one cent. One had to pay $75 for a simple breakfast. In May of the same year this currency ceased to have any value. No one would accept as payment any note or bond issued by authority of Congress. Even the troops would accept nothing except gold or silver, and that could be had only on the credit of individuals. The government could get nothing on its credit. Within a month before the surrender at Yorktown, Congress was advised that if provisions were not immediately forthcoming it would be necessary to disband the whole army. It is in times like these that Washington's greatness was tested to the limit.

"Only a passionate rekindling of the spirit of America as Washington understood it can give power to the Western Republic as the champion of that which is worthy in human life. As the guide and preceptor of a floundering world, we are the only abiding hope of the modern world, the bulwark of human progress, the most perfect embodiment of political idealism that this earth has known."

WASHINGTON ROCKS AND JUMONVILLE'S GRAVE IS PROPOSED AS SHRINE

Harvard Historian Secures Title to 3.6-Acre Tract East of Uniontown on Braddock's Trail and Will Establish a Park

TO MARK 20 ENCAMPMENTS

Connellsville, Pa., April 6—The reconstruction and dedication of Fort Necessity as a national shrine on July 3 and 4, memorializing George Washington, has drawn the attention of historians anew to the historic spots in Fayette county which had association with his early career as a soldier. None have been more interested, nore are more fully qualified by original research and investigation of these events, than Professor John Kennedy Lacock, conceded to be the greatest authority on Braddock's Road.

He has been in this community for almost a week continuing his studies and has reached the conclusion that the scene of Washington's skirmish with the French under Jumonville is as deserving to be marked as the site of Fort Necessity. It was in this daybreak encounter between Washington's force of 40 and Jumonville's 33, in the wildness of the rocky mountain country near Dunbar's Camp, that the first shot of the French and Indian War was actually fired. Historically it has a significance that makes it truly one of the most sacred shrines of the nation as well as possessing great natural beauty.

In giving expression to his interest and as a means of starting a movement to preserve this spot for future generations. Professor Lacock today secured title to 3.6 acres of ground including Washington Rocks and Jumonville's Grave. Already he has secured the endorsement of his plans and has assurance of backing that will result in creating the ground into a park and forever set it aside as historic ground. The Phalanx Fraternity of Connellsville will do the preliminary work of clearing the ground and provide means of access to it.

Professor Lacock, A. B., A. M., a graduate of Washington and Jefferson College and also of Harvard University, is a native of Washington county, Pennsylvania, but has made his home for a number of years in Boston, Massachusetts.He is president of the Boston School of Expression and Dramatic Art, and likewise president of the National Associated Studios of Music. He has contributed much to the history of Western Pennsylvania.

During the summers of 1908 and 1909, he conducted on foot expeditions over the old Washington-Braddock Road with a view to relocating and preserving to posterity this historic highway. During the summer months of 1910, 1911 and 1912 he conducted similar expeditions over the Forbes Road (1758) with a similar purpose in view. He is unquestionably the world's greatest authority on Braddock's Road. This summer he is conducting a party of 100 over the Washington-Braddock Road, and plans to finish the trip in order to be present at the exercises to be held at Fort Necessity July 3 and 4. There is perhaps no other person who knows so much about these historic highways. He is a storehouse of knowledge, a most accurate scholar, a courteous and interesting gentleman.

Twenty-five years ago, in company with Professor Albert Bushnell Hart, professor emeritus of government in Harvard University, and historian of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission, he drove over the old National Road from Cumberland, Md., to Wheeling, W. Va. These gentlemen, although they have made their homes in the east for many years are much interested in the events connected with the early history of Pennsylvania. Professor Hart and Professor Lacock have made a preliminary survey of the old Indian Trail from Fort Le Boeuf, now Waterford, Pa., over which Washington and Christopher Gist journeyed in 1753 when they made a demand upon the French commander at Fort LeBoeuf (Waterford, Pa.) to withdraw from the territory, which Virginia claimed.

The object of this research is to relocate and cause to be suitably marked the route on this side of the Alleghenies. Dr. Hart, on account of serious illness in his family, was unable to join Professor Lacock last week. With the aid of a warrantee survey map which is being made at Harrisburg, Washington's, Gist's and other journals, travelers' accounts, maps, a study of the road on the ground, it is believed that every one of the encampments of Washington can be definitely and accurately established. Professor Lacock said that he hoped that it might be possible for Professor Hart and himself to continue their investigations on the ground within the next three weeks. Great interest has been shown in the work and labors of these trained experts.

For almost 25 years Professor Lacock has given more or less attention to the history of Braddock's Road and the Forbes Road, the battle of Great Meadows and the skirmish at Washington's Rocks, where Washington and the Half King took position in their attack on Jumonville in what proved to be the initial battle of the French and Indian War. Francis Parkman, the historian, tersely puts it, "This obscure skirmish began the war that set the world on fire." Some years ago a tablet or marker was erected at this spot which bears the following inscription:

"Here lie the mortal remains of N. Coulon De Jumonville, who in command of a company of 33 regulars, were surprised and killed in an engagement with Major George Washington in command of a company of 40 provincial troops and Tennacharison, the Half King, in command of a company of friendly Indians, on May 28, 1754. This action was the first conflict at arms between the French and English for supremacy in the Mississippi Valley."

In this engagement out of the 33 French troops, 10 men were killed, including Jumonville; one wounded, La Force, Droullion and 17 others were made prisoners. Washington had one killed and two or three wounded.

There is scarcely a spot in America that historically is of greater significance than the event and outcome of this skirmish at Washington Rocks. It is an ideal spot for an historic shrine. It is perhaps due to the fact that this battle ground is located in a woooded tract some 75 rods from a township road and 50 rods from Braddock's Road on Laurel Hill, that it has not received the consideration its importance deserves.

Professor Lacock has been most anxious, as a part of the United States George Washington Celebration, to commemorate the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington, that something should be done worthy of this important event and spot in our nation's history. In his enthusiastic endeavors to work out a plan to suitably commemorate this memorable event he has received the endorsement of General Richard Coulter, Attorney John N. Bouchard, of Greensburg; Clay Lynch, general superintendent of the H. C. Frick Coke Company; McClelland Leonard, of Uniontown, who is the active spirit in developing the General Braddock Park Memorial Association; John L. Gans, editor of The Courier; Dr. Charles F. Hewitt, of Boston, and many others.

The Fayette-Westmoreland branch of the Pennsylvania Historical Society has assured Professor Lacock that they would be only too pleased to furnish a suitable bronze tablet for any suitable monument that might be erected. The Pennsylvania Historical Society has likewise promised to help in the marking of the Washington-Braddock Road. Professor Lacock stated that Professor Hart and himself long ago planned to visit this spot together in the not distant future.

Last week Professor Lacock visited it and made the acquaintance of the owner of the site in the person of Samuel Rosenik. He stated that he had owned the property for upwards of 20 years and that no promising move had ever been made to suitably take over and develop it.

One can scarcely conceive of a more picturesque and beautiful place. The ledge of rocks on which Washington and the Half King took position, 20 feet in height and extending over 200 feet in length, 100 feet from which flows a picturesque stream of water, and some 300 feet away a magnificent spring of water, tempted Professor Lacock to such an extent that today he received a deed from its owner for nearly four acres of land in trust.

Plans will be worked out immediately to suitably beautify this landmark and otherwise embellish it. The Phalanx Fraternity of Connellsville and their associates will at once clear the grounds and open a road one rod wide to the entrance of this proposed park. It is this organization that has been actively engaged for weeks clearing the Braddock Road across Laurel Ridge as their part of the patriotic movements incident to the events in connection with the Bicentennial Celebration this year of him who was "first in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of his countrymen." They have almost the entire road cleared across the Laurel Ridge Mountain. The Boy Scouts and other historic and patriotic groups have assured Professor Lacock that the entire Washington-Braddock Road from Cumberland, Md., to Braddock, Pa., will be cleared of underbrush so that when his party starts from Cumberland on July 2 next, he will not have to make his way encountering the difficulties he met with in his two previous expeditions over this historic highway.

Arrangements are being made to mark all the 20 encampments of Braddock's Army over this route in 1755, as well as the trail over which Washington and Gist traveled in the then "howling wilderness" in 1753 to the French forts.

A word about Samuel Rosenik, from whom Professor Lacock purchased the site of Washington's Rocks and the site of Jumonville's Grave. He was born in Saxony, Germany. He emigrated to America in 1890, and upon his arrival in America started to work for the H. C. Frick Coke Company, by whom he was employed for 20 years. In 1912 he purchased the farm consisting of 141 acres, containing Washington's Rock and Jumonville's Grave. He told Professor Lacock that he had made up his mind that if no one made any effort to take any interest in the historic spot located on his farm, he himself intended at his own expense to erect a flag-pole and cause a flag to fly over this shrine as his part to do honor to the "Father of His Country."

This statement stirred the blood of the Bostonian to the boiling point, who has just recently brought out a most attractive historic book profusely illustrated, entitled, "The Spirit of '76," which is an authentic history of the famous painting bearing this title.

"Why not some patriotic organization present a flag and pole?" asks Professor Lacock. "Here is a great opportunity to do a most important and worthy job well."

MT. LAKE PARK

Loch Lynn Postoffice

It seems as though we unintentionally balled things up last week in regard to the item about the attempt to locate a separate postoffice in Loch Lynn as against the office just across the tracks. We mentioned the names of John Ream, Buddy Weeks, Charlie Martin and Ben Harvey, not with any idea of committing them in favor of the proposition, but simply as an illustration of the type of solid citizens whom we would dislike to oppose in any effort sponsored by Loch Lynn. Unfortunately we were not clear in our English and our good intentions went haywire. We here bend the knee of humble apology to our good and true friends.

However, we understand the proponents of the proposition are still making the effort to land a postoffice, but the house across the way is divided against itself and the brethren are not all of one accord. It is intimated that some of them will be satisfied if free delivery service can be secured. If they succeed in getting Uncle Sam to increase his deficit even to that small extent we will take off our hats to Mayor Hardesty.

Personally (and without the sanction in thus saying of this paper or anyone else) we are committed to the idea that both villages should operate under one charter.

Now we hope we have not started any fireworks and that we will not have to apologize for that observation.

It is a fact, however, that the success of Mountain Lake Park is the success of Loch Lynn.

New Voting Precinct

While we have not been able to confirm the report, yet it is current that a new election precinct has been created in Election District No. 7 with the voting place in Loch Lynn.

While our opinion may be of little value we have always thought, and still think that the voting place should be located in the Park. However, if it has been decided otherwise, there is no great kick coming.

New Councilman Selected

At the last meeting of the Town Council of the Park, John Hipsley was elected to fill the vacancy in that body caused by the resignation and subsequent elevation to the office of Mayor of Mr. F. R. Utterback. There were two names presented to the council. Gay Hayden, who was high man of the defeated candidates at the last August election, and Mr. Hipsley. On a call of the members of council, Messrs. Camden, Schrock and Schooley voted for Hipsley and Mr. Elliott cast his ballot for Mr. Hayden, whom he had placed in nomination. Hipsley was consequently declared elected. As the latter was bailiff, his election to the council will necessitate the appointment of some one to that office in his place.

The Poultry Ordinance

It may be well to call the attention of poultry owners that under the town ordinances it is unlawful to permit chickens to run at large or to trespass on the property of another, between the first day of May and the first day of October. Many residents are beginning to get their flower beds in shape for planting and complaints are already being lodged with the town authorities.

Streets in Good Condition

The streets and roads of the Park are in fine condition for this time of year. There are a few stretches, however, that need grading and repairing in order to put them in good trim for the summer.

Church Services

Services in the M. E. church on the 10th inst. will be as follows: Church school at 10:00 a. m.; morning worship at 11:00 a. m., with the sermon theme "The Lost Christ." At 3:00 p. m. President Roy McCuskey, D.D., of West Virginia Wesleyan College, at Buckhannon, will preach. This service will take the place of the regular evening worship.

THE MARYLAND BIBLE SOCIETY'S CORNER

"The Word of Our God Shall Stand Forever"

"The Word of Our God Shall Stand Forever"

Dr. James McHenry, the second president of the Baltimore Bible Society, filled a very large place in the affairs of the young nation for whose establishment he was in no small measure responsible. He not only fought through the Revolutionary War as a members of General Washington's staff, but later served as Secretary of War in Washington's cabinet. It was due to representations made by him that the old fort which bears his name, was built for the defense of Baltimore, in the first place as a protection from the French, who were on the point of declaring war against the United States at the close of the 19th century.

America can never forget that it was over this old fort that the star spangled banner waved, while Francis Scott Key strained to catch a glimpse of its starry folds from the deck of a British man o'war. He thus gave to immortal verse the anguished questioning of his soul:

"Oh, say can you see, by the dawn's early light
What so proudly we hailed at the twilight's last gleaming,
Whose broad stripes and bright stars, through the perilous fight,
O'er the ramparts we watched, were so galantly streaming?
And the rockets' red glare,
The bombs bursting in air,
Gave proof through the night
That our flag was still there.
Oh, say, does that star spangled banner yet wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave?

Had not Dr. McHenry's knowledge of military strategy and his prescience of impending danger prompted the building of that fort, the story of the bombardment of Baltimore by the British in 1841 might have been vastly different.

Dr. McHenry's statesmanship in handling the affairs of the Baltimore Bible Society is no less apparent than in his wise management of cabinet matters. He was deeply concerned lest the name "Baltimore Bible Society" might seem to limit the activities of the organization, that he carefully stated in a public address his conviction upon that subject. Said he, "We should fail in respect to, and belie our confidence in the rest of our fellow citizens, did we confine this appeal (for Bible distribution) to the limits of Baltimore. We think we can rely on the character of the State, and flatter ourselves that tenderness and humanity will be equally manifested, wherever the knowledge of our undertaking shall reach. There are within its boundaries alone, multitudes of poor and indigent persons who are without Bibles. Such subjects are found in every country where there are men. We all, therefore, upon the rich and all whose circumstances admit of their promoting this undertaking; in the words of Moses addressed to the Israelites, 'open thy hand unto thy brother, to the poor, and to the needy, in thy land.' Open thy hand to procure for thy poor and needy, the only books which can teach them patience and resignation, and enable them to envisage without envy or heartburning, the various bounties of the creation enjoyed by others, while they are doomed to linger out life in labour, pain and sorrow." And all this—not because this patriot believed with Karl Marx that religion is the opinion of the peaple, but rather the life of God in the soul of man.

JUST think what a nuisance it would be to buy gas—carry it home—and store it until ready for use.

In the first place, you would have to purchase an air-tight container, approximately 10 feet long, 10 feet wide and 10 feet deep to hold only 1,000 cubic feet of gas and that quantity would not last you very long. You would have to refill the container at least three or four times a month.

In addition, you would have to purchase a number of intricate pressure and relief valves, and keep them regulated in order to have an even gas flame at all times in the range, water heater and other appliances.

You would have to do all this and more in order to be able to burn gas in your home. Yes, it would be a nuisance, but contrast this with the service supplied by your gas company. The gas is piped right into your home, kept at the proper pressure at all times and all you have to do is turn the handle of your gas range, and presto, you have immediately the service of the most wonderful fuel known to mankind.

Gas is the modern fuel, it is brought right into your home in unlimited quantity, the supply of which is assured by the vast network of gas lines from the world's largest gas producing area.

Gas is clean, convenient and automatically controlled. There is no waste. Pay for it after you use it—not before—and the cost is very small.

VALUE OF HOME HYGIENE CLASSES TOLD BY CLARKE

Health Officer Makes Address Before Meeting of National Red Cross Association

NINE CLASSES IN COUNTY

"The value of home hygiene classes in Rural Communities," was the subject of an address by Dr. George E. Clarke, health officer, which was delivered before the meeting of the National Red Cross convention in Washington, D. C., on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. The talk was presented on Monday afternoon.

Mrs. J. F. Fahey and Miss Helen Treacy, county nurses, also attended the sessions. The American Red Cross sponsors the home hygiene classes such as are being conducted in the county under the auspices of the county health department in nine communities, Grantsville, Friendsville, Oakland, Crellin, Deer Park, Vindex, Kltzmiller, Loch Lynn, and Sunnyside.

His address follows:

The problem of rural health administration is by no means new. It was recognized in the early history of the United States. Probably the first organized effort to control communicable disease was early in the fifteenth century when certain seaports of Europe were quarantined to prevent the entrance of typhus fever and plague. Early in the history of the United States the larger cities such as Boston, Philadelphia and New York established Boards of Health to prevent the spread of smallpox, yellow fever, typhus fever, etc. Their problem was merely to prevent its spread. As the science of medicine progressed and we learned the cause of disease the departments took on the added duty of preventing their occurrence. Today we, as health officials, realize that we must go even farther and educate the people in health measures. We realize that community health is an individual problem and that each and every individual must be taught to wage an offensive war on man's age-long enemies—dirt, disease, and ignorance. The duties of a county health unit are to control communicable disease, prevention of tuberculosis, maternal and infant hygiene, school service, V. D. control, sanitation, milk and food inspection and education.

In years gone by health practice was so colored by tradition, by superstition, and half truths that it was partly scientific practice and partly guess work. Infected materials were burned and the ashes thrown to the winds to blow the infection away. Our attempt now is to educate the people to have as little infected material as possible. How better can this education program be carried out than by organizing small groups of women in the several communities over a county and outlining to them the essentials of home hygiene, personal hygiene and the care of the sick?

Garrett county, Maryland, has a population of 19,000, almost entirely rural. The largest town in the county is Oakland with a population of 1600, with numerous other smaller villages throughout the county. The county has an area of 668 square miles. For this large area we have two nurses to carry on our work. In spite of this I have considered Home Hygiene classes of such importance that one nurse devotes her afternoons end evenings to nine classes over the county. In most classes we were able to interest the class of women who otherwise would get no such training. The nine classes have a total enrollment of 140 active members.

It is an invaluable aid not only to the nurses but to the health officer to have one or more individuals in a community who has had some training or

Two-teacher schools of the county were second among the other counties of the State with a percentage of 96.5, while the one-teacher schools also held second place in their division with 92.5.

Graded schools were fourth with 92.8, and Garrett county high schools ranked thirteenth among the rest of the schools of the State with 93.5 per cent.

TO KEEP DEEP CREEK FREE OF CONTAMINATION IS AIM

Dr. Clarke, Health Officer, Has Written Property Owners

Pointing out the extreme danger to health if Deep Creek Lake should be contaminated, Dr. George E. Clarke, health officer, this week sent out letters to every property owner along the lake, advising ways and means of taking care of all sewerage.

The letter asks that each individual who has a cottage or home around the lake cooperate with the health officer in taking such precautions as will insure healthy surroundings and avoid rapid depreciation of the value of his property.

"We want to cooperate with you in keeping contamination out of this lake," Dr. Clarke states, "and we can give you the benefit of years of experience in such instances through our sanitary engineers. Early this spring it is my intention to make a complete survey of the property around the lake to determine the type of sewerage disposal now in use."

Dr. Clarke states that he has received a number of replies to his letter from property owners who are only too glad to cooperate in this respect.

Promoters Claim Tucker County Assay is High In Gold

Gold found at Porterwood, 2 miles from Parsons, Tucker county, West Va., is said to assay $156.80 per ton, according to Ray V. Wilson, secretary-treasurer of the Tucker County Mining and Development Company, which has been formed to operate the property. Certified copies of analysis made in the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratories have been posted in public places in the town of Parsons.

Slightly more than eight ounces of pure gold were found to the ton, the test revealed, which at the current price of $20 per ounce assures the development of the property. Six hundred acres have been leased by the company.

A recovering plant, employing approximately 50 men, will be erected, it is said, and about $30,000 worth of stock will be issued to cover the cost of the plant. It will be located on an island, half a mile from the Western Maryland Railway.

Clayton Phillips discovered the gold-bearing rock about 35 years ago while digging ginseng. His friends did not believe it, until in recent months his faith was shared by his brothers.

O. H. S. DRAMATIC CLUB TO PRESENT UNIQUE SHOW

Three One-Act Plays Chosen for Entertainment on April 22

The Dramatic club of Oakland High school will present a new type of program on Friday, April 22, at the high school auditorium, according to Miss Margaret Kochenderfer, a member of the faculty.

Three one-act plays have been selected for the entertainment. "Fix-Ins," by Paul Greene, is a Carolina folk play, a tragedy of a Carolina tenant woman who is mistreated by her husband, and he does nothing to make conditions more pleasant. This brute-like character is portrayed by Robert Bowen. Willard Gibson is the rough, tobacco-chewing, landlord. Mary Lynn McIntire is the hard working slave wife of Robert Bowen.

"The Maker of Dreams," is a fantasy by Oliphant Down. This drama tells of the quest of Pierrot (James Treacy) for the ideal girl. He is dissatisfied with life and goes in search of his dream sweetheart. Lois Ross is desperately in love with Pierrot and becomes miserable when she no longer is capable of making him happy. The Maker of Dreams, who is Philip Bowman, plays the part of Cupid and succeeds in making them live "happily ever after."

A sparkling comedy of domestic life is "Thursday Evening," Katherine Wooddell insists on quarreling with her husband, Lewis Jones. Though Lewis is slow to anger he succeeds in being nasty enough to cause his wife to weep. The mothers-in-law, Rebecca Browning and Hazel Gates, defend their daughter and son and finally mend all their difficulties.

The night show on April 22 will begin at 8:15 and admission will be 15 and 35 cents. Matinee for students in the afternoon will be 15 cents.

Sealed proposals for building one section of State Highway along the Finzel road from the National Pike to the Pennsylvania State line, a distance of 3.28 miles (concrete) will be received by the State Roads commission until April 26, according to an advertisement appearing in The Republican today.

This will make three hard-surfaced roads leading northward from the National Highway into Somerset county, Pa., within a comparatively short distance of each other. The route, it is said, will avoid the mountains on the National Highway between Grantsville and Frostburg and will shorten the distance between Meyersdale and Cumberland about ten miles.

MORE PLACES WANT DATE FOR COMMUNITY SINGING

Three Held Last Week; Program Will Be Published Soon

Under the leadership of John H. Carter, county agent, Mountain Lake Institute community meetings were held last week in three parts of the county—at Accident on Wednesday, April 6; at Pleasant Valley on April 7, and at Grantsville on April 8, in the Holmes and Wallace studios.

At these meetings a program of community singing was carried out and rehearsals begun on selections which are to be used at the Fort Necessity dedication in July and at the Somerset pageant later in the summer or early fall.

Requests have come in for additional meetings at Hoyes, Bittinger, Kitzmiller and Kempton and these points will be given dates as rapidly as possible, according to I. S. Middaugh, director of the Institute. The Institute program is being presented at each of these meetings by Mr. Middaugh and the foundation laid for the summer gatherings at the Park.

The preliminary program for the summer will be published soon. A meeting of the board of directors of Extension Work, including the local extension force, has been called by Dr. T. B. Third Storm of Year Strikes Garrett County

King winter struck Oakland and Garrett county on Tuesday morning, for the third time this year, but was lenient compared with the two storms during March.

While only a few inches of snow fell, the driving wind all but closed the highways with high drifts. The plows of the State roads commission were kept busy late Tuesday night and Wednesday morning in keeping the roads open to traffic.

The thermometer remained slightly below freezing until this morning when the snow began to disappear rapidly under the burning rays of Old Sol.

TO HONOR OCTOGENARIANS AT MT. LAKE THIS YEAR

Miss Huff, Music Director, Will Enroll Members in County Sending in Names and Ages

FIRST STARTED IN W. VA.

In one of the Sunday programs during the summer at Mountain Lake Park, those who have sung the "song of life" for 80 years or longer throughout the Allegheny Tablelands will be honored, and to that end, everyone who has the honor and distinction of being that "young" is being invited to send in his or her name to Miss Sara B. Huff, music director of Mt. Lake Institute, Mt. Lake Park, so that she may enroll them as members in the Octogenarian club.

In sending in ones name, Miss Huff asks that the date of birth and where born should be given along with any interesting information in regard to the person. "We are pleased to have the member write his or her own letter," Miss Huff stated, "as this was done in the West Virginia chapter and we found that in the 'little old log school house' of former days, they certainly knew how to teach penmanship."

"The thought is that on the Octogenarian Society Day, the music will be led by that group in Garrett county. J. A. Enlow, of Mt. Lake Park, Abel Browning and his brother Tom Browning, are honorary members of the West Virginia chapter and we already enroll them as the first members in the Garrett county chapter. We ask that they send in their names, date of birth, and any interesting facts about themselves.

"We are particularly eager to find what songs they like," Miss Huff emphasized.

Several states have written in for information since the Octogenarian club plan was started in Morgantown during Farm and Home Week there last Winter. A banquet was given at this time, at which Mr. Enlow was present.

The list of those belonging to the Garrett county chapter will be published in The Republican from time to time along with interesting things about the members. The necessary information may also be sent to John H. Carter, county agent, or Miss Margaret K. Burtis, home demonstration agent, who will turn it over to Miss Huff.

Seventeen Applications Are Received For Seed Loans

Seventeen applications for loans for the purchase of seed and fertilizer have been turned in to John H. Carter, county agent, during the past week.

These loans are made available through the United States department of Agriculture and as security for the loans the government requires a first mortgage on the 1932 crop produced by the borrowers.

The applications, after having been passed by the local committee, will be sent to Washington for final approval before the loan can be made.

No applications will be received at the county agent's office after April 25, Mr. Carter stated.

Harvey and Ream Store at Loch Lynn Again Robbed

For the second time this year the store of Harvey and Ream, Loch Lynn Heights, was robbed on Sunday evening, the culprits getting away with some shirts and other merchandise. No groceries were taken.

Entrance to the building was effected through a rear window. The Mayor and Town council of Loch Lynn has offered a reward of $25 for information leading to the arrest of the guilty parties.

Herrington School House Is Robbed

Two unknown persons broke into the Herrington Manor school house last week-end and stole the school victrola, victrola records, pencil sharpener and other articles, valued at approximately $50, according to Miss Katherine T. Foley, teacher of the school.

Muddy tracks of two persons were plainly visible about the building. Entrance was gained by forcing the door leading into the school room. The loss was not discovered until Monday morning and the indenty of the thieves is not known.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Conquering Power of Faith.

I. His Separation (v. 1).

The new era inaugurated with Noah as head ended in a colossal failure in the impious attempt of man on the plains of Shinar to set himself free from God's government. In view of this failure, God turned aside from the race as such and called Abram and placed him at the head of a new nation which he would train for himself. This call involved

1. A great sacrifice. It meant the severance of three ties:

a. His country in the widest range of his affections.

b. His place of birth and kindred which comes still closer to his heart.

c. His father's house as the inmost circle of all tender emotions. All these must be cast off before the Lord could get him into the place of blessing. This is a call that is much needed today. The Lord is continually saying, "Come ye out from among them" (II Cor. 6:16-18).

2. The performance of heroic tasks. For Abram to go into a strange land and take possession of it, for God called for heroism. The life of separation from the world costs much, but it is the only way to have God's favor.

II. God's Promise to Abram (vv. 2-3).

The demand for separation was followed by a seven-fold promise—a gracious engagement on God's part to communicate unmerited favors and confer blessings upon him.

1. "I will make of thee a great nation" (v. 2). This was fulfilled in a natural way in the Jewish nation and in Ishmael (Gen. 17:20); also in a spiritual seed embracing both Jews and Gentiles (Gal. 3:7, 8).

2. "I will bless thee" (v. 2). This was fulfilled.

a. Temporally (Gen. 13:14-17; 24:35). Abram was enriched with lands, cattle, silver and gold.

b. Spiritually (Gen. 15:6; John 8:56). He was freely justified on the grounds of his faith. The righteousness of Christ was imputed unto him, also he had the exalted privilege of talking face to face with the Lord.

3. "And make thy name great" (v. 2). Going out from his father's house, he himself was to have a great name. He was to be the head of a new house which would be venerated far and wide. He is known as the "friend of God" (James 2:23).

4. "Thou shalt be a blessing" (v. 2). We now pass from the lower to the higher phase of the promise. It was a great thing to be thus honored and blessed by God, but to be the medium of blessing to others was greater still.

5. "I will bless them that bless thee" (v. 3.) Abram and the nation which came forth from his loins became the very touchstone of God. Since he is God's friend, he regards acts performed toward him as toward himself. This has been strikingly exemplified in all ages since. The nations that have used the Jews well have been blessed.

6. "And curse him that curseth thee" (v. 3). The nations which have turned against Abram and the nation of which he was head have never prospered. While God at times used the surrounding nations as scourges for his people, he in turn punished them for it.

7. "And in thee shall all the families of the earth be blessed" (v. 3). This has been fulfilled in a. The Jewish nation being made the repository of the oracles of God. Through them the Bible has been given to the world.

b. The bringing of the Redeemer into the world. Thus they became the channel through which God's richest Gift came into the world.

It will be further fulfilled in

c. A future time when Jews shall be God's missionaries in carrying the good tidings to the ends of the earth.

III. Abram's Obedience to God (vv. 4-8).

Abram at once departed out of his own land. He proved his faith by his obedience. He went out not knowing whither he went. He was a typical believer. He renounced indulgence and idolatry. He separated himself for a testimony by his altars of witness. He entered into Canaan and accepted a pilgrim life.

The Long, Long Trail

(Contributed by Lester C. Yutzy, one of the sure shots of Crellin, and I don't know where he got it.)

Man is of a few days and full of trouble. He laboreth all the days of his youth to pay for gasoline chariot, and when at last the task is finished, lo, the thing is junk and he needeth another.

He planteth cotton in the earth and tilleth it diligently, he and his servants, and his asses, and when the harvest is gathered into the barns, he oweth the landlord $8.40 more than the crop is worth.

He borroweth money of the lenders to buy pork and molasses, gasoline and oil and the interest eateth up all that he hath.

He begets sons and daughters and educateth them to smoke cigarets, and wear white collars, silk underwear and hose, and lo, they have soft hands and neither labor in the fields nor anywhere under the sun. The children of his loins are onerous and one of them becometh a lawyer and another sticketh up a filling station and maketh whoopee with the substance thereof. The wife of his bosom neckeith with a stranger and when he rebuketh her, lo, she shooteth him in the finale.

He goeth forth in the morning on the road that leadeth to the city and a jitney smiteth him so that his ribs projecteth through his epidermis. He drinketh a drink of whoopee juice to forget his sorrows and it burneth out the linings from his liver.

All the days of his life he findeth no parking place, and is tormented by traffic cops from his going forth until his coming back.

An enemy stealeth his ear, physicians removeth his inner parts and a dentist his teeth, also his bank roll. His daughters showeth their legs to strangers; his arteries harden in the evening of his life, and his heart busteth trying to keep the furious pace.

Sorrow and bill collecters followeth him all the days of his life, and when he is gathered unto his Father, the neighbors sayeth: "How much did he leave?" Lo, he hath left it all.

And his widow rejoiceth in a new coupe and maketh eyes at a young sheik that slicketh his hair and playeth a nifty game of poker.

Woe is man. And from the time of his birth to the time when the earth knoweth him no more, he laboreth for bread and catcheth the devil. Dust he was in the beginning, and now his name is mud.

From way out in the State of Washington comes a letter to Oakland and in it a paragraph or so on how much the writer enjoys this column. That's another person who is not afraid to tell the truth. WHO REMEMBERS?

HOW MANY DO YOU KNOW IN THIS WEEK'S PICTURE?

The picture this week should surely recall the days when a fair was a fair; when petty grudges were unknown; when the citizens of the whole community really got behind it and took pride in leading their horses down Second street, to be gazed upon by the elite from the seats of their high powered horseless carriages, and from those less elite, stringing along the sidewalks.

How do you like the looks of the Percheron in the lead? Not the one with the hat on.

FAIRVIEW

Miss Ida Weese will return to Washington, Thursday, where she is employed.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Burgess were guests of their duaghter, Mrs. Sicely Biggs, on Sunday.

Cosner, Mr. and Mrs. Kirk Cosner, Mr. and Mrs. William Bittinger, Mr. and Mrs. H. Cosner, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Simmons, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Harvey, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Nine, Mr. and Mrs. Keith Abernathy, Robert Cosner, Mrs. E. L. Ritchie, Mrs. A. G. PREVENTION BETTER THAN CURE, SAYS DR. LEONARD

Thorough Inspection of Teeth and Mouth Should Be Made

"Go to your family dentist at least twice a year for a thorough inspection of your mouth and teeth; then follow his advice as to the care and treatment they need," is the advice of Dr. Richard C. Leonard, Chief of the Division of Oral Hygiene of the State Department of Health, gives to all who are interested in keeping their mouths healthy. Incidentally, he said that a healthy mouth usually means that the rest of the body is in good condition.

"If you make it a rule," he continued, "to go to your dentist every six months—oftener, of course, if necessary—you give him an opportunity to detect unfavorable conditions when they are just starting and when they can be most effectively brought under control.

"So long as their teeth are apparently sound and do not ache, and so long as their mouths are fairly comfortable, most people are inclined to put off these necessary mouth inspections. Tooth decay is like other ailments to which human beings are susceptible. It is a disease, and the sooner it is treated the less damage it will do. But the teeth are not the only parts of the mouth that are subject to ill health. The soft tissues—the gums, the cheeks, tongue and palate—are subject to disease also, and need careful watching.

"All unhealthy or unusual conditions of the teeth or gums need prompt attention by a competent dentist and his instructions should be followed faithfully. The use of tooth protective foods—plenty of green, leafy vegetables, and fresh milk—are a great help in preventing and correcting unhealthy conditions of the mouth. Rigid cleanliness is another essential. Each mouth requires individual attention.

"Go to your dentist for such attention. Do not treat gum diseases or any other mouth ailments by quack remedies, no matter how highly advertised they may be. The advice of your dentist should be the first and last resort. Do not put off the examination. Prevention of any diseasc is better than its cure. That is why visits, twice a ycar at least, to your family dentist, are advisable."

Cottage cheese, while it has long been known, has been little appreciated. Easy to make, it has often been poorly made and unattractively served. In food value cottage cheese is in the class with lean meat and eggs, being more valuable than either in material that goes to build muscle, blood, and bone.

Cottage cheese in fact is a food that may form an important part of the diet, served either alone or in combination. In soup, sauce, meat-like dish, salad, or dessert, cottage cheese may be well used. As a basis for the main dish of the meal it will appeal to the appetite, and save meat.

Being made from skim milk, which now is either fed to live stock or wasted, cottage cheese makes availablc directly for human food a valuable but little apprcciatcd dairy by-product.

Spiced Cheese Pudding

Two slices stale bread, 1 cup cottage cheese, 2 cggs, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup milk, ¼ teaspoon soda, ½ cup sugar, ¾ cup seeded raisins, ½ teaspoon allspice, ¼ teaspoon mace, ¼ teaspoon cloves.

Cut the bread into cubes and place in a greased baking dish. Beat the yolks and whites of the eggs separately. Blend with yolks the milk, salt and sugar, and cheese, to which has been added the soda. Add the spices and chopped raisins and lastly fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour this mixture over the cubes of bread and bake like a custard in a moderate oven.

If dcsired the white of 1 egg may be beaten separately, sweetened with 1 tablespoon of sugar, and spread over the top of the pudding just bcfore removing from the oven.

Corn muffins or cold rice, cooked dry and flaky, may be substituted for bread.

Cottage Cheese Pie

Onc cup cottage cheese, 2-3 cup sugar, 2-3 cup milk, 2 egg yolks, beaten, 1 tablespoon meltcd fat, salt, ¼ teaspoon vanilla.

Mlx the ingredients in the prder given. Bakc the pic in one crust. Cool it slightly and covcr with meringue made by adding 2 tablespoons of sugar and ½ teaspoon of vanilla to the beaten whites of 2 eggs and brown it in a slow oven.

Creamed Potatoes and Cottage Cheese

Reheat cold diced or sliced potatoes in white sauce withcottagecheese. The best seasoning for this sauce is a slice of onion added to the milk while heating and chopped parsley and pimentoes; 2-3 cup of potatoes and 1-3 cup of sauce make a generous serving. Boiled new potatoes may be served whole with this sauce.

WHY WASHINGTON IS GREAT

The lives of great men all remind us, if we but stop to think about it, that the innermost core of greatness is an unquenchable, constant respect of a man for men. From that attitude are derived those qualities of sincerity, generosity, tolerance and unselfish loyalty that endear an individual to his generation and cause posterity to revere his memory to a degree not fully explained by gratitude for his service nor admiration for his achievement. Such a man was George Washington.

He has been labeled an aristocrat. Superficially that classification is correct, for Washington was born to a position of affluence in the landed gentry of his day. Yet nowhere in his relation with men, even those of humble stations, did he exhibit cheap ostentation of power or privilege. Rather, his was the poise of a man who, in respecting the essential personality of his fellows, tacitly expects for his own self a similar deference.

His own sacrifice in behalf of a common cause inspired in other men a loyalty to it and to his leadership. And when, after he had pursued to the point of realization the ideal voiced in the Declaration of Independence, he chivalrously sent a subordinate to receive the sword of his foe. He might have been a king, but no. He spurned the suggestion, pained that it was offered. He would not play a traitor to trust.

Certainly in George Washington is exemplified an unusual pattern of those traits which make a man truly great. And it is well to think on these things, especially at this moment when, in celebrating the Washington bicentennial, comes the easy temptation to idealize the historical person to the point that his least word becomes per se, a sacrosanct and literal guide for situations which in none but superficial aspects compare with those Washington faced.

Times change, but sincerity, generosity, tolerance, and unselfish devotion to an ideal are tokens of the human spirit that endure.

GRAFT IN BUSINESS AS WELL AS POLITICS

Before American Business too bitterly criticizes politics for graft rings, it should sweep its own doorstep, suggests John T. Flynn in the April Rotarian magazine.

"We bribe buyers to take our goods," he writes, "and we bribe superintendents to condemn our competitor's products. We bribe other men's clerks to push our merchandise. We bribe sea captains to put their ships in our dry-docks. We bribe singers to endorse our cigarettes.

"We bribe athletes to ballyhoo our golf balls, our tennis rackets, our baseball bats. We bribe actresses to endorse our cosmetics. We bribe doctors to sign their names on our drugs. We bribe chauffeurs who buy gasoline and oil and uniforms. We bribe servants who buy groceries and meats.

"And then some of us hold up our hands in horror at the corruption in politics when we hear some speakeasy owner has handed a few dollars to a prohibition agent or a cop!"

Mr. Flynn cites a case of a Tennessee textile mill in which one employee was paid $16,750 from concerns supplying materials. Not only did his employers pay that amount but, it is estimated, they lost an additional $54,000 due to the inferior materials which the bribed employee had passed. Other cases are reported by the Silk Traveller's Association and the Silk Club, wherein buyers, getting a salary of $40 and $50 a week, forced salesmen to pay tribute on every yard of goods accepted. They thus often are able to bring their salaries up to ten thousand dollars and more a year.

"The greatest curse of this thing," adds Mr. Flynn, "is that when one grafter appears in a trade he very soon makes it almost impossible for the honest man to stay in business."

And, as usual, the public foots the bill. For every $100 in business graft, Mr. Flynn estimates, there is sure to be at least $1,000 in loss somewhere which eventually is paid by the consuming public.

Business can help stamp out the bribery parasite by lobbying for state and federal laws similar to the one on New York's statute books, and then by furnishing facts to prosecuting authorities. Service clubs and associations of manufacturers and dealers have led in curbing the unfair practices and in focusing public attention on them.

The weather man has surely been against the merchant this winter. In the first place, when the weather should have been cold, it was warm, so that the merchant had difficulty in disposing of winter goods. And then when the Easter season came around and spring goods should have begun to move, the weather man gave us the winter we ought to have had back in December and January. By the way, isn't Mr. Hoover to blame for this?

OFFICIAL HOUSE CLEANING

Spring house cleaning is bad enough in America, but in some ways worse in Japan. There is really less to do over there, because there is less furniture and other junk in the house, but the job has to be done with appalling thoroughness.

There are two official cleanings a year in Japan—the Lesser and the Greater.

The Great Cleaning is now under way. Public notice is sent to every home that it must be thoroughly cleaned and put in order by a certain date. Absolutely everything removable is taken out of the house. The interior is cleaned relentlessly and so is every item it contains. The yard is a scene of devastation for a day or two. When everything is replaced, a public official appears to inspect the place and if he is satisfied, gives the housewife a certificate of cleanliness.

That would never do with us. Imagine any mere man trying to boss an American woman's housecleaning! All that men can do about this terrible ceremony in America is to keep as far away from it as possible.

FARMER TRANSPORT

Perhaps the most pronounced progress of our time has been made in the direction of improved transportation. Good roads and better and cheaper cars to use them, have caused miraculous changes in the business and social lives of the American people.

Of all classes of citizens, the farmer has been the least benefited in this. Most farmers have cars and trucks. But few farmers have access to roads that are usable at all times of the year, or that permit the greatest possible efficiency in transport at any season. The rough road, the road that becomes one long series of mud-holes in winter, the road that goes to pieces under snow or a good, hard rain—these are still characteristic, speaking generally, of rural America.

A few states—New York, California and others—have done fine work in building good farm-to-market roads. They have realized that the best main highway in the world is of no use to the farmer if his home is five or ten miles away on an impassable dirt road. They have, consequently, done much in recent years to provide secondary roads, suitable for all types of travel, and passable at all times, which connect the small village and the farm with the outside world.

These roads cost little, in comparison to the cost of high-type highways. Five thousand dollars a mile or less will provide asphaltic type surfaces which will withstand all but the heaviest traffic. A few hundred dollars a year will ordinarily keep them in first-class condition. The benefits they bring farmers and small town business men are inestimably greater than their cost. No state can afford to let its farmers languish in the mud nowadays—every state can, by careful road planning, build good secondary arteries without inflating the tax bill.

Echoes Of An Oakland Pulpit

Comrades and Foes

Friendship is one of life's greatest treasures, a source of life's sweetest raptures. Yet we must never sacrifice the truth to gain a friend; if we do we shall ultimately lose both.

It is one of the most distressingly painful experiences of life, to have to choose between loyalty to principle and the applause of our human companions. But we all have to make that choice.

Many persons in high positions of authority are being compelled to make that choice today. For a great clamor has arisen to force Congress to pay a huge cash bonus of two billion dollars. The American Legion has already gone on record against this cash bonus; but we are told that there is a monster petition signed by two million individual veterans demanding that Congress act immediately.

The leaders of this agitation realize that the payment of such a stupendous sum at this time would force America off the gold standard, and precipitate the most terrible financial catastrophe in our history. The only way such a sum could be paid would be by starting the printing presses going and running off bales of flat money, "Continental money," the kind of money that caused George Washington more distress than all the British bullets, the money which gave rise to the proverb, "It isn't worth a Continental."

I am sure that the two million men who signed the petition did not realize the real meaning of this proposition, did not realize that this measure, if passed, would wreck greater havoc than the turning loose of the armies and air fleets of Japan in the midst of our fair land. They did not realize that they were being misled by men whom the Father of our Country, were he alive, would brand as more sinster conspirators than Benedict Arnold. I am sure that every true memebr of the American Legion will protest vigorously to his Congressman against this unpatriotic scheme.

This lady expresses herself as favoring the establishment of a Post Office in Loch Lynn Heights.

To The Editor of The Republican:

The Mayor and Town Council of Loch Lynn in presenting the petition, signed by a large majority, asking for the establishment of a Post Office here has caused quite an up-rising among those opposed to the plan.

Why all the fuss? Why the attack from our friends across the railroad? Isn't it our privilege as citizens of this great commonwealth to ask for the things we feel are coming to us? Should the decision of the Mayor and council be controlled by the opinions of half a dozen citizens? Under oath these men agreed to perform the duties of their respective offices without fear, favor, partiality, or prejudice. Could they throw this petition out without violating their oath?

This has been an incorporated town for approximately thirty-six years, yet Loch Lynn is generally known as Mt. Lake Park, but it is a separate corporation. If a piece of mail happens to be addressed to Loch Lynn Heights it usually strays around for weeks before finally reaching its destination. We also consider it hazardous to cross the railroad to the present postoffice.

Ours is now a progressive town. Five years ago the main thoroughfares of the town were well nigh impassable, during the winter and spring months. Now we have several permanent roads, cement walks and many of the conveniences of large cities, namely: twenty-four hour electric service, water and sewerage systems, train and taxi services, besides a steam heated brick school building, churches, stores, Grange Milling and Supply company, and the largest industry in the county, the Mt. Airy Canning company. A post office or a delivery is coming to us and in spite of opposition the majority of our people say "make every effort to have the name Loch Lynn Heights placed in the postal guide" and we feel satisfied that the Mayor and Council will make every effort to accomplish this.

The sentiment of a few of our citizens is that we are trying to lower the class-rating of the Mt. Lake Park post office, but the opinion of the majority here is "we are now asking for what we should have had many years ago".

If our post office fails to materialize we will continue to support the present post office as we have been doing for the past thirty-six years, without complaint. Personally, I feel that we have always co-operated with our sister town and supported its efforts to the best of our ability and yet when we request something considered necessary to the progress of our home town, several of our citizens always say, "They have no right to do that, it might hurt us."

Mrs. C. E. H.
A Loch Lynn Booster.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

Ground was broken on the farm of Mrs. Phillips, midway between Oakland and Mountain Lake Park, for the erection of a modern summer hotel to be known as Oak Hall. The structure was built by T. C. Hinebaugh and contained twenty-five rooms.

Dr. Mahlon C. Hinebaugh was one of 82 candidates to receive the M. D. degree from the University of Maryland medical department.

Charles Newman left Oakland for Terra Alta where he became associted with G. A. Bolden in the publication of the Terra Alta Oracle, a weekly newspaper.

The beautiful spring weather suddenly and abruptly came to an end when a fall of snow covered the earth and maple sugar producers again became busy in their sugar camps.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Civic Club officers were elected for the year as follows: President, Mrs. E. H. Sincell; Mrs. Selby, first vice-president; Mrs. E. Z. Tower, second vice-president; Mrs. R. Connell, secretary; Mrs. J. L. Pollock, assistant secretary; Miss Grace Jones, treasurer.

Negotiations for the sale of Mountain Lake Park Association interests to West Virginia capitalists were declared off and it was announced that the Park was to remain in the hands of the present owners.

Governor Goldsborough signed a bill which meant the establishment of a $4,000,000 enterprise in Maryland. The legislative act made it possible to dam the Youghiogheny River at or near Friendsville and from the water thus impounded electricity was to be generated which would produce 40,000 horse power.

Dr. John G. Robinson and family moved from Oakland to Accident in which place the former engaged in the practice of dentistry.

Ashford Warnick, of Garrett county, near Lonaconing, while crossing the railroad tracks at Pekin with a hay wagon, narrowly escaped being run over. Fortunately he was able to back his team from the tracks just in time to save himself, but one of his horses was injured.

Messrs. E. G. Naylor, Ernest Townshend and Henry Lauer went to Baltimore to attend the session of the Grand Lodge of Knights of Pythias.

some instruction in the care of the sick, or the control of contagion. I believe that one of the most important results to come from this training or education will be demonstrated in years to come in the lowering of our infant mortality and maternal mortality. The infant mortality rate in Maryland for 1931 was 86.4 per one thousand live births. It behooves every health officer to use every means possible to decrease that rate. In my lectures to these classes I have stressed this point and have tried to show the class how they as individuals can aid in their community in decreasing this rate by the practical application of the lessons they have had. I have already seen the practical application of the Hygiene classes in several of the communities. One case in particular, an old man had a cerebral hemorrhage. The family with which he lived was entirely ignorant of the first principles of his care. A neighbor, however, who was a student in one of our classes made it a point to help make the old man comfortable and did an excellent job of it. In another community we were having a mild searlet fever epidemic. Many of the townspeople kept their children home and used means to get the school closed. After meeting with the Home Hygiene group and talking the situation over with them the children returned to school for their daily examination and we heard no more talk of closing the school. In many of the schools over the county we are giving free lunches to undernourished children. The women of our hygiene classes have aided in this work from the very beginning.

Among the things that I hope these Home Hygiene classes will aid in accomplishing are: a decline in tuberculosis, reduction of infant and maternal mortality, reduction of typhoid, diphtheria, and smallpox, and even a reduction in non-communicable diseases. Along with these I hope it will aid in building a greater physical efficiency into our babies, pre-school and school children so that in the end a greater physical fitness will come to our citizenship generally. As President Hoover said, "If we can build but one generation of highly efficient men and women physically, morally and mentally, a thousand problems of government will vanish."

JUST A LOT OF NEWS OF THE WEEK THAT ISN'T NEWS

By HEEZ NEVER TRUSTWORTHY

Some weeks are extremely dull, when it comes to news.

Like this week. Humdrum—monotonous—no kick. Weekly news letters repeat over and over again that Mrs. Oscar Zilch spent the week-end with Mrs. Ziscar Olch and family, but what of it? A police patrol wagon catches fire in Grantsville, but why not? A skyscraper is blown down over in the town of Friendsville. A boy runs away from home at Bear Hill to see the world on fifty cents. Well, he can't get far. Gangsters steal 50 gallons of sugar water and escape. A car plunges over the bank and into the river with four passengers. People should be more careful on these slippery pavements.

Of course, as any journalism professor will tell you, there is apt to be news in most everything, if a fellow can just get the right slant.

That patrol wagon, for instance. Maybe someone got pleasure out of watching it, knowing that's one wagon he'd never get a ride in, but it's tame stuff for an up-to-date paper like The Republican. So is the skyscraper. Now, if the elevator in that building had been filled with people and the operator, by running up and down, had missed the falling stones, thereby saving many lives, it would have been news. And the little fellow who went out to see the world on fifty cents. Other boys have gone farther on less. His dad hunted and found him as usual and gave him the usual hairbrush, and so it goes. Nothing much happens.

There might have been a story to that car that dropped into the river, but nobody was hurt, and the world being what it is, it isn't news.

It would have been news if E. Z. Tower had not come to the Court House on time this morning, but he did, so we can't say anything about that.

Somebody's child has the whooping cough, but that isn't news. Everybody else's child has it, too, so we can't whoop that up for a front page story.

Citizens are planning a climax to some indignation meetings throughout the county where they declare they'll raise the devil. But what's newsy about that? Hasn't the devil been raised ever since they had that mix-up about the apple in the Garden of Eden? And they'll quickly calm down again.

The Parsons gold rush isn't causing much of a stir around these parts, either. Even if "Thar's gold in them thar mountaings," Garrett countians just can't be bothered, for too many of us were disappointed on the gold rush of '49 and again in the rush on the Klondike in later years. Yes, it's very minor news.

However, every frugal housewife will be delighted to learn that the ball of twine which four generations of postmasters at Chester, N. Y., have been making from twine salvaged in the postoffice for the last 61 years is now 44 inches in circumference and about four miles long. It just goes to show you what thrift will do.

And yet, I'd hate to start collecting all the yarn that is strung about the local postoffice. They tell some wild tales up there, so we've heard.

A little booklet that may

SAVE YOU from an AUTO ACCIDENT

It's brief. It's interesting. It contains the high lights from an extensive study of a class of accidents that cost 34,400 lives last year—nearly a million injuries. There's no charge for it. The facts are set forth strikingly—some in pictures clearer than words, some in charts which can be grasped at a glance. Whether you drive or walk, the booklet will provide valuable information. A limited supply has just been received from The Travelers Insurance Company, Hartford, Connecticut. Call, phone or write for a copy of "Tremendous Trifles." If the demand exceeds the supply, we will order additional copies and send you yours with as little delay as possible.

Hill Fertilization of Corn Crop Shown to be Successful

Provided that the soil is not in too unproductive a condition, Maryland farmers may save themselves many dollars at corn planting time by applying fertilizer in the hill or row instead of broadcast, it is stated by Dr. R. P. Thomas, of the University of Maryland Experiment station. A large number of experiments conducted in many States, in testing our methods of hill fertilization of corn, indicate that 125 pounds of fertilizer in the hill may be just as efficient as 500 pounds broadcast.

Probably the greatest hindrance to many farmers has been the lack of equipment, although in recent years this difficulty has been largely overcome through the introduction, by a number of manufacturers, of attachments which may be fastened directly to the corn planter.

One less cultivation is needed if the fertilizer and seed are applied at the same time. It is also very important that the fertilizer be placed at the side of the hill so that it does not come in contact with the seed and burn the roots or stalk. One other factor te be considered in the productivity of the soil, since hill fertilization does not work so successfully in soils in a more or less unproductive state, due to the fact that in such soils not enough plant food material is supplied to meet the needs of the growing crop.

However, the hill method of fertilization has many compensations, not the least among which is the fact that by handling the fertilizer in this manner the phosphoric acid and potash are not permitted to become insoluble and, hence, are more easily obtained by the plant roots. A small amount of fertilizer so placed will give better returns than a large amount mixed with the surface soil, as would be the case in broadcasting.

LOCATING THE LILY POND

By
W. R. Ballard, Extension Horticulturist

Certain cultural needs of water lilies are determining factors in the location of the lily pool. The lilies are grown primarily for the beauty of their flowers. To bloom well, the lilies must be placed in full sunlight. The first essential, therefore, is to so place the pool that it will be open to the sun throughout the day. If the pool is to be located near the boundary of an area, this should be on the north boundary. Trees and shrubs constituting the boundary plantings will then not throw their shade on the pool.

The pool may be a feature in the lawn and can be either formal or informal in character depending upon the nature of the surroundings. A pool may also occupy a conspicuous place in the flower garden. The naturalistic pool will often be developed along a stream and the location will be determined largely by the ease of excavating the required area or by proper damming of existing areas.

In the construction of an artificial pool, it is generally more effective to have the surface of the pool near the surface of the ground. The margins should be raised only high enough to prevent debris being washed in by surface drainage. The depth of the pool may vary but in most parts of Maryland two feet of water is deep enough. Generally, the lilies are put in boxes and submerged to the proper depth. With most varieties, from 8 to 12 inches of water above the crown will be found to be ample.

THE MARYLAND BIBLE SOCIETY'S CORNER

"The Word of Our God Shall Stand Forever"

A record found in the Third Annual Report of the Maryland Bible Society published in 1813, bears all the marks of that solid picty and deep devotion to evangelistic ideals characteristic of the church of the last century. After noting the distribution of Bibles in the penitentiary, the City and Marine hospitals and the almshouse, this pious wish is expressed:

"This work has been done in the hope that the Holy Scriptures may be instrumental in bringing the unfortunate inmates to reflection and repentance, as well as to soothe their distress and lighten the pressure of their affiictions."

A very beautiful thing occurred at this period of the Society's history. While war was being waged between the United States and Great Britain, the British and Foreign Bible Society gave the Bible Society of Baltimore 100 pounds sterling. Well might the Board of Managers of the Baltimore Society ejaculate: "The zeal and the munificence of this Society, the Managers hardly know how to mention in suitable terms."

At this juncture the Managers suggested to the Society the propriety of forming a fund in conjunction with the other Bible Societies of America for having the Holy Scriptures translated into the language in most common use, among the American Indians. Thus, as they expressed it, the Society wished to extend the "glorious light and divine influence of the Gospel of Christ."

The work of translation was promoted still further when in 1814, $600 was given to the New York and Philadelphia Societies toward printing a French version of the Scriptures for the especial use of the people of Louisiana. In this year (1814) the Maryland Society determined to procure from London "as soon as the relations of amity between this country and Great Britain shall, through divine goodness, be restored, a set of octavo stereotype plates of the Bible for use of the Society. "This purchase was actually made in 1816." Three hundred and twenty of the plates were imported to Philadelphia on the ship Electra. The rest were brought to Baltimore on the ship Joseph.

A duty was charged on these plates. However, upon representation being made to Congress that the plates were to be used for printing the bible for gratuitons distribution, a bill was introduced in Congress for remitting the duty and was passed and signed by President Madison on April 20, 1816. William Pinkney and Robert Goodloe Harper were the authors and sponsors of this bill.

There now is in the possession of the Maryland Bible Society, one of the first Bibles printed from these English plates.

JUST think what a nuisance it would be to buy gas—carry it home—and store it until ready for use.

In the first place, you would have to purchase an air-tight container, approximately 10 feet long, 10 feet wide and 10 feet deep to hold only 1,000 cubic feet of gas and that quantity would not last you very long. You would have to refill the container at least three or four times a month.

In addition, you would have to purchase a number of intricate pressure and relief valves, and keep them regulated in order to have an even gas flame at all times in the range, water heater and other appliances.

You would have to do all this and more in order to be able to burn gas in your home. Yes, it would be a nuisance, but contrast this with the service supplied by your gas company. The gas is piped right into your home, kept at the proper pressure at all times and all you have to do is turn the handle of your gas range, and presto, you have immediately the service of the most wonderful fuel known to mankind.

Gas is the modern fuel, it is brought right into your home in unlimited quantity, the supply of which is assured by the vast network of gas lines from the world's largest gas producing area.

COLUMBIA SYSTEM

Gas is clean, convenient and automatically controlled. There is no waste. Pay for it after you use it—not before—and the cost is very small.

COMMITTE OF TAXPAYERS PRESENTS FIVE REQUESTS

Five Hundred Attend Meeting in Maryland Theatre Saturday; Ask For Lower Tax Rate

FORM TAXPAYERS LEAGUE

The executive committee of the recently formed taxpayers league presented a petition to the County Commissioners of Garrett county on Monday afternoon requesting reduction in the tax rate. The petition was signed by 213 persons and included five requests for the consideration of the commissioners.

The committee requested that the Commissioners refrain from appropriating money for maintaining the offices of county agent, home demonstration agent, two health nurses and the full-time health officer.

The committee also requested the Commissioners to refuse an appropriation of $116,000 asked for by the Board of Education for building purposes and the purchase of real estate in Accident, Grantsville and Oakland.

It asked them to curtail and reduce to the minimum the money levied for maintenance and construction of county roads and that all office holders agree to a voluntary salary reduction of not less than ten percent, and that the Commissioners set an example by voluntarily reducing their own salaries for the coming year.

The Board was also asked to have published an itemized statement of the monies paid out of the contingent fund in 1931, showing the amount of payments, to whom payable and for what purpose payments were made.

Committee Named

The executive committee is composed of one person from each district in the county: William Miller, Accident, chairman; Arthur H. Green, Swanton; C. Earl Stanton, Grantsville, secretary; Elmer Barnard, Bloomington; C. E. Hardesty, Loch Lynn; George Meese, Charles Blamble, P. P. Snyder, C. C. Stephens, D. O. Harvey, M. G. Mellott. C. N. McIntire, Oakland, was named treasurer. These men were chosen from three from each district of the county who were named at the meeting on Saturday.

The meeting of the taxpayers on Saturday was the culmination of a number of other meetings held in various parts of the county during the past few weeks, at which the citizens discussed the lowering of the tax rate.

The Maryland Theatre was crowded, over 500 people being present. William Miller, Accident, was made chairman of the meeting and after explaining the purpose of the gathering he discussed the conditions existing and then called upon those present to express their views.

At the conclusion of the meeting three representatives were selected from each election district from which the executive committee was to be chosen. The executive committee met Monday at the Court House and drew up the paper which they presented to the commissioners.

50,000 Are Put on Herrington Manor and Potomac State Forests

With twice as many trees to plant in Garrett county this year, the entire work on the State Forests has been completed within a week, according to H. C. Buckingham, district forester. This was accomplished by giving employment to 18 of the county's unemployed for one week.

A total of 50,000 trees were planted, 42,000 on the Herrington Mannor State forest, and the other 8,000 on the Potomac State forest on River hill, near Schell, W. Va. These consisted of Red Pine, White Pine, Spruce, Hemlock, and a few miscellaneous species.

Fire conditions in the county are critical at this time, Mr. Buckingham stated, and he requested everybody to ceasc all brush burning until after the county had received a large amount of rain. Three fires were put under control on Tuesday.

Eight students and an instructor from the Pennsylvania State college forest school are doing their field work in the Savage river forest, having arrived in the county this week. They are staying at Grantsville and will remain for several weeks taking an inventory of the forest and making type maps. Karl E. Pfeiffer, assistant State forester, is directing the work in that section.

THREE FINED ON CHARGE OF DISTURBING WORSHIP

Total Fines Reach $175—Kempton Man Held on Serious Charge

Disturbing religious worship at Crellin last Thursday night caused the arrest of three and brought in the neighborhood of $175 into the state and county coffers, according to Justice W. A. Gonder, who gave the offenders a hearing on Friday.

Deputy Sheriff Clarence Spear made the arrests. It was stated at the trial that during a discourse by A. W. Ark, the minister, Brown told him he didn't know what he was talking about. Unable to quiet him he was led from the building and a warrant sworn for his arrest, as well as for the two others with him. Simmons, it was stated, did not enter the church.

Charges of driving under the influence of liquor and of reckless driving were preferred the following day against Brown by Corporal Thomas Currie of the State Police, and at the hearing he was fined $101 and costs. All fines were paid.

HEALTH OFFICER REPORTS ON COSTS OF HIS OFFICE

Accomplishments During First Six Months Since Office Was Established Explained

HAS SAVED COUNTY $1,200

Dr. George E. Clarke, county health officer, has submitted the following report of the accomplishments of his office since it was established about six months ago:

The health officer reports the cost of operating the county health department as follows:

County funds, $3,800; State funds, $7,200. The funds derived from the county represent only one cent in every $100 of taxes collected. This represents less than one-fiftieth of a cent on the tax rate. The funds derived from the State are collected from the counties in the State from their various sources of State revenue.

During the first six months of the Health Department's operation, 20 applications for pauper pensions were investigated. Only two of these were recommended to receive a pension. These two pensioners are on a temporary status and their pensions are to be discontinued in July. Five old pensioners were investigated and their pensions were discontinued or reduced by one-half. This represents a saving of approximately $1,200 a year to the county.

The number of babies who die before they are a year old has been reduced from 99 per one thousand births to 86 per one thousand births through the instruction and visits of the nurses. Seventeen expectant mothers have been visited and advised as to their proper eare; 447 eontagious diseases have been either quarantined or excluded from school; 1165 children have been protected against diphtheria; 442 against small pox; 220 children and adults have been protected against typhoid; 29 active cases of tuberculosis are under constant supervision; 225 new born babies have been visited before they were 2 months old and the mothers advised as to their eare; 2400 school children have been given a complete physical examination and the parents of those who had serious defects were advised as to their condition; 93 school buildings were inspected as to their toilet facilities and water supply; 22 visits have been made to dairy farms from which milk is retailed; 32 cases of syphillis and 62 cases of gonorrhoea are under treatment at the two venereal clinics.

Plans are rapidly going forward to prevent the contamination of Deep Creek lake through improper sewerage disposal at the cottages and the homes around the lake.

There are 140 active members in nine Home Hygiene classes over the county taking instruction in home hygiene and care of the sick.

Nine licensed mid-wives are visited each month, their equipment inspected and instructed by the nurse; 12 women are taking instruction to become licensed midwives. Ten tourist camps over the county have been instructed as to their sewerage disposal, water supply, milk supply and the condition of the cottages.

The present equipment at the health office and at the venereal clinics was furnished by the State Department of Health at no expense to the county. The automobiles now in use by the two nurses were purchased by the State Department.

The levy of $3,800 represents the entire cost to the county of maintaining this department for one year.

Bids Asked for Construction of Concrete Shoulders

Bids have been asked by the State Roads Commission for building 7.44 miles of concrete shoulders on the Nationel Pike, route 40, from Chestnut Ridge to Keyser's ridge. This will complete the widening of the National Pike in Garrett county, as stretches both east and west of this distance were finished last year and 1930.

Along with the widening of the road, a number of curves will be eliminated, and although it has not been definitely decided, it is thought that the Casselman bridge below Grantsville, and the Puzzley Run curves, will be taken out.

The Dramatic club of Oakland High school will present three one-act plays on Friday evening, April 22, at the Oakland High school auditorium.

"Fixins," a Carolina folk play; "The Maker of Dreams," a fantasy, and "Thursday Evening," a comedy, are the three plays to be given. Miss Margaret Kochenderfer is directing.

ABRAM'S GENEROSITY TO LOT

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 13:5-15.

GOLDEN TEXT—Be kindly affectioned one to another with brotherly love; in honour preferring one another.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Generous Uncle.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—An Adventure in Friendship.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Too Generous to Quarrel.

Apparently a famine was sent upon Canaan soon after Abram entered it. Because of this famine, he went into Egypt. Doubtless the famine was sent because of the wickedness of the Canaanites, but it was so timed as to develop the graces of Abram's heart. He needed to be taught the fact of his own weakness in order to fully realize God's power and faithfulness. It would have been far better for him to have remained in Canaan with its famine, knowing that he was where the Lord had led him, than to go into Egypt.

I. Abram and Lot Go Out of Egypt (vv. 1-4).

1. Thrust out by Pharaoh (v. 1 cf. 12:18, 19). By prevarication Abram deceived the king concerning the relation of Sarai to himself, but when the truth was known that she was his wife instead of his sister, Pharaoh thrust him out. This is not the last time that a child of God was rebuked and thrust out by a man of the world.

2. His wealth greatly increased (v. 2). Although Abram was away from the place to which God had called him, his temporal possessions increased. Increase in riches is no sign that a man is in fellowship with God.

3. He went back to Bethel (vv. 3, 4). Although he had declined from the pathway of faith and had suffered shame and humiliation before a heathen king, when thrust out he had the good sense to go into the place of the altar, where his tent had been at the beginning. It was here that he called upon the name of the Lord. There is no record of his having done so while in Egypt. His Egypt experience cost him much spiritually, though he became rich there. He seems even to have lost his influence over Lot.

II. Abram and Lot Separate (vv. 5-13).

1. Strife between their herdmen (vv. 5-7). The goods of both Abram and Lot greatly increased. This increase in goods threatened strife between Abram and Lot. When they attempted to settle down, trouble arose between their herdmen. This is the first record of relatives quarreling over financial matters. Riches often interferes with friendship. They engender greed and selfishness in men, and kindle jealousy and strife between them. For the chosen of God thus to quarrel is utter folly, and criminal, especially when the enemies of the Lord's people look on.

2. Abram's magnanimous behavior (vv. 8, 9). He made to Lot a generous proposition which relieved the disgraceful situation. Lot was allowed his choice. Though he owed everything to Abram, he was allowed to choose that which suited him best. Abram's behavior in this case is a fine example of the art of living together peaceably.

3. Lot's selfish choice (vv. 10-13). His selfish heart prompted him to grasp for the best. His action shows that his stay in Egypt was ruinous to him. One cannot go into Egypt without being affected by it. This was a fatal choice for Lot. Though he for a while prospered and even was elevated to high official position, it was an expensive undertaking for him.

III. Abram Delivers Lot (14:11-16).

Lot, with all his goods, was taken away when the confederate kings came against Sodom. Though Lot's trouble was the result of his selfish choice, Abram's magnanimity of soul expressed itself by taking up arms to deliver him from the oppressor.

Lot is an example of one saved so as by fire (1 Cor. 3:11-15). He is an example of the man who allows the world to get the better of him. He set his affections upon earthly things, and the time came when he had to separate from them. The world and its lusts pass away, but he that doeth the will of God abideth forever (1 John 2:15-17). Once his money and his family were in Sodom, he endured its wickedness while longing to escape from it (II Pet. 2:6-8).

In contrast with Lot who suffered from his evil choice Abram was greatly prospered. He grew rich in temporal things while at the same time he was rich toward God. Abram's whole life shows that those who make obedience to God first get the needed worldly things (1 Kings 3:5-13; Matt. 6:33).

GEMS OF THOUGHT

No man is hurt but by himself.—Diogenes.

Education does not commence with the alphabet; it begins with a mother's look, with a father's nod of approbation.

Souls are made sweet by taking the acid fluids out, and by putting something in—a great love, a new spirit, the spirit of Christ.

WHO REMEMBERS?

HOW MANY DO YOU KNOW IN THIS WEEK'S PICTURE?

If you admit that you are one day over forty, you will surely find yourself in this picture, because in those days everybody attended camp meeting, or whatever was in session at the Park. Even if you are not forty you might find yourself sitting on somebody's lap.

If plans work out this summer, the Mt. Lake Park amphitheatre will be just as packed as it was in the days of old. And wouldn't that be a glad sight for sore eyes?

"Don't be discouraged," it says in the picture. And the statement is still good today.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

Little did I think that I would sing "My wife has gone to the country", so soon, but it's a fact. The only difference is that I'm leaving out the "Hoorays!"

Early Form of Spring Fever

Although a trifle early for spring fever, I don't feel like exerting myself this week. Take spring fever and mix it with tax meeting, in a closed theatre and one is liable to stray onto most anything, even going as far as looking in the telephone directory.

At first I was a Little Leary about it, being Shirer than I usually am, Butt wanting to Kope with this column before May and not get a Callis, and maybe Stuck at my Post, I Wilt take a Chance, hoping not to Skidmore than I Wood as a general Ruhl.

If your Lipscomb apart at the sound of the Tamburini don't become Shockey and Queer and all a-Trimble. It will be only my Ford Carr in a Clatterbuck heading for the Lee of the lake. I Wood have taken the Maroney I couldn't find her. Somebody had Ridder to Swanton Hinds parts before trying for a new Reckard.

Ach Kimmell, if the Constable catches her before Weeks and Weeks he'll Thrasher within an inch of her life with his Cain, but Weber or not he does, I hope all her children have Sines trouble. As for the horse, all it gets is some Hayden some Moore Oates on a Platter and put in her Stahl with a Pollock on the Frame door, so somebody can't Knepper again.

I can't Dilley any longer. I must get to the Broadwater and Kemphfer a week-end at least, and Dodge the three trees which are Nair, Nair an' Nair. It is impossible to Turner round, Fraley as I am, because it is a full Moon and I can see Mosser somethin' in the Grove. My Hart pants for Besse as she sings sweet Enlow, and if she won't give me a kiss I'll have Tasker. Oh, Shaw, it is Sowers the dickens, but anyhow we Lish and Lichty in the Wooddell for sometime, but finally have to move because it seems I have been Lyon on a Sharps Stone which has raised a Biggs Sisk right Thayer. All in a Huff we move West to Moerland where all Harsch irritants are removed.

From behind a Burch Bush, a White Swan Loomis in the Fitzwater; or is it a Black Crane? Bowser, although the Spoerlein is faint, knows a Trickett ought to work, and sinks Lower and Loar and Lohr on the Lohm of the Beachy and creeps to the Sombower until he gets a Chance to Speicher. "Canty save the Feathers?" Houck's this Besse of Ours, who wears a Busselle. She Chadderton chattered. "The Giessman will Killius unless the King is Welling to Grant us foregiveness on our Kneass." "To keep out of the Sincell in the Tower we can Steyer in the cellar or Garrett." Welch's a Mann who appears as from the Ayres as a Friend. "Moomaw," Haller's Besse who by this time is as homesick as is a house Smouse, and whose Slabach is shaking like a Teter totter, until the Newman Sweitzer across the mouth.

Feeling this was very Rudy offers to Reed about the Porter who Rodeheaver to his Stemple of worship with a Foglepole in one hand and a Bell in the other. Butt Besse was Roth and inclined to be Riley and not only called him a Simpson but asked Watson of a sea Cook would be such a half DeWitt.

All this time lost and no boat ride yet, and I felt like knocking somebody's Bishoff. I hadn't got to Baker anything, and there was my Mealy Murphy, Dunn Brown by the Cole, waiting for the Butler to Ream it out, and the Saucer to hold it. What a Fox Paugh that time!

I suddenly had an ambition to become a Swiss Yoder. But those things just will Cropp out, Weber or not it's in Winters or Sommer.

What the Helbig old black Smith said to the Miller, Mason, Bowman and Iman? Scoop gets Leighton then later every week. I must Glaze on his column of Bullard and 'eavy continually or I'll tell him where to get Offutt. There must be a Naylor a Cogley missing somewhere. If there isn't it's a Wonderly.

Well, Oswell that ends well.

A Memorial to Mrs. D. S. Davis

In these trying times when we are so in need of public-spirited citizens, the entire community feels the loss of Mrs. D. S. Davis, who passed from our midst on January thirty-first.

Her unselfishness in any charitable undertaking was remarkable. When I first knew her she was chairman of the Pleasant Valley branch of the Garrett County Chapter of the American Red Cross—one of the most active and successful branches in the entire county. Although Mrs. Davis had a son, Delbert, overseas and naturally carried a personal burden in her heart, she kept up courage always, inspiriting every member of her branch as they raised money for "soldiers' kits," knit sweaters and sewed for all the boys.

So successful was the Pleasant Valley branch under Mrs. Davis's tireless leadership that after it had done its full share in supplying the needs of soldiers it had a nice little sum of money left over, which was contributed to the fund for employment of the first public health nurse.

When Mrs. Davis moved to Oakland she at once took her place as a natural leader of people interested in bettering conditions and relieving distress. She was for two years president of the Methodist Home Missionary Society, for two or three years president of the Oakland Homemakers Club, an active member of the Methodist Aid Society, the Eastern Star and the American Legion Auxiliary. She never lost her interest in Red Cross work, being on hand every year to do her part in the thankless task of taking the Red Cross Roll Call.

Mrs. Davis's executive ability, as well as her willingness, no matter how she felt personally, to do "whatever her hand found to do" was exhibited in her last years among us in Oakland. Some poor children in the county are still enabled to go to school because of clothing made over exactly to fit them by her hands. Last fall she gathered together a group of women to dry a quantity of corn donated for relief work. She attended to all the details of packing and storing apple butter for use this winter among our poor. (By the way, it is interesting to note that this apple butter was made from apples given in appreciation by a farmer who had been forced, by adverse circumstances, to accept aid the year before from the Red Cross. Would that more people who, in their times of need, receive a helping hand from their neighbors would show the same spirit of gratitude)!

These are only a few illustrations of the unselfish, practical way in which Mrs. Davis, throughout her life, took upon herself the Christian task of helping her unfortunate brothers and sisters. This was more remarkable because for the last two years—when, because of bad conditions, the demands upon her wide sympathy were especially great—she was suffering intensely herself. But during her illness her hands and her interest in other people's welfare never lagged. To the last she "kept going" despite pain. Now that the hands are at rest, some unfortunate people in our vicinity little realize that hers were the hands responsible for some comfort they are enjoying at the present moment. The entire community will miss her for many a year.

A CO-WORKER.

THE MARYLAND BIBLE SOCIETY'S CORNER

"The Word of Our God Shall Stand Forever"

On September 25, 1815, the Fifth Annual Meeting of the Maryland Bible Society was held. Some time prior to this meeting the Female Auxiliary Bible society of Baltimore had been established, and in the quaint language of the report we find this statement: "This institution has already carried its benevolent and useful exertions to a very considerable extent, and affords new evidence in confirmation of a fact so honorable to the feminine character, that woman delights in good works, and is never second in the labors of charity and mercy." It further states that "to foster this inestimable association of female piety and benevolence, the "parent society" had accommodated this "auxiliary institution" with 150 English Bibles and 20 German Testaments, at first cost." In less than a year this so-called "auxiliary institution" had collected $1,246, and had a membership, the enumeration of whose names covers nine pages. They also donated $500 to the Bible Society toward the purchase, in London, of stereotype plates of the Bible.

Not content with this fine home mission program, the Female Auxiliary society contributed toward the issue of the Bible in the Chinese language, a translation upon which the Rev. Robert Morrison had been engaged for several years. At the same time an appropriation was made from their treasury to aid Rev. Samuel J. Mills in his distribution of Scriptures among the deplorably destitute people in Illinois and Louisiana. In all, $4,278 had been received.

The American Bible Society had been organized, but the Maryland Bible Society declined to become one of its auxiliaries, as the United States was thought to be too vast an area for one Society to cover, and it was felt that "an intimate, epistolary correspondence" between National, State and County Society, would serve the same purpose. However, the Society manifested its interest in what others were doing, by printing the address of the American Bible Society and a compendium of the report of the British and Foreign Bible Society in its report.

In 1817, under the presidency of Rev. Dr. Inglis, more money was raised to complete the payment for the second edition of the stereotype Bible. At the same time local distribution was increased. In addition to sending Bibles to the west, the jail, penitentiary, almshouse, and hospital were supplied, and the collector of the Port had promised to assist in the supply of shipping.

A significent paragraph appears in the Society's report for 1818. It refers to the growth of the Sunday School Associations, and declares that they may be ranked next to the Bible Society in importance and as a means of diffusing the several truths of the Gospel.

Every organization has its years of prosperity followed by years of depression. Religious and benevolent enterprises are subject to this universal law. This year marked a decline in enthusiasm, and failed to register an advance. The Baltimore Society, although continuing independent, began to look toward association with the national organization, foreshadowing the happy relation of the present in these words: "It is with no inconsiderable pleasure that we have to notice a brilliant star on the Christian horizon—The American Bible Society—which promises to shine with increasing lustre. This brilliant star now shines in both the orient and the occident. May it continue to shine until the Psalmist's devout declaration is the common experience of East and West—"The entrance of Thy Word bringeth light."

GOALS FOR 1932 ARE SET BY STATE HEALTH UNITS

May 1 Is Set Aside As Child Health Day in Maryland

President Hoover has issued a proclamation setting aside May 1 as Child Health Day throughout the United States and has stressed the right of every child to health and to opportunity for growth and development. The governors of the states, and the mayors of many cities have relayed the message to the people throughout the country and have focused attention on community responsibility for the furtherance of health and opportunity for every child.

Governor Ritchie, in his proclamation, has directed the thought of all Marylanders to the importance of safeguarding the health of mothers and young children and of keeping the children under medical supervision and in a health promoting environment. Mayor Jackson of Baltimore City, has issued a similar proclamation.

The Maryland Child Health Day Committee includes representatives of State, city and county Departments of Health and of Education, of medical societies, service clubs and of organizations Interested in the health and well-being of the children of Maryland. The chairman of the State Committee is Dr. J. H. M. Knox, Jr., chief of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health. Speaking of the significance of Child Health Day, Dr. Knox said: "We always connect growth and happiness with May Day and the springtime, so it is particularly appropriate that Child Health Day comes at this season. To all of us who are interested In child health, it means much more than a 'day.' It really marks the beginning of special all-the-year-round promotion of health for all children.

"In the counties of Maryland, the day will serve as the starting point for the 'summer round up' and the health examinations of the children who will reach school age this year, so that they may enter school free from avoidable physical handicaps.

"But here are some other goals that we associate with Child Health Day and that we hope can eventually be realized: For each community to see to it—

"That each mother has adequate care before and after the baby comes;

"That every young child is protected against smallpox and diphtheria and has the necessary dental care;

"That every child who is physically handicapped with the beginnings of tuberculosis, or who is lame; or who has defects of vision, of hearing or of speech; or who has any other impairment, physical or mental—has the necessary care, and along with these that facilities are provided for what every child needs—safe, healthy, supervised play."

Maryland's Early State Houses

THE PROCESSION OF BUILDINGS BEGAN WHEN PALATINATE WAS FOUNDED

By HENRY J. BERKLEY
In the Baltimore Sunday Sun, April 10

As the time for the three hundredth founding of the Palatinate of Maryland approaches, it brings with it reminders and echoes of the footsteps of the Fathers of the Colony upon the soil of their adopted land. These forefathers left behind them not only memories intangible, but tangible relics of their day in the form of documents, buildings, furniture, religious articles, as the chalice and cruets of Father White, that he used in the conversion of the Indian tribes, vestments, missals. All have been preserved in the care of the Jesuit Fathers, and their history is fully authenticated.

Among the most interesting of the buildings of the past are the five earliest State Houses, all being but a memory, having long disappeared by the action of the ruthless hand of man and time; but in the Acts of Assembly and in the Proceedings of the Provincial Council, sufficient may still be garnered to reconstruct the outward semblance of the most interesting of them, and this has been done by an expert architect under the direction of the writer, supplemented by the preservation of a single rough drawing that has come down to us from a period two hundred and fifty years ago.

St. Mary's City, the first settlement of the Palatinate, founded in the springtime of 1634, and for sixty years afterward its Capital City, was beautifully and admirably located on the St. Mary's River, a branch of the Potomac, upon a broad plateau of many acres in extent, with the St. John's on the right hand and St. Inigoe's creek on the left, the peniusula ending In a high cliff.

In building the new city, first came the defense of the colonists from possible enemies, by land or by water, In the erection of a palisaded fort having an area of a city block. In this military space were located various storehouses, together with a general meeting place for the people, which also served for their courts and afforded a place of safety for their legal documents. This building was a large rectangular structure of log, and at the first Provincial Assembly held seventy representatives of the colonists.

This building may be considered as the First State House.

Several years elapse. St. Mary's City is in the meantime being "seated" with two main streets, Mattapany and Middle. On the latter was placed the Governor's House (that of Leonard Calvert), the brick State House of 1638, the Market House, the Chapel, with the homes of the notable inhabitants. In other locations there were scattered homes, mainly brick, attaining to the number of sixty in later years. From 1637 to 1688 the town was ruled by the Governor-General and his Councilors.

Of the Second State House the acts give little information except that it was a "neat" brick building, used as an inn, near the Governor's residence on Middle street. It probably had less seating capacity than the earlier one, for in 1638 the burgess system of representation had come into effect, and, In accordance, the numbers of the people's representatives diminished.

The service of this Second State House continued until the third one was built, for in the Acts of Assembly of 1675 the following item is found: "At Mr. Smyth's entreaty to the Council to consider what lease be given him of the house and land he now lives in. In pursuance of the above warrant from the Lieutenant-General (Charles Calvert) it was ordered that Mr. Smyth have a lease of fifty-one years of the State House of St. Mary's according to Act of Assembly."

This Third State House was begun in 1674 and finished in 1676. It no longer stood on Middle street, but occupied a part of the "Governor's Lot," a six-acre tract of land at the end of the peninsula overlooking the St. Mary's River.

The Third State House was credited in its day as being the most pretentious public building in English North America. It was built in the prevailing English Renaissance style. The architect, if any, is unknown, and from the crude specifications it is probable that the Governor and his Council either designed it or copied the plans from drawings sent over from Great Britain. The erection of the structure was assigned to one Capt. John Quigley, who describes himself as "merchant of St. Maries."

The Act of 1674 narrates:

The said State House is to be of brick or stone, with slate or tile roof, two stories high, and to continue in length forty-five feet, with a porch in front sixteen feet long by twelve fect wide and a staircase over and against the porch on the other side, sixteen fcet clear in the inside. The first story of the said porch and stair to be twelve feet from the top of the flcor, which shall be paved with flat stone or brick. The foundations to be twenty-four inches up to the water table, the second story nineteen inches up to the garret, and the gable ends fourteen inches thick. The stairs to be half-pace stairs, six and a half inches rising and a foot for the step, all to be of good quartered oak; the inner doors of the first story to be four feet wide and eight feet high, as also the windows of the second story, which shall be eight in number for each floor, with double lights, with a transom at two-thirds the height of the said windows, the doors of the second story three and a half feet wide and five feet high with double lights and transoms, and the windows shall be eight in number as in the first story, besides one in the second story of the porch.

There shall be three partitions in the second story as the Governor shall direct, the said partitions to be double lathed and plastered. The floors (2nd story and porches) to be laid with quartered white oak plank, one a half inches thick; the doors to be battened, th ecasements to be laid in linseed oil and glazed with good square clear glass. The summers and girders for the floors to be sixteen and twelve inches square, the rafters to be eighteen and a half feet long, the principals framed and morticed in. The whole house to be well plastered within, the roof well sealed, and the walls pointed with good lime mortar. One and a half foot baseboard at the gable ends and pyramids.

This State House was evidenly to be a strong, substantial building, to last forever. Its cost was to be 330,000 pounds of tobacco and cask.

It is to be noted that there were no chimneys provided. This was in deference to the prevailing spirit of sobriety among the better classes who did not wish to have a "bar" in the House. However, two years later chimneys were added, three in number, at the sides and in the rear of the back porch. The heating of the building in winter for the officials and clerks was by means of Dutch stoves, presumably some kind of a charcoal brazier with an outlet through the window.

A drummer boy was to call the times of meeting of the Assembly, an arrangement that in 1682 was superseded by a bell. The final touch to the edifice was a cupola, the top before this being surmounted by an iron rod bearing a weather vane.

Survivals in this country of the interior furnishings of the period of James II are rare. Fortunately, in the instance of the Third State House a few relics have been preserved. Of the interior construction a part of one newel post is retained at Cornwallis Cross Manor, near by. It is of the quartered oak mentioned in the specifications and still holds the dowel pins. The Council Table of the Third Lord Baltimore, after being at St. Inigoe's for a time, now rests at the University of Georgetown. Everything else, except the bricks, has disappeared.

In the act of specifications the upper floor of thc State House is divided into three compartments. Legend suggests that the southwest room, which was large, was appropriated to the needs of the acting Governor, in this instance Charles Calvert, afterward Third Lord Baltimore, and his Council—Philip Calvert, chancellor; William Calvert, secretary; the Hon. Vincent Lowe, surveyor-general; Col. Thomas Tailleur, Col. William Stevens and Col. William Digges.

Around this table must have stood at least eight chairs, possibly of the so-called wainscot, possibly of the lighter Cromwellian type, which could have readily been made by the same local artisan who built the table. This last is distinctively of quartered American oak for frame with legs and top of the local black walnut, the surface so blackened by the hand of time as to be indistinguishable in texture, except under an intense light, when the grain comes out distinctly. The legs are well carved, are of the straight type, with the Dutch foot. It belongs to a pattern hitherto only known as belonging to certain Connecticut localities.

The other two rooms in the second story were smaller, used for consultation of committees and for juries, and probably held no furniture of consequence.

This Third State House was in service for the Assemblies and courts for a period of nearly twenty years, or until the seat of government was removed to the Port and Town of Annapolis during the administration of Governor Nicholson, 1694.

During this Governor's term of service, and particularly in that of his successor, Seymour, the St. Mary's State House, stripped of its earlier uses, served for a time for the local courts; even this service came to an end when the Town of St. Mary's was disfranchised and the County Court removed to Leonard Town. In 1720 the title to the land on which it stood was vested in the rector and vestry of William and Mary Parish "for the use of the Parish forever." The building now had many alterations made in it. It was converted into a Protestant church. The second story with the rooms above were removed, thereby heightening the room space, and the furnishings were carried away and dispersed. The desecration of a landmark disturbed the sentiment of many of the local people, and Lord Baltimore's table was sent to the manor of St. Inigoe for preservation.

Even this reconstruction as an ecclesiastical edifice did not endure. It was reported to the Assembly in 1724 that the State House was in danger of collapsing, possibly owing to the removal of the joists of the second story. The Assembly ordered repairs, which were made in October of the same year. The report was that the building was in a very "decaying condition, and recommended new doors, new shutters, new stairs to the first landing, and that the entire lower floor be laid in New Castle stone, and the outside repaired with new brick and plastered."

All this was done, but the roughly treated old building did not respond, and eventually, in 1829, had to be torn down and the bricks used for the construction of Trinity Chapel, distant an hundred feet away. Today St. Mary's City has utterly disappeared, even to the foundations of its brick houses, and the community is solely an agricultural one.

Mt. Lake and Loch Lynn Relief Committee' Report

Mr. John W. Ream has submitted the following report covering the work done by the Relief committee of the Park and Loch Lynn:

There has been 52 individual contributions of clothing, food and, cash amounting to approximately one hundred dollars. There have also been donations of cash, or equivalent, from the Methodist Episcopal, Baptist and United Brethren churches, proceeds of the Union Thanksgiving services, Mayor and Council of Loch Lynn, Garrett Camp No. 44, W. O. W., Oak Lodge No. 8, I. O. O. F. and the U. B Ladies Aid society.

Relief has been granted to 18 families, some in a small way and others regularly in the matter of clothing, food, and medicines. The merchants and druggists have furnished all articles purchased at cost, for which the committee desires to express its thanks and appreciation.

On the 18th of this month occurred the 100th birthday of Mrs. Margaret Grove, now living at Fairmont, West Va. Mrs. Grove is the mother of Mrs. MacClellan Clayton, of Mountain Lake Park. She is a native of Maryland, having been born in Frederick county. Mrs. Grove now resides with a daughter, Mrs. Charles E. Manley, at Fairmont, but for a number of years made her home at Mountain Lake Park with Mrs. Clayton. She is the last surviving member of a family of nine children, six daughters and three sons. The three brothers were all in service in the Confederato Army in the war between the States and all died in service. Three of the daughters have lived to see the century period and one beyond it. One, Miss Ellen Harn, died in Kenesaw, Nebraska, several years ago at the age of 101 years and three months, and another sister, Mrs. Corilla Shearer, died a few years ago at the age of 99 years and some days at the home of Mrs. Clayton.

Mrs. Grove has always been keenly interested in politics and has never failed to vote since the enfranchisement of women. At the last presidential election she went to the polls and cast her ballot for the entire Demoeratic ticket. She has always kept abreast of the times and was a great admirer of the modern manner of living. Of remarkable intellect and well educated, Mrs. Grove has been able to follow with keen interest the remarkable progress and development of our country during her century of life.

Some of our streets are badly in need of repair. The road at the end of the State road at the postoffice is really dangerous—especially to automobile springs.

Word has been received at the Park of the death of Dr. E. W. Howard, aged 62, at his home in Fairmont, W. Va., last Saturday evening of an acute heart attack. Dr. Howard was one of the most prominent physicians of West Virginia and was well known to a host of friends in Oakland and in Mountain Lake Park.

The Baltimore oriole has made its appearance in the Park. This species is mentioned in the very earliest accounts of the settlement of Maryland by the Colonists. And the myrtle is in bloom.

The authorities, either municipal or county, or both, should by all means make a thorough investigation of the breaking and entering of a number of houses in the Park, which have been vacant during the winter months. In many instances bedding, clothing, kitchen utensils, dishes and furniture has been taken and carried away. It is suspected that the thieves are not residents of the Park, as in some instances the loot must have been taken away in a truck. Those who are merely summer residents should be made to feel that property is safe in a closed and locked house, even if unoccupied.

Miss Bonnie Calhoun has returned from a week's visit with friends in Cumberland.

Mr. William Weeks, a former resident, was here last week visiting his brother, Mr. H. M. Weeks.

Clyde Shipley has returned from Baltimore where he has been employed during the winter months.

Mr. and Mrs. Neil McCord were week-end guests of Mrs. McCord's mother, Mrs. William T. Burch. They returned to Washington Sunday, accompanied to the city by Miss Helen Burch.

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Deveny, Jr., of Charleston, W. Va., were Park visitors on Friday.

Miss Helen May motored to Cumberland this week to see her new nephew, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dewey May.

Mrs. J. W. Traver and son Billy have returned to their home here after spending the winter in Florida. Mr. Traver will arrive later.

Mrs. E. L. Jones and two children, of Weldon, N. C., are visiting Mrs. Jones' mother, Mrs. Charles S. May.

The United Brethren Ladies' Aid society's playlett, entitled "The Strike of the Ladies' Aid," was delightfully rendered Friday evening to a highly appreciative audience. The committee in charge desires us in this column to extend its thanks to all who took part and to all who attended, or in any way aided in the success of the entertainment.

Miss Virginia Weeks, a student in the Commercial of Bowling Green, Ky., spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Weeks.

Mr. Gerald Biggs, Vocational Agriculture instructor in the Old Town High school, accompanied by Mr. Monroe Keister, principal of Old Town High school; Mr. C. S. Twigg and Mr. Osburn Wilson, progressive farmers of Allegany county, spent the week-end with Mr. Biggs' parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Biggs. While here they attended the Potato Growers banquet held at the Oakland High school Friday evening.

Messrs. J. E. Callis and C. P. Martin, members of Oak Lodge No. 8, I. O. O. F., attended the annual Grand Lodge convention held Tuesday and Wednesday at Baltimore, as representatives of the local lodge.

Mrs. Levi Echard motored here from Cumberland where she spent some time with her daughter, Mrs. Earl Willett. Mrs. Echard is about 92 years of age.

Miss Belle Prichard, Mrs. Walter Prichard and Mrs. Howard Long motored here from Mannington Tuesday.

COUNTY AGENT'S COLUMN

J. H. CARTER,
Resident County Agent,

Dairymen Must Look to More Economical Practices to Insure Profits In the Future.

With the present prices of milk and butter, and with prospects of even lower prices, dairymen of the State are advised to study herds carefully and pay strict attention to feeding.

Records of the Herd Improvement Association in Maryland for 1931 show that there are a good many cows which are yielding their owners under 5,000 pounds of milk a year and less than 200 pounds of butterfat. Since only about 47 per cent of the cost of keeping a cow can be charged to feed, and the feed costs of the above animals will vary from $1.10 to $2.00 per 100 pounds of milk, it is at once apparent that with such low producers in the herd there can be no money left for the owner after other expenses have been paid.

According to J. A. Conover, dairy specialist for the University of Maryland, an investigation of seventy dairy farms in one of the counties of the State, showed that unless a herd produces an average of 7,500 pounds of milk, there is little or no labor income for the owner, who must also be the manager.

Therefore, in order to keep out of the red, a dairyman must be more careful than ever to cull closely, he must keep sufficient records to know which cows are the most profitable and he must maintain good pastures so as to reduce the cost of production, says Mr. Conover.

Plenty of soybean hay should be provided and if there is no alfalfa or clover on the farm then soybeans should be planted for hay, as the seed is reasonable in price. There should be at least one acre to each cow in the herd.

Sufficient corn should be planted to insure filling the silo to the top and refilling after settling. Also home grains should make up the greater part of the ration supplemented with some good high protein feed. During the past winter soybeans were the cheapest source of protein in many counties of the State and if there is a larger supply on the farm than is needed for hay the remainder may be used as a grain crop.

VOLUME 55. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND, APRIL 28, 1932. NUMBER 11.

SAY MAPLE SYRUP SEASON WAS FAIRLY SUCCESSFUL

3,380 Gallons Are Inspected By Extension Workers—1,232 Gallons More Than In Past Year

21 ASKED FOR INSPECTION

Maple sugar and maple syrup producers of Garrett county had only a mediocre season as far as production goes, but the number of gallons of syrup inspected under the direction of the Extension Service increased considerably, according to John H. Carter, county agent.

Syrup this year was on a par with that of last year, Mr. Carter stated, but there was less sugar in the water, requiring about twice as much water to make one gallon of syrup as was needed in 1931.

A total of 3,380 gallons of syrup was inspected and labeled, which is 1,232 gallons more than was inspeted last year. Of this number 165 gallons were labeled Maryland Fancy; 1570 gallons, Maryland Prime; 1500 gallons, Maryland Standard, and 145 gallons, No. 3. Twenty-one producers asked for the inspection.

The State inspectors were brought to the county through the Extension Service and the Garrett County Maple Products Association, which is in its third year of operation. Members of the association are marketing their products under the trade name "Crest O' the Alleghenies." The organization was formed in December, 1929, with the assistance of the Maryland Department of Forestry and the University of Maryland Extension Service, and was formed for the purpose of encouraging production of a better quality of products and aiding the producers to find a better market.

Garrett county producers who took advantage of the syrup inspection this year included Mrs. Grace Chisholm, Amos D. Harvey, John Steyer, O. C. Buckle, G. E. Bishoff, Jacob Dilgard, Luther Nine, Silas C. Beachy, Harry O. Miller, Guy Stanton, Edna Wiley, C. C. Beachy, Mr. Lee, Peter Yost, John Horchler, Gilbert Green, H. C. Yommer, T. J. Maust, Frank Wildesen, Charles Zehner and Boyd Steyer.

It is estimated that there are over 120 maple syrup producers in the county, practically all of whom experienced a season similar to those who had the Federal-State inspection of their products.

Many Forest Fires Reported In Maryland Last Week

Forest fires were reported in great numbers all over Maryland last week, according to a statement released by the State department of forestry. More than fifty fires burned on Saturday, April 23.

Fire conditions in Garrett and Allegany counties appeared particularly threatening with several incendiary fires. A fire on Meadow Mountain near Thayerville damaged lands of F. F. Nicola, operated as a cooperative game preserve.

Other small fires were numerous in the vicinity of Deep Creek Lake.

Charles county suffered the most severe fire which spread over 600 acres of pine and hardwood forests. Other large fires burned near Chase, Baltimore county; Federal Hill, Hartford county, 70 in Wicomico county; and two in Frederick county.

Carelessness in burning brush and grass continues to cause many serious forest fires, F. W. Besley, state forester, stated.

Michael Canty, Oakland, Victim of Heart Disease Thursday

Michael Canty, aged 60 years, of Oakland, a Baltimore and Ohio railroad engineer, died suddenly Thursday night in the railroad tower at Altamont, at the top of the seventeen-mile grade, nine miles east of Oakland.

Mr. Canty had just completed pushing a coal train up the grade from Mt. Lake Park to Altamont with his "helper" engine and was waiting for his signal to return to Mt. Lake Park when he was striken with a heart attack. He had been working at his home in Oakland on Thursday afternoon, razing a barn on his property.

Funeral services were conducted on Monday morning at 9 o'clock from St. Peter's Catholic church, the Rev. Fr. William J. McVeigh, pastor, officiating. Burial was in the church cemetery.

ASSAULT CHARGE LODGED AGAINST J. FAZENBAKER

Alleged to Have Beaten His Sister-in-Law Saturday

John Fazenbaker, about 40, is in the county jail, and Mrs. Eska Fazenbaker is in a serious condition, as the result of a row at their home near Bloomington last Saturday night. Fazenbaker is charged with assault with attempt to murder.

John and his brother Eska returned to the house late Saturday night, it was stated by the State's Attorney, W. W. Dawson, and while Eska remained outside, John is said to have gone inside and threatened his sister-in-law.

She ordered him to keep away, and when he did not, she grabbed a rifle and shot him through the arm. Before she could reload, it is alleged he struck her over the head with a bottle, and then is said to have beaten her into unconsciousness. Mrs. Fazenbaker has four children, three of whom are young and were at home at the time.

Sheriff Walter Haenftling and Deputy Samuel Cole arrested the man on Sunday morning, and his hearing will be held in the near future. Mrs. Fazenbaker is in a critical condition.

To Consider Deep Creek Pageant And Sports Day

A request that the board of directors of Mt. Lake Institute consider adding a Deep Creek Pageant and sports day to their summer program, was made at the meeting last night in the Court House by those interested. The tentative date set was Saturday, July 16, when there would be a full moon which would lend itself to the portrayal of a historic water pageant.

It was asked that the pageant be considered, only after a discussion of financial conditions revealed that such a program could be carried out with a small expenditure.

About twenty-five attended the meeting at which Miss Sara B. Huff and I. S. Middaugh spoke.

Oakland Civic Club Holds Regular Meeting

Much planting and improvement has been accomplished at the Park and throughout the town, through the interest of the Civic club.

ANNUAL YARD-GARDEN CONTEST BRINGS INTEREST

Over Two Hundred Entries Received By Oakland Civic Club

With more than two hundred entries in the annual yard and garden contest, every section of the city is affected, according to members of the Civic club. A few who were entered the past two years are not continuing their work, but many more new ones have joined in the movement, and have already planted trees, gardens, shrubs, and have cleaned up their grounds.

What is more noticeable this year is that everyone seems to be cleaning up his property, the Civic club president stated. Next to this it seems that more preparation is being made for gardens than was the case last year.

No chairman for the contest has been appointed as yet by the Civic club, and so far the preliminary work has been done by a committee in charge. However, it is expected that judges will start on their first inspection trip in the near future.

Wayne Fitzwater Breaks Leg

Wayne Fitzwater, student in Oakland High School, and son of Mr. and Mrs. William Fitzwater, of near Deer Park, had his leg broken near the ankle on last Thursday afternoon at his father's farm, when his leg was caught between a tractor he was driving and a fence post enclosing the field in which he was at work.

The injured youth was brought to Oakland and surgical aid was rendered by Dr. H. W. McComas.

Fitzwater was to have represented Oakland High School and Garrett county in the State-wide public speaking contest among Future Farmers' organizations on April 30 at College Park, having won the local contest at Friendsville last Tuesday.

Has Human Looking Potato

The picture of a wierd, human looking potato was shown in the rotogravure section of the Baltimore Sun of Sunday, April 24, which was grown by Ross and John Speicher on the farm of their mother, Mrs. Clara Speicher, Accident. The boys brought the potato to Oakland and had it photographed by James Bell a few weeks ago. That portion of the tuber resembling a human head is connected with the larger body-resembling part of the potato by a slender neck, and with two eyes and a nose greatly resembles a human.

ASSAULT CHARGE AGAINST WOMAN WAS DISMISSED

All Parties Concerned Reprimanded by County Officers

Elsie Stemple, of Oakland, was before Justice A. S. Teats on Tuesday for a hearing on a charge of assaulting, beating, bruising, wounding and otherwise ill treating one Dollie Guthrie, also of Oakland, on Saturday, April 23.

During Saturday and at the trial on Tuesday, many things were alleged to have been aired, and at the conclusion of the hearing, when it had finally become quiet, the charge against the woman was dismissed, but all the parties, principal and witnesses, were reprimanded by Justice Teats, State's Attorney W. W. Dawson and Sheriff Walter Haenftling, and were given to understand that in the future they were to conduct themselves properly or a jail sentence would follow immediately if order was not permanently restored by the warring factions.

Returned to Girls' Corrective School

Sylvia Guthrie, a sister of Dollie, who figured in the Stemple case, was arrested later on Tuesday by county authorities and taken to Montrose School for Girls on Wednesday morning. She had been previously sent to that institution, but about two months ago was permitted to come to her home for a brief visit. She failed to go back to the school and when arrested Tuesday stated that she had lost the railroad ticket for her return to school and therefore could not go back. She was taken to the school yesterday morning by Sheriff Haenftling.

This planting was done in lieu of the annual tree planting on the Harrington Manor State forest reserve, which was done formerly by the Oakland Boy Scouts.

The Maryland State Roads Commission opened bids on Monday for the construction of 3.28 miles of road on the Finzel-Pocahontas highway connecting with the National Highway at a point east of Grantsville.

A bid of $50,040 by the Roberts Paving Company, of Salisbury, Pa., was the lowest bid submitted for this piece of work.

TWO COMMIT SUICIDE IN PAST WEEK; USE SHOTGUN

Russell Brown, Loch Lynn, and Andrew McZenzie, Near Finzel, Both Fire Shots Into Head

WERE BOTH YOUNG MEN

Russell Brown, son of George M. Brown, of Loch Lynn Heights, committed suicide late Friday night by blowing off the back of his head with the charge from a shotgun.

About an hour before committing the act, Brown is reported to have gotten his gun from Policeman Wm. E. Simms, officer in the town of Loch Lynn, to whom he had loaned it several days before, saying that he wanted to shoot a dog which he alleged was barking and disturbing his rest. When a short distance from the policeman's home he planted the firearm in such manner that when it exploded the full charge struck the back of his head. His body was not found until the following morning.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock from the White Church with interment in the church cemetery. He is survived by his father, two brothers, Wilmer and Marshall Brown, Loch Lynn, and two sisters, Mrs. Millie Cook, Loch Lynn, and Mrs. Vauda Green, Clarksburg, West Va.

The dead man was 26 years old and was employed as a garage mechanic, at which he excelled.

No theory has been advanced as to the reason the young man committed the act.

Insane Youth Ends Life

Andrew McKenzie, 28, son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. McKenzie, of near Finzel, Garrett county, shot and killed himself early Saturday morning on the farm of his parents. The tragedy was investigated by Sheriff C. W. Saylor and county investigator Frederick T. Saylor, of Somerset county, Pa.

McKenzie, who was said to be mentally deficient, had been a patient in the Somerset county asylum until five months ago, when he was discharged, considerably improved.

According to his parents, he had been acting strangely during the week prior to committing the act and on Saturday morning went out of the house in a somewhat depressed mood. In some manner he secured a single-barrel shotgun which he loaded with a pumpkin ball cartridge, placed the muzzle beneath his chin and pulled the trigger. The discharge tore away the side of his face and he was dead when his parents, who heard the shot, reached his side.

McKenzie, following his release from the asylum, had been employed by the Western Maryland Railway as a section hand and also assisted his parents about the farm. He had a brother, Wilbur, who was committed to the Somerset institution about four weeks ago.

Lesson for May 1

ISAAC AND HIS WELLS

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 26:12-25.
GOLDEN TEXT—A soft answer turneth away wrath: but grievous words stir up anger.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Isaac Follows His Father's Example.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Isaac Follows His Father's Example.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How to Stop Quarrels.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How World Peace Is to Be Established.

Isaac was a child of the covenant and was given in the time of the old age of Abraham and Sarah, in fulfillment of God's promise. His name means "laughter." As to character, he was gentle, meek, meditative and peace-loving. He was a remarkable contrast to his father Abraham. Two things may have affected him to his disadvantage:

1. The shadow of an illustrious father. Sons of great and rich men commonly do not make much of life. The necessity of struggle is not forced upon them.

2. He was brought up as the only child of his mother. The tendency in such a case would be to shield him from the necessity of self-effort, so that he would be unable to meet life's stern realities. Every child should be compelled to think for himself and to fight his own battles.

I. Isaac in Gerar (vv. 12-17).

1. The appearance of the Lord unto him (vv. 1-5). Because of famine in the land, Isaac went into the country of the Philistines. The distress upon the land should have moved him to call upon the Lord (James 5:13). It were better to suffer in the land than to go among the enemies of God's people. The Lord graciously appeared to him there and directed him not to go into Egypt, thus avoiding the error of his father. He was permitted to sojourn in this land because it ultimately was to belong to his seed.

2. His lapse (vv. 7-11). He yielded to the same temptation as did Abraham many years before (Gen. 20:12, 13). This proves that it is not a good thing to dwell among the enemies of God's people. It was when Peter warmed himself at the fire of the enemy that he was tempted to deny his Lord.

3. His prosperity (vv. 12-17). Isaac did not intend to make Gerar his permanent place of abode. He intended only to sojourn there. While there he sowed and reaped bountifully. This prosperity was no proof that God approved of his course. God sends his rain upon the just and the unjust.

II. Isaac's Enemies (vv. 18-22).

He was not permitted long to enjoy this fruitful land. His prosperity incited the envy of the Philistines. They could not stand to see his increase in flocks, herds, and servants. Success in any calling of life will provoke envy. They demanded that Isaac should leave them. Wherever envy has begun its deadly work, there must be separation. The Philistines took as their method of getting rid of Isaac the stopping up of the wells. Isaac did not contend for them but peaceably withdrew to another place where he proceeded again to dig the wells of his father. He called them by the same names as his father had given them.

1. Esek, which means "strife" or "contention." Instead of struggling with them, he removed from them and digged another well.

2. Sitnah, which means "enmity." The Philistines strove for this well also. The name given shows that there was increased bitterness of feeling.

3. Rehoboth. Because of the bitter opposition, Isaac removed from them and digged another well which he called "Rehoboth," meaning "there is room." The third time he digged wells there was no strife. The way to have peace is to wear out our enemies with patience.

III. Isaac in Beer-sheba (vv. 23-25).

Immediately following Isaac's going up from among the Philistines, the Lord appeared to him. Our fellowship and privileges as sons and daughters of God are dependent upon our separation from the world (II Cor. 6:14-18). Following this visitation, Isaac built an altar and called upon the name of the Lord. As soon as a meeting place with Jehovah was established, Isaac pitched his tent there. Following this Isaac's servants digged a well. There is no use of going among the Philistines to get water.

After Isaac was established in Beer-sheba, Abimelech came desiring to make an alliance with him. This shows that he gained influence by peaceably withdrawing from the Philistines. His behavior proved to them that he was the friend of God.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By Scoop Himself

What's In Your Pocketbook

Did you ever look at the accumulation in your pocketbook? Not necessarily of money, at least none of that has accumulated in mine for sometime. Anyway, take a look. Here's what I found in mine:

A card with visiting hours at Hopemont. And how's all your folks?

Two dollars; something's the matter.

Mrs. Scoop's picture. Right next to the isinglass; and it's there to stay.

My lodge card. And paid to December 31, 1932.

My operator's card. White, male, five-seven; weight 160; born, 1905. They forgot to put Valentine's Day.

A. A. A. of Maryland card, showing expiration date of 1931.

Insurance identification card, just in case.

My registration as scoutmaster. Long hours with no pay and a bunch of onery boys; but oh, what fun!

An unmentionable white card with small amount of printing. I'm liable to show it to you anytime.

A card telling me I belong to the Allegheny Boat Club. And whatever happened to that I'd like to know.

The address of Paul Gatti, in New York, where he said I might stop sometime for refreshments. But I never have.

A blank check on the First National Bank. Yellow with age. So is the account.

W. Va. U.'s football schedule for 1932 and basketball schedule just past. An address of a friend in Morgantown (male); the price of tombstones, and other articles too numerous to mention.

If you haven't any use for pocketbooks any more and have already thrown yours away, try looking thru your pockets. It's just as much fun and there's a chance you'll find that old suspender button that's been missing for two years.

The Ups and Downs Of It

A traveler told Charley Fleegle, the station agent, on Tuesday that he wanted a Pullman berth.

"Upper or lower?" asked Mr. Fleegle.

"What's the difference?" asked the traveler.

"A difference of fifty cents," replied the station agent. "The lower is higher than the upper. The higher price is for the lower. If you want it lower, you will have to go higher. We sell the upper lower than the lower. In other words, the higher the lower. Most people don't like the upper although it is lower on account of it being higher. When you occupy the upper you have to get up to go to bed and get down to get up. You can have the lower if you pay higher. The upper is lower than the lower because it is higher. If you are willing to go higher it will be lower."

Exit traveler in faint, assisted by "Cooney" Hardesty and "Pin" White.

A booster of the west had just finished describing the glorious opportunities of that part of the country. "All the west needs to become the garden spot of the world," he said, "is good people and water."

"Ha!" replied a loyal Garrett countian, who still stuck to the Allegheny mountains in spite of everything, "That's all hell needs."

The Story Is Out

The story is out about the recent fishing party which included Joseph E. Harned, Oakland druggist and nature lover. Mr. Harned had his prize catch in one hand, his fishing pole in the other, and was crossing over a mill race. In the middle of the board several ducks parked beneath, became alarmed and made a sudden exit, their wings and quacking creating much noise—in fact, too much noise for Mr. Harned, for in the sudden excitement he threw his fish into the air and temporarily lost his pole. With his evidence gone, he has quite a job making the drug store habitues believe that he caught anything.

Can't We All Become Jackasses?

Over the hill trailed a man behind a mule drawing a plow. He was broadcasting:

"Bill, you are a mule, the son of a jackass, and I am a man made in the image of the Supreme Being. Yet, here we work together year in and year out. I often wonder if you work for me or I for you. Sometimes I think this is a partnership between a mule and a fool. For surely I work as hard as you, if not harder. Plowing here we cover the same distance, but you do it on four legs and I on two. So, mathematically speaking, I do twice as much work per leg as you do.

"Soon we'll be preparing for a corn crop, and when harvested I give one-third to the landlord for being kind enough to let me use this ground. Another third goes to you and what is left is mine. But while you eat all your third except a few cobs, I divide my third among seven children, six hens, two ducks and a banker. Bill, you are getting the best of me; it ain't fair for a mule to rob a man of his substance. And come to think about it, you only help to cultivate the ground. After that, I cut, shock and husk the corn while you look over the pasture fence and 'he-haw' at me.

"All fall and winter the whole family from granny down to the baby helps to raise money to buy a new set of harness and pay interest on the mortgage on you. And by the way, what do you care about that mortgage? It doesn't worry you any. Not a darn bit. You leave that to me, you ungrateful, onery cuss.

"About the only time I am your better is on election day, for I can vote and you can't. But if I ever get any more out of politics than you do, I fail to see where it is."—Snitched from another paper.

GRANTSVILLE

Old Bridge To Be Preserved

The State Roads Commission has advertised for bids for concrete shoulders on the National Highway east and west of Grantsville. When this work is completed the old highway, which is known as U. S. Route 40, will have been widened and reconditioned from the Pennsylvania State line through Maryland to Baltimore, thus affording one of the best routes in the nation.

It is understood that a new bridge will be built across Casselman River, just east of Grantsville, but that the present arch bridge will be left standing. This bridge was erected when the road was built in 1818 and is one of the distinctive marks of the early National Pike days.

There will also be several new bridges built across Shade Run, west of Grantsville. All the sharp curves in the roadway will be eliminated and the dangerous curves at Purseley Run, west of Negro Mountain will also be eliminated.

TYPHOID GERM IS HITCH-HIKER, SAYS DR. RILEY

Typhoid Fever May Be Prevented by Three Inoculations

"If you have not been vaccinated against typhoid fever within the last two or three years, go to your doctor or to the nearest health officer and be protected against it," Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, advises prospective campers, Boy and Girl Scouts, summer vacationists and all other users of the open road—whether for business or pleasure—as the out-of-doors season approaches.

"Typhoid fever," he continued, "is unnecessary and preventable. Every case is due either to community negligence or to the ignorance or carelessness of some individual. The majority of the cases of typhoid that have been reported to the State Department of Health from the counties, in recent years, have been traced either to 'carriers' or to contact with 'missed' cases. 'Missed' cases are usually mild cases that have not been recognized as typhoid until the disease has spread to others.

"A carrier is a person who has had typhoid at some time and who even after recovery carries the germs of the disease in the urine and the discharges from the bowels. Carriers who are careless in their personal habits are likely to infect any food they handle with unwashed hands. Some of the most serious and far-reaching outbreaks of the disease have been caused by drinking milk or eating foods that have been handled by carriers. Persons may be carriers without knowing it. The only way that those who have had typhoid can safeguard others is by the strictest personal cleanliness; by carefully washing the hands after visiting the toilet and by washing the hands thoroughly before preparing food for the table.

"Typhoid germs are hitch-hikers. They are picked up and spread from person to person by water, milk, flies, fingers, food. Every case of typhoid is contracted by way of the mouth and the digestive system. The State Department of Health and the local health departments can be depended upon to continue their fight against the disease, but there will still be sources of infection that can be warded off only through the protection afforded by vaccination against the disease.

"Three inoculations, a week apart, are necessary to secure this protection. The State Department of Health furnishes the vaccine to physicians without charge. Your only expense will be the physician's fee."

CARE OF FLOORS

When a floor has been well finished it should be cared for in such a way as to preserve the finish. A soft-bristled, long-handled brush, and a dust mop are essential pieces of equipment in caring for floors.

Varnished floors will need an occasional rubbing with a good floor oil to restore the oil which gradually dries out of the best of varnishes. The oil also helps to restore the finish which may have been scratched off. A good floor polish for renewing varnish and painted floors can be made at home by the following formula:

Three parts raw linseed oil, 1 pint turpentine, 1 tablespoonful of vinegar to a pint of mixture.

Mix by placing in a bottle and shaking well. Apply this mixture evenly by the use of a fine sprayer, clean mop or cloth, wipe dry and polish.

Care should be given to cloths or mops containing oil or turpentine. There is danger of spontaneous combustion if oily cloth and mops are kept in a closed closet. It is best to wash them after use or to keep them in a closed tin container.

Varnished floors may be wiped with a mop wrung out in mild soapsuds. After wiping dry, they should be gone over with oil.

Oiled floors can be washed with soap and water whenever necessary. If an oiled floor is washed often, it should have a treatment of oil once every six months to keep it in good condition.

Floor Polishes

Use either of the following excellent and cheap polishes on varnished or shellacked floors—not where the wood is worn bare, as gasoline darkens unprotected wood.

(1) Equal parts of turpentine, linseed oil and vinegar, or (2) 1 pt. gasoline with 1 pt. paraffin oil. Shake together in a quart jar. These cost only a few cents to polish a whole house. Put on with one cloth, rub with a clean polishing cloth in a few minutes. Either mixture is satisfactory, but the vinegar mixture has more odor.

Care and Treatment of Printed Linoleum

The pattern and color comes stamped on printed linoleum; therefore, the best method for protecting the surface is to give it a thin coat of colorless floor varnish. Allow several days for this to dry before giving it a coat of floor wax in order to protect the varnish from scratching and wearing.

When linoleum is too old for repair, as sometimes occure in much used kitchens, a common deck paint may be effectively used upon it. Soil, grease spots, and wax should be thoroughly removed with a good cleaner and the floor well dried before the paint is applied. Any desired color of prepared deck paint will work upon linoleum as on wood.

A bulletin "Something on Floors" giving further help on care and treatment may be secured at the Extension Office in the Court House.

Casserole of Rice and Mutton

Line a casserole with boiled rice. Fill the center with 2 cups cooked mutton finely chopped, seasoned well with salt, pepper, onion and lemon juice, mixed with ¼ cup cracker or dried crumbs. 1 slightly beaten egg, and moisten with hot water or meat stock. Place a layer of rice over top. Cover tightly and cook in a hot over for 45 minutes.

Croquettes with Tomato Sauce

Chop or grind any cooked left-over pieces of veal, lamb or beef. Season well with salt and pepper. Make a thick white sauce, using 4 tablespoons flour to 2 tablespoons fat and 1 cut of milk. Cook thoroughly and mix with twice its amount of meat. A little chopped onion or parsley or meat stock added to the white sauce will enrich the flavor of the croquettes. Allow the mixture to become perfectly cold, shape, roll in bread or cracker crumbs, then in beaten egg, and again in crumbs. Fry in deep fat until well browned. Serve with tomato sauce.

Macaroni with Ham

Break macaroni into boiling salted water and cook until tender. Beat 2 eggs slightly, add 2 cups milk, 1 cup chopped cooked ham and ¼ teaspoon nutmeg. Place macaroni in a buttered baking dish and pour over it the milk mixture. Dot the top with bits of butter and bake an hour in a moderate oven.

Meat Souffle

One tablespoon butter, 1 cup milk, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ½ teaspoon onion juice, 1 cup cold meat, chopped, 1 tablespoon flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon chopped parsley, two eggs, separated.

Melt butter, stir in flour, add milk and stir until smooth, add seasonings, and cook one minute. Take from fire, stir in beaten yolks of eggs, and meat. Stir over fire until eggs have thickened a little and set aside to cool. Rub a little butter over the top. Beat up whites of eggs to a thick froth and stir them lightly into cold mixture. Turn into greased fire-proof dish and bake in moderate oven twenty minutes. Serve at once.

The Hoover Tide Continues

A month ago in these columns we wrote at length of "The Return to the President." We attempted no forecast of the effects of this shift upon the election returns of next November. But that the movement was then country-wide, that it was strong, that it was still growing, we noted as incontrovertible political facts.

It is equally unmistakable, we think, that the return of support to the President has continued without abatement during the last month. It has, indeed, been accelerated by new occurrences. For, while it is too soon to predict with finality the predominant issues of next autumn's campaign, Mr. Hoover has become increasingly the spokesman of the sound business sense of the nation and its chief defender against the quacks and wild men.

In tracing the causes of the movement in the first week of March we stressed two main items. One was the series of vicious, libelous and utterly unfair attacks upon the President, which naturally stirred a wave of sympathy, since Mr. Hoover, by reason of his position, was unable to answer back or halt the lying statements. The other was the leadership of the President in behalf of his program of emergency credit legislation. It is not too much to say that these ably devised and well timed laws saved the banking system of the nation from an appalling disaster. At that time, it should be noted, the Democrats of the House, under Speaker Garner's skillful direction, were co-operating in passing the needed legislation nnd deservedly sharing in the credit therefor.

The last month has seen the addition of two new factors to the national political scene. One was the collapse of the Garner leadership, accompanied by the stampede of the Democrats of the House after their old gods of muddle and change. From sharing in an able joh well done, these legislators became an obstacle, if not a menace. They reawakened the country's old fears of the trustworthiness of the Democratic party as a national agent. To be sure, it was a Socialistic Republican who stampeded the Democratic majority. And Speaker Garner, after a week of hesitation, succeeded in stampeding his charges back into a semblance of obedience. But the mischief was done.

The second factor was the revival of the old greenback radicalism in Congress. The Democrats have no monopoly of this heresy. Senator Capper, who ought to know better, spoke kindly of the idea of printing enough unsecured notes to pay the bonus. Beyond question the desire "to start the printing presses" has been smouldering in Congress for some time. It usually appears at the bottom of a depression. In this case its advocates have seized hold of the bonus as an excuse. The leaders of the Legion have courageously rejected the handout proposed. But the radical elements in both parties care nothing for reason, or, it would seem, the financial safety of the nation. They want money, plenty of money, and never mind what it is worth. Start the presses!

The sound leaders on hoth sides of the House are fighting the bonus courageously. They know what fatal effects a huge issue of flat money would have upon the nation's credit and currency. We have confidence that they will win—that, at least, they will be able to sustain the veto that awaits a bonus measure at the other end of Pennsylvania Avenue.

These two factors arc plainly bringing a rapidly increasing number of voters to the President's support. In a very real sense he has been, through the last months, the spokesman of the whole nation, of its integrity, of its common sense, of its will to stand fast. There has been, there could be, no question of his soundness on all the lssues presented. He has insisted that the hudget be halanced. He has made it plain that he will veto the bonus. Through his ahle Secretary of the Treasury he has constantly influenced the House on the side of financial justice and good sense. There he stands—and the whole country is profoundly thankful for the fact.

It is, as we have suggested, too soon to attempt to predict the battle lines of the Presidential contest. For, while the Republicans' position, with Mr. Hoover as their certain candidate, is fixed, there is yet doubt as to what position the Democrats will take. It is to be said, however, that Governor Roosevelt, at the moment the most likely candidate of the opposition, has been assiduously flirting with the radicals of his party. He made no effort to hold to sound financial doctrines in the recent critical weeks. If he is nominated and the wild men take control of the Democratic convention, the issue will be clear-cut nnd welcome. It will be Herbert Hoover, sound money and sound finance against the men who would start the printing presses. Small wonder that with such a possibility looming ahead the President's prestige should so steadily mount.—New York Herald Tribune.

A PATRIOTIC DUTY

President Hoover: "The American people are no less courageous and no less wise than the people of other nations. All other great nations of the world have been faced with even greater necessity during the past year. In order to preserve their national credit these countries have increased their taxes far more severely than our deficit demands of the American people.

"One of the first requirements to the accomplishment of the absolute necessity of a balanced budget is that the people and all their organizations should support and not obstruct the members of Congress in sound efforts to both reduce expenditures and adjust taxation.

"It must not be forgotten that the needs of the government are inseparable from the welfare of the people. Those most vitally concerned in recovery are the ones whose margins of savings are the smallest. They are affected by the depression more seriously than any others; ultimately they will pay the biggest price for any failure on our part of the government to take the necessary action at this time. We can overcome this national difficulty as we have overcome all our difficulties in the past by willingness to sacrifice and by the resolute unity of national action."

President Hoover deserves a vote of confidence and to be re-elected to the presidency. During the period of depression through which this country has been passing he has stayed on the job all of the time and has worked hard and consistently to lead the country back to good times. To make a change now in leaders would seem bad policy.

In next Monday's primary, Republicans of Maryland will have an opportunity to express their confidence in the president and in his leadership and we urge everyone to go to the polls and exercise the privilege. Cast your votes for him and thus make sure that the Maryland delegation to the National Convention will be for President Hoover.

REPUBLICAN STATE CENTRAL COMMITTEE FOR GARRETT COUNTY

HARD TIMES HIT THEM ALL.

"The rich are getting richer and the poor poorer," is the stock complaint against the capitalistic system. If any have been disturbed in their minds lest this saying be true they might have their equanimity restored by looking over the government's income tax statistics. These disclose that from 1928 to 1930 the fall in the lower income brackets was slight, indicating that the wellknown depression was not hitting the average man very hard. But for the same period the taxes collected from incomes ranging from $10,000 to $100,000 is each case fell below 49% of the amount collected in 1928. The number of incomes over $100,000 fell from 15,780 to 6,152, and the tax yield from those incomes fell from 700 million dollars to 238 millions, a decline of 66%, showing that the rich were being very hard hit indeed. But the depression had only fairly started in the period from 1928 to 1930. Since that time large incomes have inevitably heen pared down even more than during the previous two years. On every hand one hears stories of men who were in affluent circumstances who are now reduced to absolute want.

But while this shrinkage of large incomes has been taking place, men of moderate means have been strengthening their grasp upon the wealth of the country. This is indicated hy the fact, as given by no less an authority than Richard Whitney, President of the New York Stock Exchange, that the 69 leading corporations of the United States during the past two years increased the number of their stockholders by about 50%. In 1929 these corporations had 2,453,000 stockholders; in 1931 that number had grown to 4,653,000. Most of these new security holders are investors of small means who have purchased stock outright with a view of holding it.

Incidentally, the re-distribution of wealth indicated by the foregoing figures discloses in a striking way the weakness of a legislative idea that the expenses of government should be paid by the few who are very rich rather than by the many who are moderately well-to-do. That theory was alright as long as times were good and everybody was making money. But the decline in the government revenues resulting in a deficit of 4 billion dollars in two years is proof enough that the idea is all wrong at a time when nobody is making money. In such a time as this it is the very rich who are hit first and hardest. It is safer to depend upon the moderate tax which 1,500,000 men might pay, then to rely upon the immoderate sum which 15,000 men may contribute.

For the comfort of those who have been laboring under the delusion that the renomination of President Hoover is "being forced upon the party by the Republican leaders," attention may be called to the fact that at the primaries in Nebraska although Mr. Hoover's name did not appear upon the ballots, more than 7,000 voters wrote it in on their tickets. The President will be renominated because the rank and file of the party demand it.

Maryland's Early State Houses

THE PROCESSION OF BUILDINGS BEGAN WHEN PALATINATE WAS FOUNDED

By HENRY J. BERKLEY

In 1694, the Royal Governor Nicholson (for Maryland was no longer a Palatinate, but directly under the rule of King William and Queen Mary) was all haste to get away from the Proprietary Town of the Baltimores and its Catholic people to the, to him, more salubrious location of Annapolis.

Without waiting for the erection of suitable accommodations, he ordered the next Assembly to convene there. This end was accomplished by an act "for surveying and laying out towns by the present General Assembly (that of 1694), six acres of land entire for the erection of a court house and other buildings for the better accommodating and entertaining of those persons . . . who have recourse to Assemblies and Provincial Courts."

Under this act the first building to be erected was the Provincial Court, now known as the Council Chamber or Treasury. It is the oldest building now standing from Colonial days in the Capital City (finished April, 1694).

In addition to the six acres for the public buildings, large embellishments to the new domain were planned. There were to be extensive gardens with shrubbery, walks, ponds and summer houses, a broad Common for the play place of the artisian class, and vast wharfage for the incoming and outgoing ships that bore the commerce of the port to the Mother and foreign countries, with wharfhouses to store goods.

While all this elegant planning was being done the Assembly convened at a private mansion—that of Major Dorsey, prominent citizen of the town—where, alas, they were to meet for several years.

Now a blight seems to have fallen on the elegant scheming of Governor Nicholson. Money, from the several sources of tobacco and the excises, did not come in with the rapidity that was expected, and later construction was not only delayed but its quality impaired.

The actual specifications of the Nicholson building—the Fourth State House of the province—may be found in the archives only in scattered fragments, here and there. Col. Augustine Herman, of Bohemia Manor, who had wandered into the colony and became naturalized, obtained the contract for building it. An agreement was reached in the House May 20, 1695, for the erection of the State House, to cost 200,000 pounds of tobacco and 350 pounds sterling. Only from fagmentary items in the journals of the Assembly can one determine what was actually done.

By the date specified the foundations had been laid (there are no known measurements) for a building in aparently, rectangular form, two stories and attic high, afterward changed to a cruciform shape by the addition of "porches" front and rear. The foundations were to be of brick or stone, the superstructure of timber, outwardly shingled on board. Alterations from the first proceeded, a front porch, then a rear one, then galleries to be set up for visitors. Again delay after delay, query after query in the Assembly as to when the House was to be roofed, tarred and finished.

Finally in the Council, June 22, 1697, hardware for the furnishings were ordered, "locks, handles and sneck bills." From another item of this date we learn that the windows of the building were six and a half feet high and four feet wide, not so large as those of the St. Mary's State House.

Colonel Herman died in 1697, before the State House was completed, adding more confusion to that already existing. Then his master workmen, who were from Philadelphia, ran away to their homes, and Major Edward Dorsey and Mr. John Hammond, both local men, were made "trustees" to see that the State House was completed.

The Assembly, still in the Dorsey Mansion, in session, provided for the arrangement of the interior of the State House as follows:

That the great room below stairs (be) for Courts and Assemblies to sit in. The two rooms on the right hand above stairs for jury and land office records to be kept in, and the front porch for the Commisary's office and the records of probate of wills be kept in. The two rooms in the upper lofts, one for the County clerk to keep the court records in, and the other for the Annapolis Town clerk to keep his papers in; and in the other two rooms on the left hand, one for keeping the records of the Chancery Court, the other for keeping the records of the Governor and Council in. The room above the back porch to be kept for the clerk of the House of Delegates. The loft above the front porch, over the Commissary's office, to be for the hanging of a lanthorn and for a Committee room.

On June 11, 1697, the House adjourned, having first recorded its thanks to the Governor for a present from him of a copper vane and "broad pennant" for the service of the State House. It also directed that the arms of England, "insanguened," be sent for to go over the main entrance.

It will be again noticed that there is no mention of chimneys for the edifice; they were later added, and Dutch stoves were ordered, "to be kept in the offices."

On May 29, 1697, the trustees reported to the Assembly that the State House was not yet ready for occupancy, and further alterations were made. Again a drummer boy was furnished to notify the members of the approach of a session, some as early as six o'clock in the morning.

For the first time, in 1698, the legislative body met together in the State House.

On July 22, 1699, while the House was in convention, the Nicholson State House was struck by lightning. The Calvert county delegate, Mr. Hanson, was killed, and other members "greviously injured visiting our sins." Governor Blackiston proclaimed and appointed the next Sunday "as a day of Thanksgiving for such great mercy from Almighty God in vouchsafing so signal a deliverance," and "ordered" the entire colony to divine service, and "abstain from bodily labour." Considerable damage was done by the lightning and fire that followed it. This was repaired and the building made again habitable.

On December 9, 1704, the Fourth State House was burned to the ground. After the conflagration had spent itself a committee from the Governor and Assembly reported that a new State House, the fifth in order, could be built upon the "brick foundations," and the Hon. William Bladen undertook its construction. Security was given to the Governor to the amount of 2000 pounds sterling for his proper performance within a set time of eighteen months. Beyond that the building was finished within the required time, we learn but few details.

Apparently the construction was ill done, for in 1721 the Assembly appointed another committee to view its condition and make repairs. It was ordered that the shingling be renewed, while a cupola, flagstaff and brass fane were added to it. From the report of the committee we learn that this building had dormer windows, just how many is not stated, something that is not in accord with the local Renaissance style.

In 1724 the State House was found to be "in a very decaying condition" and extensive repairs were made, costing 245 pounds sterling. Some of the bills of this period are to be found in the "Iron Chest Book," a journal that carried from about this date to 1767.

The Fifth State House lasted to the days of Governor Eden, the last Colonial executive, when the present ambitious structure (now largely changed) was commenced (1774) and completed, except the dome, just before the Revolutionary War began.

We have now reached the domain of the architect against that of the undertaker (builder) and for the Eden State House, James Clerk was appointed, with William Buckland as assistant. Both were of English nativity. The latter had already constructed some of the finest private homes of Annapolis, which still stand today, the Chase, the Hammond and (possibly) White Hall, the residence of Governor Sharpe. He was brought in to assist in the interior cornices and wood carvings, in which he excelled. Buckland died, but Clark eventually completed his work in 1785, the disturbances attending the rebellon of the Colonies having delayed it, the present dome being then added and covered with copper plates.

There is no known drawing of either the Fourth or Fifth State House, and the scraps of specifications do not allow of any reconstruction. The latter is supposed to have been a "neat brick building," in form an oblong square, "entered by a hall." Opposite the door was a judge's seat, and on both sides were rooms for juries to retire. On the wall hung a portrait of Queen Anne, representing the sovereign presenting a charter to the City of Annapolis.

The Privincial Court House of 1694, at Annapolis, certainly the oldest public one in the Capital City, possibly the most ancient one in the United States, has in the long years of its existence been used for many purposes. Its first service was that of a provincial courthouse, but it has been used for many other ends, even, legend states, for the storage of powder during the early period of the Revolution. Long before this, it served, after the partial destruction of the State House in 1690, and its complete ruin in 1704, for the debates of Governor and Council. Certainly during the administration of Governor Nicholson, probably in those of Blackiston and Seymour, it was the principal place of such meetings. The measurements as given in the Act of 1694 have all been verified. The unknown builder must have been a man of far greater technical knoweldge than Augustine Herman, contractor for the State House. His work, so far as the outside walls are concerned, is a monument to his skill in bricklaying and mixing mortar, only excelled at Vauter's Church, Port Royal, Virginia, a structure of about the same age. The well-laid brickwork is as intact today as the one after it was set, and nearly 250 years of winter's storm and summer's heat have passed over it. The shingle roof has been replaced by one of slate, which does not change the outward appearance to any extent.

The interior has been much altered. The stairway has been removed and a vaulted ceiling of brick separates the lower from the upper floor, making the latter inaccessible. The first floor is now divided into several small rooms, having no relatin to its original purpose. Windows in the upper floors have been closed, and an additional one opened in one corner of the main floor. From 1736 to 1767 the building was used for a Treasury. It is extremely probable that the vaulted brick ceiling was added at this time, and two heavy iron chests for the currency built into and behind false walls. These chests were purchased in England in 1736, and in 1922, when repairs were being made to the structure they were found in the walls. When the chests were opened one contained an account book with the dates 1736-1767; the other one was empty.

The act of 1694 for the building of a courthouse included this statement:

The court house shall be forty-six by twenty-two feet in inside measurement, two stories high, eleven feet pitch for the first story; with porches and porch chambers fourteen feet long and twelve feet wide of the same work; the roof to be girt and hipped, to be covered with cypress plank, shingled with cypress shingles, with convenient apartments in the upper story for one office and three small rooms for juries, the porch chambers to be fitted for one office each. At one end of the house a place of judicature of such form as the State House at St. Mary's City; at the other end a chimney with a fireplace therein, above and below, with a staircase by the side of the chimney; the stairs, windows and doors uniform; the lower floor to be laid of brick, the upper one of plank. The building to be paid for with imposts, before the first day of April (1695), on all liquors, fifty pounds (sterling) starting, and fifty pounds in October, with 50,000 pounds of tobacco out of the public levy.

This building was completed and occupied by the court May 8, 1695, according to the records. From an architectural viewpoint it is nothing more than a replica, on a somewhat smaller scale, of the St. Mary's State House, it being designed solely for the service of the Provincial Court.

In conclusion! One gathers from sundry scattered notes that on the main floor was a rostrum, chair and desk, or table, for the presiding judge, raised two or three steps above the level of the floor, and below and before the rostrum a table, with stools or short benches for the clerks and attorneys, who wrote their papers before the eye of his Honor. Over and against the wall were desks with inkwells for the use of the attorneys. On one side lay a jury box, on the other hand places for witnesses and culprits, then a rail; and behind this benches for other witnesses and spectators to ease themselves. Still further back stood another rail, with a gate in the middle, then a passage way to the entrance of the courtroom. This arrangement still holds in far-away courthouses in the country districts of Maryland.

Tragic Death of Russell H. Brown

The community was deeply shocked by the news of the tragic death of Russell Harvey Brown, 26 years of age, on the night of April 22 from a self-inflicted gunshot wound.

Mr. Brown had retired for the night but left his room about 11:30 o'clock and ialled at a neighbor's house to secure his gun, which he had loaned several days previously, stating that he desired to kill a dog. After securing the fierarm he went to the rear of Harvey and Ream's store, in Loch Lynn, and committed the deed.

The gun was a short-barreled 20-gauge shotgun and the imprint in the soft earth clearly indicated that the butt of the gun had been placed at a point slightly in front and the barrel set in such position that the full charge entered the anterior portion of his head. Death must have been instantaneous.

Russell Brown was a general favorite among his numerous friends, genial and of a kindly disposition. He was an expert automobile mechanic by occupation. He is survived by his father, George M. Brown, and by two sisters and two brothers.

After a short service at his late home, the remains were conveyed to the White Church, where interment was made. The services were conducted by Rev. A. Bailey, assisted by Rev. S. A. Jessee.

The pallbearers were Marshall Brown and Wilmer Brown, brothers; Austin White and Grant Harvey, cousins; Floyd Cook, brother-in-law, and Osborne Roy.

His father has asked us to state that "the cause of his death will necessarily have to be laid at the door of those low, degraded parasites who have brazenly and persistently violated the 18th Amendment."

CITY COUNCIL REDUCES TAX RATE TO 68 CENTS

Is Second Reduction in As Many Years—Will Save Citizens Approximately $3,500

DOG ORDINANCE IN JUNE

A reduction of twenty-two cents in the city tax rate, or from 90 cents to 68 cents on each $100 valuation of property, was declared at the regular monthly meeting of the Mayor and Town Council of Oakland, held Monday night.

This is the second reduction in the tax rate for Oakland residents in as many years, it was stated, and will save the taxpayers of the town approximately $3,500 during the year. It was felt by members of Council and Mayor Stemple that by careful and economical management on the part of the officials, the amount sought to be collected in taxes for the year would be sufficient to bear the operating expenses of the city.

Forty-eight cents was levied for municipal needs such as officers' salaries, street lighting, street and water works maintenance and 25 cents for paying off bonds and for interest coupons. The tax rate in 1925 was $1.25 on the $100.

Other Business

Other business transacted at the session included the approval of the bonds furnished by the collector and city clerk, the acceptance of an ordinance relative to dogs, which will require all dogs to be kept on the property of the owner and the passing of several amendments to the ordinance relative to water users.

The ordinance relative to dogs will receive final sanction at the meeting of Council in June.

Monthly bills, amounting to $1,140, were ordered paid.

City Proclaims Clean-Up Week

The Mayor has proclaimed clean-up week from May 17 to May 21, and is asking all citizens of Oakland to thoroughly clean up their premises and paint-up their properties so that the city may present a good appearance on Memorial Day, Monday, May 30th.

All trash will be carried away in trucks hired by the City Council and must be placed in a convenient place for the drivers on Tuesday or Wednesday, May 17 or 18. No ashes will be hauled, Mayor Stemple stated, and no containers will be returned unless specifically requested.

Barn of Pearl Sanders Struck By Lightning Last Night

The large barn on the farm on E. Pearl Sanders, of near Hutton, which was struck by lightning about 11:15 o'clock last night, was completely destroyed by fire.

The building contained some straw, and the remains of a cow and calf, which were evidently killed by the lightning, were found in the ruins. It was stated this morning by Mr. Sanders that he had $1,400 insurance on the building, and $600 on the contents.

The first real thunder storm of the year also did other damage last night, lightning striking the chimney on the vocational building of the Oakland High school, formerly the Maffett property, and loosening the bricks.

F. F. A. BOYS TAKE PART IN VOCATIONAL FIELD DAY

Twenty-eight Attend from Oakland High School Chapter

Twenty-eight members of the Oakland F. F. A. chapter of the high school, their instructor, O. T. Graser, William Spoerlein, of Gortner, and two boys from Grantsville, attended Vocational Field Day at the University of Maryland, College Park, last Saturday, several of them taking part in the contests conducted there.

Wayne Fitzwater, who injured his leg, was unable to compete as the county winner in the F. F. A. oratorical contest. Wayne Hamilton and Earl Spoerlein were members of the poultry judging team which participated. A boy from Middletown won the oratorical contest, and Frederick High school won first place in the poultry judging contest.

The majority of the boys attended the F. F. A. luncheon in the University of Maryland dining hall, at which W. A. Ross, national secretary of the F. F. A., was the principal speaker. Dr. Metzger, head of the agronomy department, also spoke, and Dr. Kemp, assistant director of the experiment station, presented the awards.

The party returned on Sunday, visits being made enroute to places of interest in Washington, the experiment station at the University of Maryland, and the government experiment farm at Beltsville. The trip was made in Mr. Spoerlein's truck.

Bond and Jack Weber Presented Radio Program Last Sunday

Bond and Jack Weber, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Weber, of Oakland, presented a program over Station WMMN, Fairmont, W. Va., last Sunday evening from 6 o'clock until 6:15 in connection with an advertising program from the Weber flower shops and Oakland greenhouses.

Bond Weber, aged 13, played "What the Swallow Sang," by Bohm: and "The Butterfly," by Schmetterling. Jack Weber, aged 11, played "Valse Sentimentale," by Rolseth, and the well-known "Shepherd Boy." They then rendered a duet, "Military March," by Schubert.

A poem, composed by the mother of the boys, was read during the playing of the selection "Shepherd Boy," as follows:

Tucked away in the memories of my childhood
Is the smile of a loving face,
And a gentle hand that led me—
No other could fill its place.

When childish woes oppressed me
And I was filled with terrors and tears,
That loving hand caressed me
While she shared the wisdom of years.

Now years have grown upon me—
Both joy and sorrow I've known,
But the memory always lingers
Of that wonderful mother at home.

Methinks I'm not any different
From thousands of others today
Whose eyes still fill with memories
Tho it's years since she went away.

You, to whom God's been so generous
As to allow your mother to stay,
Fill her dear heart with your loving—
Send flowers to brighten her day.

And you, whose mother's a memory,
Of a love so long gone past,
Pause in your cares for today—
Wear a flower for the memories that last.

GET NEIGHBOR TO HELP IN MAKING TOWN BEAUTIFUL

Mayor Stemple States Clean Properties Are Best Advertisement Town Can Have

Entrants in the Oakland Yard and Garden contest, being sponsored by the Oakland Civic club, are being asked to "Get their neighbor," pointing out that everyone who does this will be doubling his own efforts for the planting and improvement of his own yard.

"Yard improvement, like the measles, is contagious," stated Miss Lottie M. Loar, president of the Civic club. "When one family sets out to make their place attractive by planting flowers, shrubs, and trees, by developing a nice lawn and by creating an out-door living room, their friends and neighbors soon feel an irresistible urge to follow suit.

"When two or three home grounds are so improved the appearance of an entire block is changed for the better."

Mayor Grover C. Stemple, who has proclaimed a clean-up week for Oakland, commenting on the local contest, stated, "I know of no better advertisement for any community than the justly earned title, 'the city of beautiful homes and grounds.' "Beautiful cities are growing cities. They attract new residents and travelers. Tourists prefer to make their necessary halts in such places. New industries are no longer located merely because of transportation facilities. The home environment, the physical attractiveness of the entire community have come to be important factors in municipal growth.

"If we will make our home surroundings more beautiful by setting out trees, shrubs, and flowers we will provide every citizen with a healthier environment."

The county committee will meet in the county agent's office on Friday, May 6, and on Friday, May 13, and anyone desiring a loan must get his application to the committee by the latter date, otherwise it will not be received in Washington before the time limit expires, Mr. Carter stated.

HOOVER AND WILLIAMS WIN IN MARYLAND PRIMARY

President Defeats Dr. France In His Native State by 10,000 To Assure Nomination

VOTING IS VERY LIGHT

Dr. Joseph I. France, Senator from Maryland a dozen years ago, and aspirant for the Republican presidential nomination, was second best in the settlement of his home State argument with President Herbert Hoover on Monday.

The President carried Monday's preferential primary by nearly 10,000 votes on the basis of practically complete returns, gathered from one of the most indifferent contests in many years.

President Hoover was backed by the Republican organization in the State, headed by Senator Phillips Lee Goldsborough and Galen L. Tait, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee.

The organization was not so successful in its backing of State Senator Wallace Williams for the senatorial nomination against former Representative Linwood L. Clark.

Clark gathered the majority of the popular vote, but Chairman Tait of the Republican State Committee, has made the claim that Williams carried enough of the counties to give him the nomination in the Republican State convention under the unit system of voting in force in Maryland.

Williams carried practically the entire Eastern Shore, part of the Second District and his home county, Cecil, which also was the only one taken by France, where he also lives. Williams carried twenty of the counties of the State, accounting for sufficient delegates for the nomination.

Legion Discusses Plans For Memorial Day and July 4

Preliminary plans for the annual Fourth of July celebration at Oakland will be made at a special meeting of Proctor Kildow Post No. 71, American Legion, next Monday evening in the city hall at 7:30 o'clock, according to A. G. Hesen, post commander.

The celebration, if held, will not be under the joint auspices of the legion and fire department this year, as the State firemen's convention is to be held in Frostburg from July 4 to 8.

Memorial Day plans were discussed by the legion at its regular meeting on Monday evening, and I. R. Rudy and E. P. Kahl were appointed to confer with members of the Knights of Pythias lodge relative to holding the services on Sunday instead of Monday, May 30, as was done last year.

There will be a card party on May 26 for the benefit of the legion, it was stated.

Permission was granted to the legion to clean up the cemetery, and this will be done in the near future.

HEADS OF MOUNTAIN LAKE ATTEND RURAL INSTITUTE

Meetings Conducted In Nearby Towns Attract Large Crowds

Rural institutes were conducted during the past week by Miss Sara B. Huff, music leader, and Rev. I. S. Middaugh, director of Mountain Lake Institute, especially in Preston county, and at each of these meetings an organization was set up through which these communities will cooperate with the Institute program of the summer and the Tableland Musical festivals at Fort Necessity and Somerset.

Miss Huff met large groups at both Terra Alta and Kingwood and developed in each city units of her organization of the "Friends of Music." At the rural church institutes conducted by Mr. Middaugh at Brandonville, Bruceton and Albright, contacts were made with rural organizations and definite work outlined in connection with the summer program.

Rural Ministers' Conference

Miss Huff and Mr. Middaugh will attend the Rural Ministers' conference at Jackson's Mills and present there the Institute program. Many rural organizations of West Virginia are planning to come to the Park later in the summer for their group meetings. Miss Huff hopes to have several of her young people who are interested in Tableland music, to attend the music camp at Jackson's Mill in May.

TO CONCLUDE BOYS' WEEK ACTIVITIES ON SATURDAY

Hikes and Out-of-Doors Sports Program Will End Celebration

The celebration of Boys' Week in Garrett county will close Saturday with an out-of-doors program of hikes, sports, etc., by the various youth organizations and individuals.

Boys' Week, under the auspices of the Oakland Rotary Club, began on Sunday morning when special sermons and addresses were delivered to the boys and girls in the churches of the county.

Talks on youth featured the afternoon in the different high school centers, the speaker for Oakland being Rabbi Abraham Goodman, of Cumberland, who spoke in the Maryland Theatre following a parade of drum corps, bands, scouts, school students and the Rotary Club. Rabbi Goodman's talk was on international relationships. Musical selections by the high school glee clubs, the Crellin and Oakland bands and the Harmonica band of the parochial school, completed the program. Mayor Grover Stemple welcomed the citizens and visitors; Rev. D. C. Trimble offered the invocation and Rev. Johnson pronounced the benediction. Mr. E. Ray Jones, president of the Rotary Club, presided.

On Tuesday afternoon the seniors of the local high school, were given a trip to the Youghiogheny Hydro-Electric plant on the Youghiogheny River where they were guided by C. E. MacMurray, superintendent, who explained in detail the manner of producing electricity by water power, while on Wednesday Dr. George E. Clarke, county health physician, spoke to the students of the school on youth and health. Dr. Clark, during the week, also visited all other high school centers in the county where he made like addresses to the students.

This morning a court trial was enacted by the students of the school and this afternoon the Gramar school children and those of the Parochial school will be guests at a free movie in the Maryland Theatre, the picture being "Ben-Hur," which is sponsored by the Rotary Club. Yesterday afternoon the high school students were the guests of the Rotarians when the same picture was shown.

New Lights Placed at Entraces To Court House in Oakland

Theree electric lights surmounting well designed pillars of an enduring metal, have been erected at the entrances to the Garrett County Court House within the past few days by employes of the Monongahela West Penn Public Service Company. Two of the lights have been placed at the Third street entrance, while one has been erected at the side entrance on Alder street. The lights are connected with the street service.

The lights formerly used at these points of the Court House were connected with the service wires separately, but had not been in use for some time.

HOOVER DEFEATS FRANCE IN PRIMARY OVER 3 TO 1

Smallest Vote In History of Any Election In Garrett County Is Cast Monday

WILLIAMS BEATS CLARK

With the smallest vote ever cast in any election in Garrett county, and with the utmost indifference in the attitude of the voters, President Herbert Hoover won out ever his opponent, Joseph Irwin France, for the Republican nomination by a majority of almost four to one, or 494 to 157.

President Hoover carried all but three voting places, district 11, where each candidate had two votes, and the second and third precincts of district 8, where France led by the figures 2 to 1, and 29 to 5. A total of 31 votes was cast for an uninstructed delegation.

Wallace Williams won over his opponent Linkood Clark, for the nomination for the United States Senate, 374 to 241.

The first precinct of district seven had the largest number to vote, which was 57. Fifty-two voted in district 13. Four votes each were cast in district 11 and the third precinct of district 8.

Wallace Williams carried fifteen of the voting places, tied in two of them, and lost six, but his majority was 133 in the entire county.

The official returns are printed in today's issue of The Republican.

Fines Imposed on Several For Law Infractions

Fines were imposed on several men for various infractions of the law during the past week, and while some of the fines were paid others convicted went to jail.

Harry M. Stahl, Oakland, was fined $25 and costs last Friday evening on a charge of unauthorized use of an automobile belonging to David Hardesty. An appeal to the Circuit Court was asked by Stahl and the hearing will take place at the September term. The trial was before Justice Gonder.

Edwin Groves, Mountain Lake Park, was fined $2 and costs on Saturday evening for being drunk and disorderly. The arrest was made by Policeman Nethkin.

John B. King, of Deer Park, released on April 23 from the Maryland House of Correction after serving a sentence of nine months on a liquor charge, was placed under arrest on Sunday morning by Sheriff Walter Haenftling on charges of being drunk and disorderly and assault and battery, his wife being the victim. King was given a hearing before Justice A. S. Teats Tuesday morning when he prayed a trial by jury and was committed to jail in default of bond for his appearance.

Thomas E. Wyatt, of Pittsburgh, Pa., was fined $2 and costs on a charge of reckless driving on Sunday. Corporal Curric, of the State Police, made the arrest and the hearing was before Justice Teats.

Charles B. Grambling, of Johnstown, Pa., was fined $2 and costs for reckless driving Thursday by Justice A. S. Teats.

Oakland High Athletes Take Part in Cumberland Meet

Seven athletes of Oakland High School and their coaches, Foster O. Speicher and John M. Thayer, went to Cumberland last Saturday where the students took part in the Chamber of Commerce athletic meet, held at the Allegany county fair grounds.

Approximately twenty schools were represented in the meet. Those going from Oakland were Joseph Rice, Edward Maroney, Arthur Lawton, Jos. Sollars, Philip Bowman, Charles Davis and Maurice Butler. None of the Oakland boys placed in the various events.

Bids Opened For Work on The National Highway in County

Bids for the construction of 7.45 miles of concrete shoulders on the National Highway between Keyser's Ridge and a point east of Grantsville in this county, were opened on Tuesday in the offices of the State Roads Commission in Baltimore.

The bid of $102,974, submitted by Thomas, Bennett and Hunter, Westminster contractors, was the lowest price made among those bidding for the work.

At Tiffin, Ohio, a wealthy man, foolishly and wastefully, spent $1,000 on the burial of a pet dog, placing the body in a $400 bronze casket.

ESAU SELLS HIS BIRTHRIGHT
(Temperance Lesson.)

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 25:27-34.
GOLDEN TEXT—And every man that striveth for the mastery is temperate in all things. Now they do it to obtain a corruptible crown; but we an incorruptible.
PRIMARY TOPIC—A Trade Between Brothers.
JUNIOR TOPIC—A Hungry Man's Costly Dinner.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Controlling Our Appetites.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Indulgence or Self-Control?

After years of married life, Isaac and Rebekah had no children to gladden their hearts, for Rebekah was barren. In response to Isaac's entreaty twins were born whose names were Esau and Jacob. The Lord revealed to Rebekah that the elder should serve the younger. The common law among the Israelites was that the elder should have the place of preeminence.

I. Boys with a Difference (v. 27).

Esau and Jacob were in decided contrast. They differed in appearance and disposition. Every child born into the world possesses a peculiar bent which we call "individuality," back of which is personality. No two are exactly alike, even twins, as Esau and Jacob. The wise parent, the wide-awake teacher, the educator seek diligently to discover this individuality in every child and to give it direction according to the laws of the individual being.

1. Esau was "a cunning hunter," a man of the field. He was energetic and of a roaming disposition, impulsive, and self-indulgent. He lacked foresight and was under the sway of appetite.

2. Jacob was "a plain man dwelling in tents." He was a home boy, choosing to look after the flocks and herds and other affairs at home. He was not, however, a negative character, for he showed great capacity for affection and administration.

II. Parental Favoritism (v. 28).

1. Isaac loved Esau because he did eat of his venison. He ought to have loved him because he was his son. It is a sad commentary upon a father that his love for his son had such a sordid basis as that of his appetite. Isaac, however, is like many today whose love is secured through such an appeal.

2. Rebekah loved Jacob. We are not told why she loved Jacob. Naturally, his being much at home would cause a peculiar love to spring up between him and his mother. Perhaps it was because of his being of a similar disposition. Both Jacob and his mother displayed unusual traits of cunning. Cleverness is the bond which strongly binds together many people.

III. A Birthright Sold (vv. 29-34).

1. Esau's profanity (Heb. 12:16, 17). He sold his birthright for a bowl of pottage. The birthright was the right of being at the head of the patriarchal family, a position of honor and influence, as well as being the inheritor of a double portion of the father's estate.

Esau came from hunting, physically exhausted. In this moment of distress he thought only of that which promised immediate satisfaction. He was willing to relinquish all claim upon the future if only his present desire could be gratified. A profane person is one who for the enjoyment of the present will forfeit all claim upon the future. He would gladly gain both worlds, but seeing that mess of pottage, he let go of the future for the enjoyment of the present. Swearing is profanity, but not of the most common variety. To be under the sway of appetite is to be profane. What profanity about us! For a moment's sinful pleasure men and women are throwing away innocence, happiness, and their souls eternally. This is most serious, for their acts are irrevocable.

2. Jacob's cunning. It was right that Jacob should have the birthright for it was according to God's plan which had been announced (v. 23), but his scheme to get it is to be condemned. He took advantage of his brother's weakness to drive a sharp bargain. The same thing is practiced when under the force of necessity unlawful interest is exacted or property is bought under price because one is obliged to sell. To get rich at the expense of another is to practice Jacob's sin. Modern competitive business methods to a decided extent are of this type. Let each one ask himself, "Is my name Jacob?" The end never justifies the means. God said, "The older shall serve the younger." It was his plan that Jacob should be at the head of the family, and God was able to bring about his own plans.

Islands Once Peopled by Races of Indians

Before the arrival of the white man in the West Indies, the inhabitants of the islands consisted almost entirely of two branches of the American Indian race, the Arawaks and the Caribs. These had made their way from the South American mainland, through the whole chain of the Antilles as far as the Bahamas. The Caribs had come later and had ousted the Arawaks from all of the Lesser Antilles and from some of the larger islands. The Caribs were warlike and aggressive, while the Arawaks were more peaceful agriculturists, with well-developed arts. The people of the Bahamas called themselves Yucayos and the chief tribe of Cuba was the Ciboneys, these also being branches of the American Indian race.

Old records declare that Haiti had over a million inhabitants. The forced labor demanded by the Spanish conquerors, together with the actual massacres and war losses, practically wiped out the native population of Haiti, Cuba and other islands in less than a century. The importation of negro slaves began as early as 1505, at first for the mines and later for the plantations, and Haiti became predominantly negro. Part of the island had become a French colony during the Seventeenth century, and the outbreak of the French revolution led to the proclamation of universal freedom in 1793. A few years later the Haitians, former negro slaves, declared their independence of France and successfully maintained it against the French forces.

Nothing Modern About Workings of Vitamins

"Knowledge of the vitamins is not modern," Dr. Ruth F. Wadsworth writes in Collier's. "It is as old as prisons and sailing vessels; older than Columbus, and probably contemporary with Noah. It is only the name which is new.

"We owe the rather boring systematization of the vitamins—their classification and naming as Vitamin A, B, C, D, E, and soon F and G—to the experimental method which has crept upon medicine in the last 40 years.

"How the Elizabethans arrived at the knowledge that lemons would prevent scurvy I don't know. I think it is probable that they stumbled onto that fact because lemons were easy to carry and to keep and could be given in the form of juice to the sailors, without a lot of fuss. Our present-day knowledge tells us that scurvy is caused by a lack of vitamin C, which is found in oranges and lemons and tomatoes and apples and bananas."

Languages of the World

Whitaker's almanac estimates that among European languages, English is the mother tongue of the largest number, 180,000,000; Russian second with 140,000,000; then German, 80,000,000; French, 70,000,000; Spanish and Italian, each 50,000,000; Portuguese, 25,000,000. Among all the languages of the world, Chinese is spoken by the largest number, about 400,000,000 if the various dialects are included. Doctor Vizetelly's figures, as given in the World almanac, are rather different. He gives English as spoken by 160,000,000 and understood and used by 60,000,000 more who do not consider it their native speech; German spoken by 90,000,000 and understood by 20,000,000 more; Russian, 90,000,000; French spoken by 45,000,000 but understood and spoken by at least 75,000,000 more; Spanish, 55,000,000; Italian, 45,000,000; Portuguese, 30,000,000.

Coal Age "Reproduced"

A restoration of the Coal age with its luxuriant carboniferous forests and strange primeval animal life of over 250,000,000 years ago is on exhibition at the Field Museum of Natural History, Chicago.

The exhibit represents a landscape of the so-called Pennsylvania period when the land flora of the paleozoic era was reaching its culmination in vast swamps that covered much of the territory then raised above the sea in the northern hemisphere.

In Europe and in northern Asia, as well as in North America, these forests gave rise in the course of time to the enormous accumulations of plant materials that now constitute the world's principal coal beds.

Denominational Ravens

Are ravens religious? Apparently the army thinks that they are. There are four ravens at the tower of London which are regarded as "on the strength" of the Guards battalion on duty there. And as Tommy Atkins' religion is recorded, so is that of the ravens. One is reckoned as Church of England, one as Roman Catholic, the third as Free Church, and the fourth as "General." Whether they turn out for church parade—and never make a mistake and parade with the wrong denomination—is not quite certain.—Montreal Herald.

The piano solo by Earl Willis, feebly accompanied by six members of the Boys' Glee Club of the high school, was enjoyed by the audience at the Maryland Theatre last Sunday afternoon.

Rabbi Goodman had a good speech, put it across in fine style and didn't waste time doing it.

Henry McComas is now well on his way in raising a basketball team.

Where Your Dollar Goes
(Written from New York)

"I can't begin to name the places I've been. I was nice and clean when I first came out of the bank at Oakland, but that was before I got into some dirty pockets and pocketbooks. Then, too, I was hid from the sunlight for a long time once. I thought Bill never would open his pocketbook, and when he did finally open it I was so cramped that I couldn't move for a long time. I had creases worn in my back and my corners had been terribly crumpled.

"One day I got into Scoop's hands. He got me from racking his brain in order to write his column. I was handed over to him by the Boss Editor who in turn had received me from Melvin Weimer for a subscription to The Republican, and Melvin had received me from Archibaldson for a load of coal.

"I didn't stay long with Scoop, as I helped to pay his board up at Archibaldson's. Mrs. Archie let me get into Harry Miller's till in return for some cow meat, but my visit there was short as Harry turned me over to a farmer for some butter. I never left town, even though I was expecting to be buried in a sock, but the farmer had his shoes repaired at Earl Durst's and I went in exchange. Earl then took me to Frank Smouse's store and bought several kinds of groceries and I again exchanged hands. Frank then slipped me to Bill Butt for his water account. Then Mike Maroney got me for hauling snow and ashes and whatnot. The city street department then visited Jesse Ashby and paid his county and State taxes and I was included in the roll. Then Frank Rathbun got hold of me and from him I went to Prof. Bittle for teaching Otis Lawton his Civics, and he sure earned me.

"Mr. Bittle took me to the National Bank and I was glad of the rest, although a lot worse for wear. While there I toiled to make interest, but was finally drawn out by Bob Hoffman and paid to Ray Tects for part payment on his ear. Ray gave me to his son and it wasn't long before I went for candy at Henry Lauer's. Henry paid me to a farmer for eggs. The farmer bought some gas at a local station and the next thing I knew I was in a till at the A. and P. Store.

"And that, Scoop, is the reason why I had to say good-by to my Garrett county friends, and I know I'll never get back there again. I liked it there, too, and could have gone on doing a lot of good. If you see any of my brothers, sisters, cousins, tell them to stay if they can."

"So Much That Ain't So."

In a recent issue of Collier's, a national weekly magazine, was a statement, "It ain't so much people's ignorance that makes so much trouble, it's their knowing so darn much that ain't so."

That sentence would be good to dwell upon during these times when a lot of propaganda is being spread over the county.

The basis upon which the propagandists have built their gas attack is solid. But they are trying to instill into the people so "darn much that ain't so," that it is stirring up people unnecessarily.

Citizens of Garrett county are able to think, if they will just put forth the effort, and when these outlandish and impossible statements are made as the gospel truth, take the time to think before passing judgment.

There is so much more good to balance the bad in a lot of subjects the propagandists are talking about that they never mention it. They are afraid to. Don't let the wool be pulled over your eyes. Try thinking these things out for yourself.

SQUARE DEAL FOR MOTHER URGED BY HEALTH DOCTOR

Adequate Care Necessary Before, When and After Baby Comes

A square deal for every mother-to-be is urged in connection with the nation-wide observance of Mothers' Day which this year falls on Sunday, May 8.

"Mothers' Day," Dr. J. H. M. Knox, Jr., Chief of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health, said, in calling attention to the day, "recalls memories that make all of us want to pay our tribute of honor and reverence to all mothers. To those of us in public health who are especially concerned with the health of mothers and young children, the day has additional significance, because of the opportunity it gives to stress the importance of adequate care for every mother-to-be as well as the veneration we give to all mothers.

"What we speak of as 'adequate' care means care and advice, before, when and for some weeks after the baby comes. Such care safeguards two lives, not only one.

"To understand why such care is important, all you need to do is to glance at the records of our own health department, or of those of any other health department. For every 165 babies born in the State last year there was one maternal death. There is hardly anything that is more saddening than a motherless baby, and for the sake of both mothers and babies, we want to safeguard our Maryland mothers in every possible way.

"Every expectant mother needs special eare during the whole of the waiting period. It is much easier for the mothers-to-be who live in the larger cities to get such care than it is for those who live in the rural districts, many of them at long distances from their family physicians. In addition, even when care is available, many mothers and fathers do not realize that such care is necessary, and they make no provision for it. Mothers of limited means especially often wait until the last minute before calling a physician, and such delays often mean the loss of not one life only, but of two.

"What are known at 'parental' clinics—which provide such care for women of limited means—are available to all who need them in Baltimore City. More recently, with the approval of the practicing physicians of each section, similar clinics have been established in six of our Maryland counties—Harford, Cecil, Allegany, Calvert, Anne Arundel and Frederick, and it is hoped that this service will be gradually extended to every place in the State where it is needed.

Ten of those issued were applied for on Saturday, usually the busiest day in the week for the Clerk in this department. Three were marked "don't publish," while three applicants were refused licenses.

Homemakers' Column

By Miss Margaret Kirby Burtis
Home Demonstration Agent

"The dullest room may be brought to life by a few potted plants in much the same way as by the ticking of a clock or an open fire."

With an abundance of sunlight, sufficient water, good drainage and regular care any house plant will thrive. We should water our plants when the surface soil appears dry and the earth crumbles to the touch. The old-fashioned saucers are not healthy for the plant as they hold surplus water around the tiny rootlets in the lower portion of the pot. Sooner or later they will decay and the health of the plant will be undermined. Some protection must be made to keep moisture from injuring the furniture or woodwork. A practical way is to have a galvanized pan made about two inches deep to fit the window ledge. This can be painted to match the woodwork and filled with pebbles 1½ inches deep.

If one pot is used alone a saucer two sizes larger filled half full of pebbles can be used. Fresh air is necessary, but extremes in temperature should be avoided. A sudden draft, lasting twenty minutes, will cause a fuchsia to drop all its buds and most of its leaves. Moist air will eause healthy plants. Planas breathe thru the pores of their leaves, therefore it is well to spray the foilage of most house plants once a week.

To Control Plant Licc, Etc.

(For all) Mix 7 parts of oleic acid with ten parts of nicotine (black-leaf 40). This will make a thick salve-like material. Dissolve two level tablespoons of this material in one gallon of soft water in which has been dissolved a small amount of laundry soap. Spray or dip plants in this solution.

Only the NEW NuGRAPE Has Their Delicious Flavor

You'll admit there is a goodness in the flavor of grapes—and that's why the New NuGrape is different from all artificial flavors—different as gold and brass.

In a certain valley, made rich and productive by reason of the moisture, in season, from surrounding hills—a famous brand of grapes is raised. The vineyards are renowned for the rich, wine-like flavor of the great purple clusters of fruit. And it has been our obligation to YOU, to transport that natural delicacy of flavor—to your home—to places where soft drinks are sold.

The New NuGrape — made exclusively with Welch's Grape Juice — costs no more than any artificial grape substitute. It's now on sale everywhere for 5¢.

THE LIFE BLOOD—

"Advertising is the life blood of an institution if properly handled," believes Richard P. Chapman, successful mid-western independent retailer who has doubled his business during the past ten years in spite of chain-store competition.

Advertising should be the last expenditure cut and the first to be increased, is the advice that he gives in an article in The Rotarian magazine to merchants trying to meet present-day conditions.

"This does not mean that all advertising is good," he declares. "Neither does it mean that any form of advertising will continue to produce in the future simply because it has produced in the past.

"In the careful consideration of all factors which affect the future of good business, the merchant can well afford to devote considerable time to the study of advertising. In many cases it has been used as a shovel to heave out unwanted goods instead of as a spoon to feed the customer desired merchandise.

"All types of advertising must be studied constantly in an effort to ascertain that which serves to best advantage in acquainting the store and its merchandise with the prospective customer in its trade territory.

"The amount to be spent," he continues, "should be determined as part of a fixed expense budget. Authorities vary as to the proper amount, but it generally runs from two to five per cent of sales. Once this amount is determined, it should not be arbitrarily spread over the entire year but kept liquid to take advantage of either increase or decrease in volume as the year progresses.

"Money available for advertising should be carefully fitted to the mediums best suited both to the business and to the amount allotted. A program should then be laid out far enough in advance to permit the purchasing of merchandise and the correlating of it with advertising, the display windows and the interior displays. If followed carefully, this plan gives advertising a real message and it will produce. Profits are made by advertising, but not all advertising is profitable."

MUNCIE SHOWS HOW TO RESTORE NORMAL PROSPERITY NORMALLY

Business men at Muncie, a typical Indiana small city, have a plan for luring dollars out of teacups and socks and putting them to work making jobs for the jobless, better homes and steadier business for the retailer. The idea is to call attention of citizens through an organized campign to the fact that it is to their self interest to repair, remodel and modernize homes now when labor and material costs are favorable.

It is a simple plan, but it works. An investigator for the Rotarian Magazine learned that within two weeks after the campaign started in April last year, unemployment in the building trades had shrunk from 80% to to 20%, while calls on relief agencies had dropped by more than half. Similiary favorable results have followed more recent efforts.

"Not only that," the magazine's survey reports, "but retailers were benefited too. Corner grocers sold more bread and beans and ham; dairymen, more milk. Dry goods merchants noted that assets long frozen in accounts began to melt. One dealer in building supplies publicly declared that 15% of his business could be directly traced to the campaign."

An initial $2,000 budget was raised in Muncie, all of which was spent for newspaper advertising under direction of the Chamber of Commerce. But that $2,000 released more than $100,000 in wages for the unemployed which, comments the magazine's representative, "remembering this is not the age of miracles, compares rather favorably with the loaves and fishes story of the New Testament recollection."

The Muncie plan did not aim at a sudden building boom, but rather a steady development through home improvements. The slogan, "Let those who can afford it do the thing that ought to be done," was reiterated in newspaper publicity and in speeches before service clubs, women's clubs and other orgaizations.

The economic soundness of the Muncie plan is rooted in two facts: that the building and materials industry ranks first in America in point of men employed; and that 60 to 85% of the money spent on reconditioning existing structures goes to labor.

Now, as after the war, building is behind normal needs. To stimulate recondltioning of existing structures will, it is believed, restore activity in the building trades and industry without inducing the frantic over-building of 1923-28, which in some degree was responsible for the crash of 1929.—The Rotarian.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

The annual levy for the county was made by the Board of County Commissioners and printed in The Republican. The county rate of taxation was $1.07 and the State rate was 17¾. For schools of the county $14,000 was appropriated and for roads the sum of $6,875 was set aside.

The remains of the four-year-old child of Samuel Mosser was found in a glade about three-quarters of a mile from its home. The child became lost early during the preceding fall and although every effort was made to find it no trace of it could be learned.

Mayor A. G. Sturgiss was sworn into office by Clerk Tower. Willian. Hinebaugh was elected president of council and John C. Dunham, clerk. George M. Mason was appointed town treasurer.

Justice of the Peace A. B. Gonder moved his family from West Liberty street to the William Castcel farm north of town.

The dwellings of George DeWitt, Hoyes, and that of Samuel C. Hoye, Deer Park, were consumed by fire.

Jacob S. Meyers proved himself to be a crack rifle-shot. He fired fifteen rounds at a four-inch bulls eye at one hundred yards and—missed every time.

The Protsetant Episcopal church fight in Oakland was being waged fast and furious. Neither side showed any sign of giving in and the battle was to be fought to a bitter end. The vestry nailed up the doors of the church to prevent the entrance of Rev. Hipkins. He left for Baltimore to consult with Bishop Paret regarding the trouble. It was said that the Bishop sided with Hipkins against the vestry. Interesting developments were expected within a few days.

A Tribute To the Late Michael J. Canty

One more good man has gone; one more good citizen has been removed from our midst. From the multiplicity and urgency of the concerns of this life around him and the lives of those dearest to him, he took time for secret meditation and thanksgiving for the many blessings handed down to him from an Omnipotent Creator and Father.

"The strenuousness, the urgency, the hurry of the thing in view cannot prevent a good thought from taking possession of the mind before the business of the day is entered upon. Benevolent thoughts have the same effect upon the soul as a seal has upon melted wax: for, should but one appreciative sweet thought enter ever so slightly into the mind, it is sure to leave some impression upon the heart."

Such was the soul of Michael J. Canty of endearing remembrance. Such was the heart with which he greeted his many admiring, affectionate relatives, friends, and associates. In his faith was enrolled the lessons of his conduct and his example and he kept those pages open before him to guide and consult when undertaking his every new responsibility. He deprived his God of nothing to which that God had a right. He was taught to revere and love his Maker by exceptionally worthy parents. This writer knew the father of the late M. J. Canty at Westernport when the cider Canty was a very young man, during the pastorate of Rev. Fr. O'Sullivan, some sixty-five years ago.

When his amiable soul was recalled from his prison of clay so unexpectedly, just so suddenly he glimpsed the searchlight of the royal celestial court convening at the foot of the dazzling jeweled throne to welcome this newest, most welcome trembling arrival.

Those of his friends who will miss him most can be assured that his very last words to his Lord was, "Be it so, Father, because it is Thy will."

The loss of this loving husband and father is in the light of a blessing from Celestial land when we consider it is the order of Providence.

Jersey Breeders May Register Purebreds at Half Price

Mr. John H. Carter, local county agent, has received information from the American Jersey Cattle Club that provisions have been made that purebred Jerseys past two years of age may be registered, for a limited time, at a fee of $5.00 instead of $10.00.

This temporary reduction was made by the national organization because of its appreciation of the present financial conditions of the country and in order that many worthy purebred Jerseys which have not been registered, may now be registered at this saving to their owners.

THE MARYLAND BIBLE SOCIETY'S CORNER

"The Word of Our God Shall Stand Forever"

During the period of spiritual depression immediately following the second war with England, Baltimore lost, for a few years, its zeal for Bible distribution. Alexander Contes Hanson when called upon to speak in a meeting of the Bible Society, held at this time referred to the interest in the Bible in England and Russia, and expressed the hope that Baltimore might escape punishment for failure to support the Society. Among other invictives that burst from his lips was the following: "May an awful judgment as a visitation for its contempt for God's word prove a retribution.

In 1819 and 1820, Hon. Nicholas Brice, Chief Justice of the City served the Society as its president. Under his administration, in 1821, an Auxiliary Society was organized in connection with the American Bible Society, with Robert Smith, formerly secretary of the navy and of state, as its president. This auxiliary does not seem to have lived very long.

The first society in Maryland outside of Baltimore, was the Female Bible Society of Rockville, Montgomery county, and the Frederick Bible and Charity Fund society came second. The Frederick society came into being on December 11th, 1817, "at early candlelight," and came as a response to notices placed in the newspapers of the preceding week, summoning together "all those that are disposed to contribute their aid in disseminating the glorious plan of Salvation revealed to a sinful world." The quaint invitation stated that "these persons were invited without distinction of party, sect, or denomination, to attend, with a view to the formation of a Society that may tend to accelerate the important objects promlsed." After some discussion, the group decided that the scope proposed in the original plan was too broad. Accordlngly a second meeting was called on January 5th, 1818, at which "The Frederick County Bible Society" was formed, "for the sole purpose of disseminating Gospel truths." This society was the fore-runner of the Young Men's Bible Society of Frederick City, which superceded the parent body in 1825. In 1826 the Society underwent another change, being known from that year as the Young Men's Bible Society of Frederick county. Under that name this Society was incorporated by the State Legislature on March 14th, 1828. It has stood for the unity of the churches in Frederick, from its foundation unto this day, and has now rounded out more than a century of valiant service for the Kingdom of God.

Through most of these auxiliary societies flourished for a season, then passed into oblivion, leaving but scant records of their achievements, we should never forget that the modern federation of Churches came to its worthy place in our urban life largely on the trail blazed by these pioneer Bible Societies. In Maryland, these organizations were the first in which members of different denominations met upon an equal footing and in common fellowship. In a report of 1822 we read these cheering words: "It is pleasing, on such an occasion as the present, to behold all sects and denominations of Chrisitans, extending to each other the right hand of fellowship and brotherhood; animated with one common anxiety to promote the glory of the Master of the harvest."

McHENRY

If you have a gray-haired mother
In the old home far away,
Sit you down and write the letter
You put off from day to day.
Don't wait until her weary steps
Reach heaven's pearly gate,
But show her that you think of her
Before it is too late.

Celebrating Maryland's Birthdays

THE CONTROVERSY OVER KENT ISLAND REMAINS IN THE BACKGROUND

By MARK S. WATSON, In the Baltimore Sunday Sun

While the Washington bicentennial seems likely to absorb the attention of most of the tourists engaged in this year's historical pilgrimages, Maryland antiquarians are already engaged in plowing through sources of information on Chesapeake Bay events of the pre-Washington era. For the State is committed to some sort of celebration of the Tercentenary of 1934, commemorating the official start of Lord Baltimore's colony at St. Mary's on the Potomac.

But before the Calvert party entered Chesapeake at all, white men were dwelling on Maryland soil, and without waiting for the leisurly Tercentenary Commission's plans for St. Mary's to get under way, the prior Maryland invasion by William Claiborne and his men in 1631 is being studied. Episcopal churchmen of the Eastern Shore last October, for example, celebrated the first Christian service on Maryland soil with a pageant on Kent Island, not far from the spot where, presumably, the Rev. Richard James officiated three centuries ago.

In the current issue of the Maryland Historical Society's Quarterly Raphael Semmes, curator of the Peale Municipal Museum, brings source of information on Kent Island history—the Claiborne-Cloberry papers from the High Court of Admiralty Records in London. A transcript of these papers, giving a detailed account of the charges of piracy and misappropriation, made against Claiborne, plus his vigorous rejoinders, was sent to the society years ago. It was dealt with at some length at that time by Mrs. Hester Dorsey Richardson, who now, by the way, is engaged in a new book including the subject. Mr. Semmes, too, is preparing a book of his own, to follow the Historical Society's serial publication of the Claiborne-Cloberry papers.

Meantime the Anglo-American Records Foundation is engaged in the large enterprise of organizing resources for research into the origins of Anglo-American life; one of its principal sources would be these same High Court of Admiralty Records, which it aims to publish in detail in so far as their entries concern the American scene.

That costly venture's work is far in the future, but the labor now being performed with the transcripts in the Maryland Historical Society library promises to clarify greatly the somewhat hazy knowledge of Claiborne's exploits in the years before the Ark and the Dove nosed their way up the Chesapeake and in the critical years immediately afterward when two adventurous groups of Maryland pioneers were jostling each other into armed conflict. From that conflict Calvert emerged with success, thanks to his greater influence at court, but it was not many years before the Virginians with whom Claiborne was allied moved into Maryland and, with the shifting politics of Britain, eventually broke down the Calvert palatinate.

Inevitably the bitterness of the times was perpetuated in the contemporary record, so that Claiborne has come down into modern history as an interloper and an absconder and a pirate, from one viewpoint, and, from another viewpoint, as a courageous and defiant pioneer defrauded of his rights. In this dual role he has ample company; Drake was pirate or patriot, according to viewpoint, just as Washington was rebel until his side won and Lee to this day remains merely a rebel to the G. A. R. veteran.

The Admiralty's Cloberry-Claiborne papers themselves fail to establish either side firmly, for, naturally, they include both the charges and the countercharges, the denunciations of Claiborne and his glorifications, and one can hardly emerge from a study of them with any fixed belief other than that the Kent Island pioneer was a vigorous and dashing adventurer whose enemies had no reason to adore him.

Even the point of whether he was deprived of his rights can hardly be disposed of Lord Baltimore, to be sure, was granted rights of settlement in such territory up to the fortieth parallel as was not already settled; and there is no doubt whatever that Kent Island was "settled" by Claiborne, so that Baltimore's title to it was obviously cloudy. But encouragement from the royal government to Claiborne, Cloberry and their associates had clearly been for "trading," and unless this can be interpreted as including the right of settlement, Claiborne's own title to the island would seem to have been quite as cloudy as Baltimore's. Indeed, Cloberry and company definitely recognized Calvert's right to Kent Island and sent as their new representative an agent committed to friendly relations with St. Mary's City. Claiborne replied hotly that his own backers had been misled.

Yet without expecting at this late day to find in the Admiralty records evidence any clearer than the Admiralty itself recognized at that time in clearing up the fine point of the dispute which kept both Claiborne and Baltimore in a fury for many years, it is possible to regain the vivid picture of the scene here three centuries ago when life on the great island in the Chesapeake and life on the mainland at St. Mary's must have been pretty much alike.

Experience at Jamestown and at Plymouth had taught England a good deal about settlement problems in the new world. No longer were there illusions about wealth to be suddenly acquired, but a realization that profits would come only by patient toil. Thus when Cloberry & Co. sent forth their adventurers upon the ship African in the spring of 1631, they gave Captain Claiborne not merely soldiers but artisians and humble workmen.

There was a "mayd servant to wash our linnen" and a group of four men designated as kitchen help and housework. There was one Thomas Bagwell, who, identified as a trader, was no doubt a man of special experience deemed adequate for dealing with the wily redskin. There were smiths and carpenters and one John Parr, hagkeeper, this 1631 notation offering fresh evidence of the realization that pioneering was not all romance; by 1632, indeed, Claiborne had two designated swineherds, as well as two designated gardeners. One of the latter was appropriately named Mole, undoubtedly selected for that purpose by the same sardonic authority who assigned Thomas Cakebread to duty as a cook and Thomas Woodhouse to duty as carpenter. And among extraordinary pioneering carpenters must be listed Cuthbert Percy; what would a 1932 carpenter do with that name?

In the early roll is encountered Richard Popeley, no doubt the popeley who owned Popeley Island (which later became Poplar Island and now, split in three sections by the ravages of tide and storm, is known as Jefferson Islands), also Richard Thompson, who became Claiborne's most active aid and figured largely in the "war" with the Calverts.

Aboard the African, too, was "Henry Pincke, reader of prayers; he breake his legg and was unserviceable." We know that he was put ashore and his duties as minister taken over by that "Richard James, Minyster," who conducted the first religious services on Kent Island. A 1632 entry records an expenditure for "Bibles and bookes for prayers in the howse and boates"; and another for "a blacke velvet cushion and blacke cloth for the pulpitt." Later it appears that "wee framed the church" and made further expenditure "for pewter dishes for the house of J. Christ and for glass in the windows." There are repeated references to tithes for Parson James and to payments to his successor, Parson Cotten, "for his panes with us this year." Religious worship went hand in hand with the work on the defenses, for scattered among these devout notations are mentions of moneys paid out "for 2 paire of greate hinges for the Fort gate," and "for 2 murtherers and 2 chambers bought for our defense."

The best of defenses did not avert disaster. Hardly had the goods been brought ashore from the African and laid in storehouses hastily erected near the shore of the bay than fire broke out in the night, almost completely destroying storehouse and nearby huts and also the goods, so Claiborne reported to his London associates. Nor did Claiborne feel sure that it was an accident, for his list of indentured personnel includes a note that

> Richard Haulsey was thought by the men to have fyred the houses willingly and therefore they would not endure him. Whereupon I sold his tyme, being a very untoward youth.

Unhappily it was too late to help six of the original ship's company who > being the ablest men dyed within 3 or 4 months after our arrival whereof greate cause was the hardness they indured by loose of our goods and cloathes by fyre.

They were quickly replaced by men whose indenture terms were probably bought from Virginia planters. But not always was Claiborne able to get bargains in human flesh, so his London associates shipped him more servants, whom the boy pioneer sometimes criticized. One he describes as "old and decrepit," and another pair he remarks were "weak men and dyed in 4 or 6 months." In one of his Admiralty Court answers to the charges of extravagance, he explains that "many of them were weake men and not able to defend the fort against the Indians ....." At length, the trials dragging on, Claiborne's deposition sets forth some of the troubles of a seventeenth century trader with the early Marylanders. He apparently felt it necessary to explain why he engaged the aid of available Virginias.

> It had been impossible for the said Claiborne with lesse than 40 or 30 men at least to have managed the said trade and plantacon. That it was necessary in the months of March, April, May, and June for the said trade to keep at least 3 boats abroad well manned at the least with , 7, or 8 men in each of them with gunns, armes and ammunition and other necessaryes which the said Claiborne by the accompt did every year. .....
> That our trade with the Indians is allwayes with danger to our lives: And that we usually trade in a shallop or small pinnace being 6 or 7 Englishmen encompassed with two or 3 hundred Indians. And that it is as much as we can doe to defend ourselves by standing on guard with our armes ready and our gunnes presented in our hands. Two or 3 of the men must looke to the trucke that the Indians doe not steale it, and a great deale of the trucke is often stole by the Indians though we look never so well to it. Also a great parte of the trcuke is given away to the King and great men for presents. That the usual manner of that trade is to shew our truckle, which the Indians wil be very long and tedious in viewing, and doe tumble it and tosse it and mingle it a hundred times over, soe that it is impossible to keepe severall parcells a sunde. And if any trader will not suffer the Indians soe to doe they wilbe distasted with said Traders and fall out with them and refuse to have any trade.
> The interruption of the Marylanders and their taking the boate & pinnaces of the said Plantacion with the trucke and goodes in the same & their killing three men, and the want of a patent asaforesaid, was the greatest cause of loose and damage.

There are many references to these marauding Marylanders other than the followers of Lord Baltimore, who was just then endeavoring to prove Claiborne a pirate because of the famous naval exploits on the bay. Cloberry & Co. at the outset sided with their American agent in that dispute, eager to support his claim to Kent Island. That out of the way, they sued him for misappropriation of their funds in the trading post he had established.

In other words, Claiborne, for all the dignity of offices held under the Virginia government and for all the vigor with which he had pursued trade and colonization—not only on the island but on the adjoining shores and at the mouth of the Susquehanna—had to defend himself alternately against the Western Shore Calverts and against his own business associates in London. It was a time when a querulous man might have been expected to let the plantation work slide. Instead, the notations run on soberly:

> For our trade wee made many voyages, did little good and had many hindrances from the Marylanders. Our principal employments for our men were making 2 windmills. .....Wee planted 200 plants of tobaceo.

Landscape Effects

Gardeners need continually to be reminded that broad landscape effects are best secured by limiting their choice of material to a few carefully selected types and then using them in sufficient quantities to develop mass effects. One of the most pleasing settings for a semi-publie building in Washington, D. C., was accomplished by the sole use of Pfitzer junipers. By varying the height of individual specimens, the billowy effect of this excellent evergreen is shown off to perfection.

Lavish use of Japanese cherry trees around the National Capitol is another case in point. Equally pleasing results could be obtained through the use of flowering dogwood, redbud, flowering crabs, azaleas and many other free flowering subjects.

These mass effects can be developed with herbaceous material as well as with woody types. Crocus in the lawn, or narcissus, naturalized along some slope are particularly attractive. The woods phlox, Phlox divaricata, is ideal for generous groups in shady locations. Drifts of Virginia bluebell are also charming, as wood blood root and trilliums. Annuals making good mass effects would certainly include the Rosy Morn petunia and, among the perennials, the iris, in various types, is a good subject. In addition, the Japanese iris is unusually appealing when massed along water courses and Columbines, day lilies and peonies are well suited to broad landscape treatment.

It is true that many types are not adapted to such use, but our appreciation of many forms often is dulled because we do not see them in large enough masses.

Disinfecting Seed Potatoes

Seed-potato treatments to prevent certain kinds of seed-borne diseases should not be confused with other diseases such as virus degenerated diseases; internal fungus or bacterial infections.

Seed-borne potato diseases are of three kinds: (1) Those in which a lack of vigor is inherent in the tubers (virus or degeneration diseases such as mosaic, leaf roll, and spindle tuber); (2) those due to internal fungus or bacterial infection which seed treatments cannot reach; (3) those due to surface infection by fungi and bacteria. Only the last class can be combated by seed disinfection.

Besides the seed tubers, the soil also may be contaminated by disease organisms. Seed treatment usually pays, even when the soil is contaminated, because it kills the disease organisms that are on the set and therefore most favorably situated to cause decay or injure the sprout.

What Diseases are Reduced by Seed Treatment?

(1) Common scab causes corky incrustations, or rough-pitted spots, isolated or spread over the tuber, usually shallow or slightly raised, sometimes fairly frequently cropped and deficient in humus. Is augmented by lime and fresh manure. Is reduced by crop rotation, use of humus-building crops, and soil acidification by sulphur and acid-producing fertilizers.

(2) Black scurf, Rhizoctonia. Black scurf appears as black, tightly adherent particles on the skin of potato tubers; also causes russeting and cracking of the skin. On the growing plant it causes sprout injury stem rot, girdling, and aerial tubers. An important factor in dclayed and uneven stands. Cumulative and persistent in the soil when frequently cropped to vegetables.

(3) Blackleg—Blackleg apears as a dark, discolored area extending into the tuber from the stem end and followed by decay. The decayed tissue is moist or slimy and is usually demarked by a black line at the margin. In the field it causes rot of the set or of the basal part of the stem, accompanied by intense blackening.

Blight and storage rots are not controlled by seed treatment. However, seed treatment helps to reduce the risk of contaminating healthy potatoes which are handlel together with diseased ones and hence lessen rotting of sets.

Seed Treatment is Profitable

By the use of quick methods of disinfection, whereby one man can easily treat 100 bushels of seed in a day, the cost of seed treatment can be brought down to $1 an acre. Gains in yield as a result of seed disinfection frequently reach 20 to 30 percent, and the gain in yield and quality of prime stock is often even greater.

What Kind of Seed to Plant

Seed potatoes should be (1) of a variety adapted to your season, (2) produced in a region favorable to vigorous growth of potatoes; (3) derived from healthy plants, and (4) firm and unsprouted. Certified seed carries a record of its source and a generally reliable declaration that the proportion of disease does not exceed certain low limits.

Should Apparently Clean Seed Be Treated?

Is it necessary to treat seed that shows no visible disease? Under certain conditions treatment of such seed is unnecessary. However, seed treatment often keeps sets from decaying after they have been planted. In parts of the country where the rotting of sets is a serious problem seed treatment of apparently clean seed is likely to pay.

Sorting

Potatoes showing severe scab or black-scurf infection should not be used for seed, even though treated. Tubers affected with rot or internal discoloration of any kind should be discarded from the seed stock.

When to Treat

Seed treatment should be given before sprouting occurs and prior to cutting. Treatment may be carried out several weeks in advance of cutting if care is taken not to place treated tubers in bags, baskets, or bins in which untreated potatoes have been stored, unless the containers also are disinfected.

If potatoes are not planted at once after they are cut, the sets should be placed in crates or baskets of not more than 1 bushel capacity; they should be protected from heat above 70 degrees F. and from rapid drying; and they should be poured from one container to another several times to keep them from sticking together.

Methods of Treatment

(1) Corrosive Sublimate

Dissolve 4 ounces of corrosive sublimate in 2 quarts of hot water, then make up to 30 gallons with cold water. Use only wood, enamel ware, or concrete vessels, since this solution corrodes metals and is weakened thereby. The solution weakens with use; therefore 1 ounce of dissolved sublimate to each 30 gallons of solution should be added after each lot has been treated. An entirely fresh solution should be prepared after treating four lots.

The standard time of treatment is one and one-half hours. In order to shorten the process, the tubers may be dipped in or sprinkled with water, then covered with burlap sacks so as to keep moist for a day or two before being treated. The soaking period may then be reduced to one-half hour.

(2) Organic Mercury Dip

Special directions are given on the containers in which these dip products are sold. The treating solution is usually made by adding 1 pound of chemical to 2½ gallons of water. A true solution is not formed, but instead a milky liquid containing suspended particles of the chemical. Dipping the tubers momentarily suffices to coat them with the chemical, which, being insoluble, is not readily washed away after planting. Thus the fungicidal action is prolonged.

Handling of the Potatoes During Treatment

Potatoes are most conveniently treated in wire baskets or slatted wood crates. Metal containers, however, cannot be used with corrosive sublimate. Burlap bags are less desirable, as they cause corosive sublimate solutions to lose strength and impede the rapid coating of the tubers in the organic-mercury dip. A drain board should be attached to the treating vessel to carry the surplus solution back into the vessel.

MT. LAKE PARK

The only activity in the Park, social, financial, or otherwise, is the erection of an 85-foot stack at the plant of the Mt. Airy Canning Company plant. It was fabricated at the plant of the Modern Machine Company, York, Pa. An expert from the plant is in charge of its erection.

Hope springs high in the breast of many owing to the excessive crop of dandelions. People are funny that way. To the naturalist the dandelion is a thing of beauty dotting the fields and lawns; to others it is a nuisance, to be grubbed up and destroyed; to others it means a good mess of "greens" cooked in the potlikker of a ham bone-a-la Huey Long; while to others it spells just that many more gallons of dandelion wine.

We wonder if the fire plug proposition has died abornin'?

OAKLAND HIGH HOLDS SIXTEEN OF THIRTY RECORDS MADE IN VARIOUS ATHLETIC MEETS AMONG SCHOOLS

Kitzmiller High Holds Ten Track And Field Records and Is Second In Line

Oakland High School holds the greatest number of county athletic records in Garrett county, an inspection of the records recently received from the Playground Athletic League of Baltimore, shows, its athletes having set marks in sixteen of the thirty events. Two years ago Oakland and Kitzmiller High were tied with eleven each.

Kitzmiller High, with ten records, is next in line, while Kitzmiller Grammar holds two records, Oakland Grammar one, and Accident one. $7,000 VERDICT AWARDED PLAINTIFF IN CRASH SUIT

Mrs. Flota Bice Hartman and C. A. Oswell Asking $70,000 for Damage in Car Mishap

IS HELD IN CUMBERLAND

Bulletin!

A verdict in favor of the plaintiff, Mrs. Flota Bice Hartman, for $7,000, was handed down this afternoon in the U. S. District court at Cumberland.

Testimony in the $20,000 damage suit of Mrs. Flota Bice Hartman, of Washington, D. C., against the Keelcy Construction company, of Clarksburg, W. Va., was opened Tuesday before the grand jury in United States District Court, at Cumberland.

The plaintiff's testimony was completed Tuesday, and four witnesses for the defendant company also testified. Mrs. Hartman seeks damages for alleged personal injuries, suffered on the night of November 16, 1929, when a car in which she was riding was said to have struck a barrier on the road between Kitzmiller and Deer Park. The road was under construction, and the plaintiff claims the construction firm had no lights on the barrier.

Mrs. Hartman was riding with Arthur Oswell, 23, years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Oswell, of Washington, D. C., and Mt. Lake Park, for whom Mrs. Hartman worked. Oswell, who was driving the car, was killed in the crash. His parents entered suit against the construction firm, asking $50,000 damages. This suit will also be tried during the present term of Federal Court in Cumberland. The two suits were filed in the Garrett County Circuit Court, in May, 1930, and were removed to the Federal Court at the request of the defendant company, because of the fact that the plaintiffs resided in Washington, and the construction firm is located in Clarksburg, W. Va.

E. R. Jones, of Oakland, counsel for the plaintiff, declared in his opening statement that Mrs. Hartman, who was at that time Miss Flota Bice, of Deer Park, Md., was employed by the Oswell family in Washington, and left the latter city with young Oswell on the afternoon of November 16, 1929. She planned to visit her home at Deer Park. About 8:30 o'clock that night, the machine crashed into the barrier of heavy logs on the road

Oakland Relief Committee Disbands for Summer

At a meeting of the Oakland Relief Committee held May 3, it was decided to discontinue the relief work which it has carried on since last autumn. The members felt that the purpose for which the organization was formed has been satisfied.

The committee did not disband, however, before making a strong recommendation that during the next few months persons should plant large truck gardens and in some cases should procure a cow and raise hogs and chickens to insure them milk, meat and eggs in the winter ahead.

It also expressed its deep appreciation for the generosity and cooperation exhibited by the citizens and merchants of this town and county without whose support the work would not have been possible.

A complete report of the committee will appear later. The members authorized that the small cash balance be turned over to the Social Welfare Worker to be spent in the county at her discretion.

CHILD IS ELECTROCUTED FRIDAY AT BLOOMINGTON

Barefoot Boy, Standing On Wet Ground, Grasped Live Wire

Standing on wet ground, a barefoot boy grasped the loose end of a disconnected electric wire while playing in the yard of his parents' home in the town of Bloomington, Garrett county, last Friday afternoon and was electrocuted. The child, Paul Dixon Howdeschell, Jr., eight years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul D. Howdeschell, died within an hour.

Death resulted from shock and heart failure, according to Dr. T. E. Berry, of Piedmont, West Va. The wire carried 115 volts of electricity. Dr. Berry summoned several men to apply artificial respiration and two pulmotors from the Luke plant of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Compeny were also used.

Officer G. H. S. LaMotte, of the State Police; Russell C. Ross, Floyd Davis and Orlando Biggs worked on the unconscious child and suceeeded in restoring his breathing, but the shock caused heart failure, and the boy died as a result.

Definite plans for a Future Farmers of America camp at Deep Creek Lake have been arranged by Dr. J. D. Blackwell, from July 15 to 17, concluding with a meeting in the amphitheatre at Mountain Lake Park for a bi-centennial celebration.

The Maryland F. F. A. comprises several hundred boys from the vocational agriculture departments of the high schools and it is expected that a large number will attend. The camp will begin on Friday, July 15. In the afternoon there will be study periods, group meetings and a field trip to be followed by a recreational period of swimming and games.

Potato Experiments To Be Carried on In Garrett County

One acre of ground, a short distance from Oakland, has ben purchased from Harry Porter by the United States Department of Agriculture for potato experimentation, according to John H. Carter, county agent.

The ground will be used exclusively for the breeding of potatoes, in developing varieties which will resist diseases and most suitable for economic production. Different kinds of tubers will be used in the various experiments and it was stated that probably 160 varieties would be planted this year.

Representatives of the Agriculture Department will be here on May 16 to plant the ground. Providing climatic conditions are favorable, the project might become permanent in the county, and the findings of the U. S. Government and the University of Maryland Extension Service would be distributed to potato growers all over the country.

Rush, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Rush, of near Accident, driver of the car, sustained a broken neck and was dead when a passing motorist extricated the body from beneath the wrecked car. William Reed, 23, also of Accident, died at 11 o'clock Sunday night at the Hazel McGilvery hospital, Meyersdale, Pa., from a broken spine and other injuries. Reed was taken to the hospital by a passing motorist and was attended by Dr. C. C. Glass. He was employed as a farm hand by Mr. Rush and his home was near Swanton.

Samuel Frazee, son of Alexander Frazee, of Friendsville, owner of the car, and a Mr. Wilt, sustained minor injuries. Corporal Claude W. Cubbage of the State Police, investigated the accident.

The machine was traveling toward Frostburg and had started to ascend Chestnut Ridge when it skidded and overturned. Corporal Cubbage said the machine was apparently traveling at high speed when the driver lost control. The road was not wet, the officer said.

HEART ATTACK FATAL TO E. Z. TOWER THIS MORNING

Failed To Rally From Sinking Spell at 5:30 o'Clock; Had Improved Following Operation

IN HOSPITAL TWO WEEKS

Edward Z. Tower, aged 69 today, and Clerk of the Circuit Court for Garrett County since 1887, died at Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, Md., at 6:00 o'clock this morning after having been a patient in the institution since April 29 where he was admitted as a surgical patient following a brief illness as the result of a perforated intestine.

Following the operation, which was performed the day of his admittance to the hospital, Mr. Tower had shown remarkable improvement, according to reports received here by members of his family and his friends, but suffered a sinking spell at 5:30 this morning from which he failed to rally and death, probably due to a heart attack, resulted within half an hour.

Mr. Tower was born in Oakland on May 12, 1863, and was therefore 69 years old. He was the son of William H. and Rebecca Totten Tower. His education was such as the public schools of his boyhood here afforded, supplemented by wide general reading and private study. Having determined to enter the legal profession, he became a student in the office of John W. Vitch, then State's Attorney for Garrett county, and was admitted to the Garrett county bar in 1884.

He did not enter into the active practice of law, however, but became assistant to his father in the Clerk's office. When the senior Mr. Tower died in 1887, Mr. Tower was appointed temporary clerk, pending the fall election. In the following November he was elected by a good majority on the Republican ticket, and again, in 1893, and ever since that time he was regularly chosen by the citizens of the county as the term of his incumbency expired.

The deceased was a member of the local Presbyterian church and was also a member of the lodge of Odd Fellows when that organization flourished in Oakland a number of years ago.

The deceased is survived by his wife, two sons, Thurl, a student in the University of Maryland, and Roger, a member of the Maryland State Police force. He is also survived by two sisters, Mrs. Edward I. West and Mrs. G. A. Fraley, and by one brother, Charles A. Tower, all of Oakland. A sister, Miss Cora Tower, died a number of years ago.

As a public official Mr. Tower was thorough in his administration of the office which he so long occupied and was esteemed by every one in the county for his obliging manner and attention to detail.

His remains will be brought to Oakland this afternoon. Funeral services will be held on Saturday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock in the Presbyterian church with the pastor, Rev. Walter B. Brock, officiating. Interment will be in Oakland cemetery.

Lesson for May 15

JACOB AT BETHEL

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 28:10-17.

GOLDEN TEXT—And, behold, I am with thee, and will keep thee in all places whither thou goest, and will bring thee again into this land; for I will not leave thee, until I have done that which I have spoken to thee of.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Finding God in a Strange Place.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jacob Makes a Great Discovery.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Jacob Learned at Bethel.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Face to Face With God.

I. Jacob's Flight (v. 10).

1. The occasion (27:34-46). Jacob had by deceit and trickery secured Isaac's blessing. Because of this, Esau determined to kill Jacob as soon as his father was dead. When Rebekah realized that Esau's anger was hot against Jacob, even to the point where he was likely to kill him, she urged him to flee to her brother Laban. Rebekah had a mixed motive. She not only realized that remaining at home meant death, but she realized that if Jacob remained in that land, he would likely marry a heathen woman and thus defeat God's purpose regarding the covenant nation. This latter she pressed upon Isaac as a motive for sending Jacob away. Isaac at once recognized the wisdom of her suggestion. Isaac, alive to Jacob's destiny, issued his command as to marriage and bestowed upon him the covenant blessing which had come from God Almighty to Abraham (Gen. 17:1). This covenant (Gen. 28:1-4) embraced:

a. A numerous offspring (v. 3).

b. Possession of the promised land (v. 4).

c. Everything included in the Abrahamic Covenant (v. 4).

2. The journey (v. 10). He went toward Haran. He was fleeing from an outraged brother in order to save his own life.

a. Be sure your sin will find you out. Jacob deceived his father. He, in turn, was deceived by his children.

b. Wrong home life has its perils. Isaac knew that the blessing was to be Jacob's yet he planned for Esau to have the place of pre-eminence. He was willing for the sake of a little venison to give to Esau that which God had planned for Jacob.

II. Jacob's Vision (vv. 11-15).

Jacob's soul was peculiarly tested. He had to leave home and mother. On the way to Haran night overtook him and he was obliged to sleep in a field with a stone for his pillow and the canopy of heaven for a covering. It was under such circumstances that the Lord gave him the wonderful vision at Bethel.

1. He saw a ladder reaching from earth to heaven (v. 12). This suggests a means of communication between earth and heaven, between man and God. It showed Jacob that in spite of his awful sin there was a way to heaven for him. Jesus Christ is the ladder connecting earth and heaven for us (John 1:51; 14:6; Heb. 10:19, 20).

2. He saw angels of God upon the ladder (v. 12). They were ascending and descending upon this ladder. These angels were the divine helpers to render needed assistance along life's way (Heb. 1:14). Though unseen, God's angels guide and protect us on our earthly pilgrimage.

3. He saw the Lord standing above the ladder (vv. 13-17). To show Jacob that the ladder did not merely reach into space, the personal God appeared and talked with him.

a. He declared that he was the God of Abraham and Isaac (v. 13), thus assuring Jacob that the same hand that guided his fathers was over him.

b. He renewed the covenant as to the land (v. 13). Though Jacob was now fleeing from the land, and yet he would return and his seed should yet possess it.

c. He assured him of numerous seed (v. 14). His descendants would spread abroad—north, south, east, west.

d. The divine presence to be with Jacob (v. 15). God promised not to leave him till the covenant promise should be fulfilled.

III. Jacob's Vow (vv. 16-22).

God's gracious visitation provoked Jacob to make a vow. He set up as a monument the stone which he had had for a pillow. He named the place "Bethel," which means "the house of God." His vow included:

1. The dedication of himself to God (v. 21).

2. The establishment of worship (vv. 18, 19). He declared that this stone should be God's house.

3. The consecration of his possessions (v. 22). He obligated himself to give back to God one-tenth of all that was given him.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By Scoop Himself

Over in West Virginia, the past few weeks, the towns have placed signs at the edge of the corporate limits: "Caution; drive slowly and with care. Town full of candidates." It is said that in one thinly populated county, one-third of the citizens are running for office. Now if the candidate had as many relatives as there are Frazeea and Friends in Frlendsville, or Brownings, in Garrett county, his election would be certain.

A card received by me a few days ago contains this slogan: "Raising Hell for Justice." I don't believe justice would want hell raised. But that's a West Virginia affair. They can raise a lot of things over there.

The World Isn't So Bad

If you're in the mood to shuffle off this mortal ball, just think:

Razors pain you;
Rivers are damp;
Acids stain you;
And drugs cause cramp,
Guns aren't lawful;
Nooses give;
Gas smells awful—
You might as well live.

No Worry in Those Days

Worry today is putting more creases in brows than hot weather does in my clothes. In the old days people didn't have to worry, so why do we? Samson wasn't a bad jawbone swinger, and it's a two to one bet he never had a pink toothbrush complex. Cleopatra used to ride in the rumble seat of a gondola of her boy friends and never worried about B. O., and fretting about halitosis never seemed to cramp the style of Don Juan.

Lady Godiva had no worry about chapped, rough skin when taking her gallop that made long hair and white horses famous. It is doubtful if Brutus spent fifteen minutes a day in brushing up on his Latin, and Achilles didn't spend any sleepless nights over athlete's foot.

There is no record that David, the first crooner, gargled before and after renditlon on the lyre, and Adam never griped about a balanced diet and his vitamins a, b, d, x, and y. Mother Goose never worried about dandruff and falling feathers, and it wasn't necessary for Pocahontaa to rinse her undies every evening.

Robinhood, in spite of his flat feet, was just as spry and gay as Sherlock Holmes with fallen arches, and evidently Methuselah in his 900 years' sojourn, didn't take seriously the doctor's advice on high blood pressure.

Worry never worried Solomon, or he wouldn't have had so many wives.

And so, if these famous people couldn't take the time to make creases in their brows in those days, why worry about a little depression now. Anyway, the depression is over. The trouble is to make people believe it.

Now, I've ceased to worry for another week.

For automatic timing, automatic temperature control and electric efficiency are taking her place in the kitchen—doing her watching and waiting for her! . . . The way to freedom from kitchen drudgery is through electric cookery. Come in and let us show you how and why.

ONE SET OF TWINS IN EACH FIFTY MARYLAND BIRTHS

State Department of Health Records Show This Fact

Search of the records of births and deaths registered by the Bureau of Vital Statistics of the State Department of Health—the official repository for such records—yields much "believe it or not" data. For instance, in every 50 live births in Maryland last year there was an average of one set of twins.

The total number of live births recorded in Maryland in 1931 was 28,705. This number includes 298 sets of twins—596 children—or 2 per cent of the total. The ratio was the same for Baltimore City and the counties, and for both white and colored races. In Baltimore City, where the total number of births registered was 14,166, of which 11,012 were white and 3,154 colored, the birth of 106 sets of white twine—212 children—and of 35 sets of colored twins—70 children, was recorded. In the counties, where 14,539 births were registered, 11,463 white and 3,076 colored, the totals included 122 sets of white twins and 35 sets of colored. All of these figures include live-born twins only. The births in which but one of the children survived are listed in the totals only.

The Maryland records corresponds closely to that for the country as a whole. The report of the U. S. Bureau of the Census, for births for 1928—the latest period for which complete records are available—gives a total of 2,233,149 births in what is known as the U. S. Birth Registration Area, and which included at that time 44 states and the District of Columbia, and comprised 94.4 per cent of the total population.

In the 2,233,149 births, there were 23,863 sets of twins—47,726 children, or 2 per cent of the total. These figures, like those for Maryland, do not include the plural births in which one or both children died.

The figures published by the Bureau of the Census for 1928 and those for Maryland for last year, indicate that one set of living twins was born to each one hundred mothers.

MT. LAKE PARK

Wedding Announced

Some time ago a wedding took place in the Park which was to be regarded as a secret and we were asked not to "put it in the paper." Well, so far as this column is concerned, it has remained a secret ever since, for altho we were told we could "shoot the works" we simply didn't do it. We refer to the wedding of Mr. Albert Schrock and Miss Juanita Ready, which took place on February 6, 1932, at the M, E. parsonage. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Bleakly. Mr. and Mrs. Schrock are well known and justly popular residents of the Park, the bride being the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ready and the groom the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Schrock. Mr. Schrock is a member of the city council of the Park. Our congratulations, although belated, are nevertheless sincere.

Clean-Up Days in the Park

May 16, 17, and 18 have been set apart by Council as clean-up days for the Park, at which time all householders are requested to place all rubbish, tin cans, etc., in containers in the alleyways convenient for trucks so as to facilitate handling. We are all requested to make this a real clean-up occasion, for nothing detracts so much from the beauty of the Park nor so much depreciates the value of properties more than a dirty, slovenly town.

This service costs you nothing except the trouble of getting your rubbish together and placing it so the trucks can gather it.

Garbage Contract Awarded

At the meeting of the Town Council Monday night the contract for the removal of garbage was let to Stanley (Ted) Wood. Collections will be daily from hotels and boarding houses and on Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays from cottages. The refuse must be placed in containers equipped with covers.

Streets Being Repaired

The road tractor and scraper and the ditcher are at work and within a few days the roads throughout the Park will be in splendid condition. It will help a lot if the property owners will burn the leaves accumulated in the gutters before the scraper goes over the roads.

A Peculiar Request

A sign is a sign, for a' that and a' that. There was one on front of the postoffice building that makes a fellow scratch his head, even if there is nothing in it or on it. It read "No trespassing on these premises."

How in heck are we going to obey the injunction and at the same time get our daily quota of bills and papers? The former we could do without, but we do like to get the papers in order to learn that Congress is still sitting on the lid and doing nothing except to make life miserable by devising new methods of taxation. However, the sign has been removed.

GOOD OLD DAYS

The old-time livery stable and corner saloon have given way to the ornate garage and filling station; the movie show has replaced the town hall; we go in an hour now a distance it formerly took a day to travel. One can go from coast to coast in a single day in the air. He can telephone from a ship at sea to any one of the 18,000,000 telephones in the United States. He can listen on his radio to speakers thousands of miles away. In a short time he'll be able to see them, too. Our homes are heated by scientific and healthful methods. We have our own cooling systems. Oil and gas and electricity have taken the place of coal. We have the news of the world on our doorsteps, morning and evening, thanks to the stride of modern newspapering. Our lives are full of events. We go places and see things. Our horizons have broadened. Backbreaking drudgery has been eliminated in every avenue of activity. Household appliances, electrically operated, have come to lessen the work of the housewife. We have more time for play, and the golf links is an adjunct of every village and hamlet as well as the larger cities. We have improved our highways and have made our cities sanitary and attractive. But, why go on? Truth is the so-called "good old days" are only a figment of the imagination. The days we are living now are the best the world has ever seen up to now. And "we hain't seen nothin' yet."—News-Telegraph, Atlantic, Iowa.

WHAT A GREAT LIBERAL SAID

It is a rather noteworthy fact that practically all of those alleged statesmen who believe that the way to cure depression is not to balance the budget and cut unnecessary expenditure, but to spend the government's money in all sorts of extravagant schemes, borrowing money if possible to do it and if not, issuing paper money to pay the cost—those statesmen are of the school which likes to call itself "liberal." This is not to say that all of the so-called liberal statesmen favor extravagant financing of this kind, because many of them do not, and stand for sound principles of budget balancing; but it is true that brethren in Congress and out, who believe in spending more money and printing more money to take care of the expense, rather than practicing sound economy, like to call themselves "liberals." We could think of a term which would be much more appropriate for them.

But at any rate it might not be a bad idea to glance through the pages of history and see what that great liberal Thomas Jefferson thought and wrote in a crisis not unlike the present one, when extravagance ran us into difficulties. In 1820 Thomas Jefferson wrote:

"If there be anything amiss in the present state of our affairs, as formidable deficit lately unfolded to us indicates, I ascribe it to the inattention of Congress to their duties, to the unwise dissipation and waste of public contributions. They seemed, some little while ago, to be at a loss for objects whereupon to throw away the apparently fathomless funds of the treasury."

This ought to make it plain even to the densest student of history that the father of liberalism in America did not approve of the extravagant throwing away of the government's money after the method now being talked of in some of our congressional circles.

The way to cure a deficit is not to waste money on new and untried schemes for curing the depression, but by practicing governmental economy, in balancing the budget through taxes made as little burdensome as possible to the individual and the business interests of the country. Uncle Sam's credit is good, but it is not limitless, and talk of borrowing great sums to meet deficits and proposed wild expenditures, and the issuance of paper money to take care of these expenditures, will not do the aforementioned credit any good. The best way to help every American, rich and poor alike, is to restore business confidence and this can best be done by a wise and sane balancing of the budget.

Jail Sentence Meted Out For Allowing Forest Fire to Spread

For the first time in the history of Garrett county a jail sentence was given following a conviction for carelessly allowing a fire escape from one's own land to the land of another.

William Casseday was given thirty days in the Garrett County Jail for permitting fire to escape from his father's land near Red Oak on Saturday.

The hearing was held Monday afternoon before Justice A. S. Teats, Oakland, when it was brought out that it was only through the exceptionally hard work of Silas Arnold and his crew of fire fighters that the blaze was held within three acres, otherwise, according to H. C. Buckingham, district forester, it would have swept through hundreds of acres of timber and cut-over lands.

The Maryland forest laws state that anyone carelessly or negligently setting on fire woods, brush, grass, grain or stubble resulting in damage to the property of another, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction be punishable by a fine of not less than $10 or more than $100, or imprisoned for not less than ten days or more than one year, or both. The violator is also liable in a civil action for damages and for the cost of fighting and extinguishing the fire.

A fire discovered in the Elder Hill community, south of Friendsville, on Sunday morning, burned over 150 acres before it was brought under control at six o'clock Sunday evening. Jasper Cross and William Ferguson, wardens, were in charge of extinguishing the blaze.

Other fires were extinguished near Kempton and Aurora on Sunday afternoon, Clyde Sines being in charge of the crew at Aurora, while William Bennett was in charge of the Kempton fire fighters.

That there still remains two weeks of the fire season in this section was emphasized by Mr. Buckingham, who asked for care in the protection of the forests of the State.

Poppy Sale Starts May 21

The annual poppy sale, held under the auspices of the American Legion and Legion Auxiliary, will begin May 21 and continue until May 30, inclusive.

The poppies are made by disabled soldiers who could not possibly find other means of helping support themselves and their families, hence each sale means just that much for some suffering veteran. It gives them interesting, worthwhile occupation in which to pass the long hospital hours and it gives them money for the many things which the government does not provide; money to send home to their struggling families made destitute by their illness.

Wearing the poppy symbol pays tribute to those who gave their all to bring peace to the world. Wearing the poppy reminds our own hearts and the heart of the world, that we must keep faith with the pledge they sealed by their sacrifices that other generations might have a richer heritage of happiness.

TESTIMONY BEING GIVEN IN TWO AUTO CRASH SUITS

near Kitzmiller. The car was overturned, and Oswell was thrown out and killed. Mrs. Hartman was pinioned under the wrecked car, but later extricated herself and reached the home of William Harvey, who summoned aid. The plaintiff's counsel alleged negligence on the part of the construction firm, claiming no warning lights were on the barrier and no warning signs were on the road.

Witnesses for the plaintiff asserted that the night was foggy and the road was wet, following rains. All declared there were no lights on the barrier and no warning signs on the road. Among the witnesses were John C. Schroek, assistant district engineer, State Roads Commission; Magistrate W. A. Gonder, of Oakland, acting coroner of Garrett county; Corporal Thomas A. Currie, of the State Police; Fred Cropp, Delpha Rodeheaver, and Dr. Thomas W. Koon.

Harry Kimmell, an automobile mechanic, who towed the wrecked car to an Oakland garage, described the condition of the machine and where it was found. John W. Davis, of Oakland, said that his car crashed into the same barrier a few nights prior to the fatal accident. He said it was a clear night and that he was able to apply his brakes and avoid probable injury to himself. Davis asserted there were no lights on the barrier that night.

Describes Accident

Mrs. Hartman declared that the night was wet and foggy, and that she did not see the barrier until the car was almost upon it. She was knocked unconscious, she said, and when she regained her senses, she managed to free herself from under the wrecked car. She said she saw Oswell lying nearby, and when she crawled to him, she found that he was dead. Mrs. Hartman said she walked and crawled to the Harvey home. Anna Hayes, who lives near the scene of the accident, said there were no lights on the barrier that night.

C. A. Oswell, father of the young man who was killed, described Mrs. Hartman's physical condition before and after the accident. Mrs. Anna Bucklew, of Terra Alta, W. Va., who cared for Mrs. Hartman, following the accident, also testified as to the injured woman's condition. A map showing the location of the road and the scene of the crash were submitted by F. R. Corliss, an engineer. Photographs of the wrecked car and the road were also submitted.

Witness for the defendant company declared that warning signs were on the road a short distance from the barrier, and that there were warning lights on the barrier. Victor Gwynn, timekeeper for the construction firm, said he placed a lantern and torch on the barrier earlier that evening. Witnesses asserted lanterns had been stolen from the barrier on previous nights. Other witnesses for the defense were Walter Stevens, a road inspector; James Bell, Oakland photographer, and G. A. Shimmell, superintendent and chief engineer of the construction firm.

William R. Offutt, of Oakland, attorney for the defendant company, reserved his opening statement. George W. Legge, Jr., and Walter C. Capper, Cumberland; E. R. Jones and Walter W. Dawson, of Oakland, represent the plaintiff. Mr. Offutt is assisted by Phillip P. Steptoe and Oscar J. Andre, attorney of Clarksburg, W. Va.

Testimony was completed yesterday afternoon, and argument started this morning. It was indicated that the case would be given to the jury about noon.

Witnesses for the defendant company testified yesterday that lights had been placed on the barrier that night. Drs. William A. Gracie, W. F. Williams, and F. Garnett Cowherd testified as to the alleged injuries and physical condition of the plaintiff. Counsel for the plaintiff also put several witnesses on the stand, in rebuttal. At the conclusion of testimony, Judge W. Calvin Chestnut delivered the charge to the jury.

HIS COMPENSATION

The Story of a Music Master

By FANNIE HURST

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.) (WNU Service)

LIVING in the machine-age should in some measure have prepared the director for what was coming; hundreds of the more astute had seen it in the offing for years, before it actually happened, and in many instances had run for the cover of kindred professions or occupations.

Klinger, however, had stuck, as the saying goes, like a captain to a sinking ship, until the inundation of "canned music" was something that even his stubborn kind of resistance had to reckon with.

No doubt about it, the day of the theater and moving picture orchestra was gone. A man had not a chance to earn any sort of decent living for himself and family, if he depended upon a profession that had literally died in its tracks.

In vain the perishing vocation fought for its life. An organization was formed, of which Klinger was vice president, to combat, by newspaper and magazine advertising, this demise of an honorable profession.

DO NOT PERMIT CANNED MUSIC TO BE SERVED UP TO YOU.

THE BEST IS NONE TOO GOOD.

PUBLIC, DEMAND YOUR RIGHTS!

Of course the public did nothing of the sort, the sound-screen became its own orchestral effect, orchestras died out of the theater, and at fifty-seven, Otto Klinger, for thirty years director of an orchestra in one of the city's largest temples of entertainment, found himself, incredible as it might seem, out of a job.

There was the alternative, desperately clutched by so many of his men, of rushing to the picture studios of California, but even had such an opportunity presented itself, Klinger was not the man to subject his dignity to any such flagellation as that.

Playing on a motion picture lot! Otto Klinger, graduate of a Berlin conservatory of music, one-time concert meister of a Nuraberg orchestra and now, for thirty years, director of an aggregation of thirty men, going Hollywood. Never!

Fortunately, it was at a time of his life when his family, containing grown sons and daughters, had agreed among themselves it was best for him to retire.

Rearing three girls and three boys on a scale of decent and substantial living had, of course, not enabled Otto to accumulate, but when the catastrophe of the dissolution of his orchestra came along, there were fortunately, three out of his six children who were earning. Firmin and Max, the two elder boys, steady and showing the results of the spartan rearing that had been theirs, were both draughtsmen drawing substantial wage. Mathilde, the third, daughter, a staid, careful, uncoquettish girl, who so far as the modern flapper was concerned, did not exist at all, was confidential secretary to the German consul.

So, all in all, while in the heart of Otto calamity had descended, his family, including his wife, was of an opinion, secret from him, that considering his age and gouty constitution, it was just as well for him to retire.

The Klingers owned their little home on the outskirts of New York. There were only three children left at a school age. Mrs. Klinger, twenty years younger than her husband, and of firm heroic build, was a housewife of impeccable and amazing capacity for economy.

The Klingers could make out all right.

But the effect upon the morale of Klinger was what troubled them. Prepared as the family was for the let-down that inevitably must take place in the somewhat Bismarkian figure of their father, who for thirty years had ruled thirty men, to say nothing of a household, the actual happening was nothing short of appalling.

He became a household tyrant, domineering over the daily routine, interfering in his wife's capable regime, exercising even more discipline with his children.

There came a time, in that little home, when so far as the members of it were concerned, the idea of sending Otto off to a private hospital at some quiet seaside resort actually began to present itself.

That project never took form. The Klingers were too compact a group for that; too grounded in certain rudiments of family solidity, but it does go to show the extremes to which they were pushed, by the overflow of their father's chagrin into the household.

Then Bertha, the fourth child, hit on a scheme that, while it was to increase the household tyranny in many ways, was nothing short of stroke of genius.

Secretly, so that not even his wife or children knew it, there had always smoldered in Otto bitter disappointment that not one of his children had followed in his musical footsteps. They were a practical, sensible lot, young sters any parent could be proud of, and for that matter each and every one founded in a musical education.

But among them, with the exception of Edith, who was too young to reckon with, not one of the girls or boys had exhibited outstanding musical talent.

Bertha's idea, however, was founded on this rather casual musical equipment of the family.

Father must form a family orchestra and they could practice evenings. Mother at the piano, the three boys at the violin, flute and viola respectively, Bertha and Mathilde at the harp and 'cello and little Edith, who was now eight and taking her first lessons, at the violin.

Well, somehow, the idea caught with Klinger like wildfire, and catching, did some tantalizing things to family life, curtailing the outside activities of the grown boys and girls to such an extent that their souls or their evenings could no longer be called their own.

Bad as was the evening after evening practicing of the group, under the surveillance of Klinger, it was offset by the fact that once more clenched by an interest, something of the old good humor, and normal geniality of the man revived.

Life in the Klinger household was once more livable, as the Klingers put it.

And then there began to develop the aspect of it all that made the idea of Bertha seem to blossom into something that was nothing short of genius.

Time and time again, conducting this little group of his family orchestra, Klager began to find himself amazed and delighted by the musical precocity of the mite of a girl playing the third violin.

Within two months, trying to keep down within himself the rising hope and the rising excitement that here in this child was talent, he saw the thin little wisp of a girl superceding her delighted first violinist brother, playing in his place.

Six months later, by arrangement made by Klinger, Edith was taken to the conservatory, there to play before the great Eicher, who pronounced her of outstanding and amazing virtuosity.

That busted up the Klinger orchestra, so to speak.

Six hours of each day, Klinger, who has no more time for his family orchestra, interested to his fingertips, tender of her youth, adoring of her talent, teaches his youngest, and plans for her musical future.

Systematic Hunt for Priceless Old Papers

Quit recently a London workman was cutting ont a piece of old parchmeat into segments for making into a lamp shade when he noticed some old and faded writing on the piece he had cut. A close examination revealed the parchmeat to be a deed of the period of James I. Here was a valnable old document that shonld have been preserved in a museum being ruthlessly cut up to gratify the passing whim of fashion, and when it had served its purpose to be east aside on a dust heap, a loss to history and the severing perhaps of a valnable link with the past.

Hnndreds of priceless old docnments are being cnt up in this way, but thaaks to that distinguished scholar nnd antiquarian, Mr. William le Hardy, a pnblic appeal has been made to end this needless sacrifice of historical documents for the sake of a craze. He is asking to be allowed to examine the archives of old-established solicitors' offices in London, where many of these old documents are to be fouad, in the hopes of discovering deeds that will throw some light on the history of some famous county families. One firm has already given Mr. William le Hardy permission to go through their archives, with the result that many important facts concerning the histories of ancient manors have been revealed.—London Mail.

Automatic Mixer

One coacrete mixer has an automatic control system operated by photo-electric cells that cnn be depended on to measure out the different ingredients with unfailing precision nnd dispatch. These cells are built into dial scales in such a way that the pointer of each scale swings between an associate cell and its exciting lamp. Each ingredient is brought to the mixing plant by coaveyors that feed into weight hoppers. The charging goes on until the pointers pass through beams of light focused on the electric eyes, when sensitive relays stop the flow. With the eyes on watch, concrete of a uniform grade cau be produced regardless of the number of batches made up.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Botanically Speaking

The out-of-town guest was showing some snapshots of her little granddaughter, and among them was a charming picture of the little girl standing in a bed of tulips, which reached quite nbove her head. Sonny was a very interested onlooker, and when some one remarked, "Just see! The flowers are taller than the child," Sonny drew up to his full stature, and aanounced importantly:

"Well, if they wanted to get flowers taller than I am, they'd have to take hollyhocks!"

Poor Underpinning

British pirates threw their gin jugs nnd gambling chips in a sea-level swamp, then built up a city, Belize, which a hurricane, helped by a tidal wave, recently demolished. Says Time: "It would have been better if the city's fathers had thrown in a few more pots nnd chips, for Belize is only a few inches above sea-level." It might still have been better if they had thrown their "foundations" on higher nnd drier ground.

THE MARYLAND BIBLE SOCIETY'S CORNER

"The Word of Our God Shall Stand Forever"

King David sang: "They that go down to the sea in ships, that do business in great waters; these see the works of the Lord and his wonders of the deep." Also: "He maketh the storm a calm, so that the waves thereof are still. Then are they glad because they be quiet, so he bringeth them unto their desired haven."

The Young Men's Society of Baltimore received $1,253 in the year 1924 and out of this very handsome sum set apart a fund for the establishment of a Marine Branch Bible Society at Fells Point that "They who go down to the sea in ships" might not be without the true chart and compass for the voyage of life. In the annual report for this year we find mentioned, also, a gift of 250 Spanish Testaments was a part of an interesting attempt to circulate the Bible in South America. The books were sent to a missionary in Lima to be distributed by him. Just how the Peruvians received this gift of the Word we do not know. However, in the sending of it there was a fine demonstration of the new spirit which the Bible Societies everywhere fostered, the spirit of Christian unity in the noble work of Bible distribution.

Isaiah declared, "Blesed are ye that sow beside all waters. The sower is not always able to discern immediately the good ground." A political prisoner lay in an imperial dungeon of Korea. As editor of a Korean paper he had dared to plead for the freedom of the press. There was but one narrow window in his cell and by the shaft of sunlight that streamed thru he sought to improve his English by studying the Gospel of St. John, given him by a missionary. He was a Confucian scholar and the avowed enemy of Christianity, but as he read the pure English of the King James version of St. John, something happened within him. From a Christ hater he became a Christ follower. Release finally came. He journeyed to America, pursued courses at George Washington and Columbia Universities, returned to his own country and became the first provincial president of the Korean Republic. Thus in the darkness of a dungeon did Syngman Rhee find the light of his own soul and the Light of the World.

The Bible Societies are the world's lighthouses. The sun's prismatic rays tbat stream from the windows are liberty, peace, joy, self-control, faith, hope and love. These rays, joined, make the perfect white light by which the world moves nearer to God.

Spending to Save Through ADVERTISING

Not many of us these days are troubled with so much money that we cannot spend it. But we ARE interested in spending the money we have, to get the most out of it.

People, in these times, usually keep a budget, putting down so much for food, so much for clothing, so much for rent, etc. They get a lot of their figures from advertising in newspapers and magazines.

Advertising helps. Advertisements in The Republican will tell the housewife how much butter, foods, meats, and clothing will cost BEFORE she goes shopping, and better still, will inform her where the best can be bought for the least money.

Advertising costs so little when compared with the returns it brings in increased business.

In company with her father, Harry Moon and a sister, Miss Moon were on their way to attend church and were walking on the left side of the road facing traffic when the accident occurred.

While one car was passing them, which had approached from the rear, another car, driven by John R. Taylor, of Reedsville, West Va., attempted to pass the car in front and struck Miss Moon. Deep Creek Lake Is Near Capacity Over Week-End Deep Creek Lake, on Monday, as a result of heavy rains the previous week, was within nine-tenth of a foot, or 10 4-5 inches from going over the spillway at the dam, according to C. E. MacMurray, superintendent of the Youghiogheny Hydro-Electric Company at Sines.

This height is two inches less than the high-water mark made in May of 1929, when the water was a little less than 8 inches from the top of the spillway.

While the record at the power house of the company showed a rainfall of 3.6 inches between May 8 and May 14, the Government station at Weber's registered over four inches, which is above the normal monthly average of rainfall in this section. The lake continued to rise on Monday morning, but the generators at Sines were being operated and the use of water was expected to stop any further rise in the lake.

COUNTY HEALTH OFFICER TO COMPLETE INSPECTION

Finds General Health Conditions In Schools Good

By the end of this week Dr. George E. Clarke, county health officer, expects to complete his first extensive examination of all the school children of the county.

During the period of this examination, with the assistance of the health nurses, Dr. Clarke has examined between 5,000 and 6,000 school pupils, and in that entire number he has discovered only twelve children seriously afflicted. These afflictions are either due to heart trouble, tuberculosis or kidney disease, he stated.

Dr. Clarke added that 25 per cent of the children were defective to the extent of bad condition of the teeth, bad tonsils or impaired vision, all of which cases were noted and the parents advised to have these defects corrected within the next year. He pointed out that less than one-half of one per cent of the children in school were under weight.

Child Health Day

Due to weather conditions usually prevailing in Garrett county on May 1, Child Health Day, a state health movement, was not observed on that date but was postponed until Friday, May 27, when a program will be presented in all of the schools of the county following an outlined program furnished the teachers by the State Health Department. This program will be along the lines of better health for the school child and a special period during the day will be provided for its rendition.

Scouts to Close Membership Friday Until After Scout Camp

No more applications for membership in the Oakland Scout troop will be received after the regular meeting at the Scout hall on Friday night until after the summer encampment, according to George H. Hanst, scoutmaster. This rule is being made to prevent any boy from joining the troop just for the purpose of being eligible to go to scout camp the latter part of July, the scoutmaster explained.

Boys who have joined the troop within the past few weeks or who enter on Friday evening will be required to become second class scouts before becoming eligible for camp.

At the present time there are 39 active scouts, five inactive and on the danger line of being dropped from the troop; two associate scouts and two working on their tenderfoot tests in order to become scouts. Ralph Kahl and John Edward Balrd were recently admitted into the troop, having passed all requirements, and Wilbur Altstetter and Paul Kemphfer are working on their entrance tests.

The summer program will be outlined at the meeting Friday and plans made for an over-night hike this weekend.

COURT TAKES DAMAGE SUIT FROM CUMBERLAND JURY

Miss Benthien, Hurt in Auto Accident, Had Accepted Money To Pay Hospital Bills

A removed case from Garrett county to the Circuit Court in Allegany county, attracted considerable interest because of the prominence of the parties thereto, was determined by the Court Monday afternoon when at the conclusion of the plaintiff's testimony the Court granted the prayers of the defense counsel to take the case from the jury, which concluded the matter.

The plaintiff in the action was Miss Elsie Benthien, formerly of Oakland, and at the time of the accident employed as home demonstration agent in Garrett county, while the defendant was William D. Casteel, former Garrett county sheriff.

Miss Benthien asked $20,000 damages for alleged personal injuries sustained on the night of September 8, 1930, when Casteel's car was wrecked on the road between Deer Park and Mountain Lake Park. She was a passenger in the machine. Miss Benthein, in her testimony, said that Casteel was operating a spotlight attached to the windshield of the car as a Baltimore and Ohio railroad train was passing and that he lost control of the machine, which swerved and upset, throwing both to the road.

During the testimony it was shown that Casteel had given her a check for $550 to pay her hospital bills, in December, 1931, and he received a signed and written release. Casteel's attorneys contended that this release absolved Casteel from further payment of damages and asked that the case be taken from the jury.

Underwent Bone Graft

Miss Benthein was on the stand the entire morning. She testified that she sustained an injury to her spine as the result of the wrecking of the car. On account of being under medical attention and in the hospital, her condition was such she said she was unable to drive or work and later resigned her position. The plaintiff testified as to being put in a plaster cast and underwent later a bone graft operation in a Baltimore hospital in July, 1931. She contended her health was shattered and she has been compelled to wear a steel corset brace.

Miss Benthein said she was a graduate of Washington State University where she had fitted herself especially in home economics.

Among the witnesses summoned to testify were Dr. Henry W. McComas, Oakland, who treated her following the accident; Dr. Thomas F. Bennett, Baltimore, and Dr. W. F. Williams, William A. Gracie, Thomas W. Koon and F. Garnet Cowherd, Cumberland.

The attorneys for the plaintiff were Neil C. Fraley, E. R. Jones and W. W. Dawson, of Oakland, and Walter C. Capper, of Cumberland. The defense attorneys were A. T. Matthews and W. R. Offutt, Oakland, and Charles Z. Heskett, Cumberland.

An appeal in this case will be taken to the higher courts.

ATTORNEY LOSES HIS SUIT AGAINST FARMERS BANK

W. Carl Richards, Cumberland, Claimed Oakland Institution Owed Him For Legal Services

CASE TRIED IN CUMBERLAND

After deliberating a short time, the Allegany county jury in the suit of W. Carl Richards, attorney of Cumberland, against the Farmers Bank of Oakland, returned a verdict for the bank Tuesday evening in the Circuit Court at Cumberland. The case was given to the jury shortly before six o'clock.

Testimony in the suit began Monday afternoon and continued all day Tuesday. The case was removed to Cumberland from Garrett county.

Richards, who was a stockholder and claimed to be attorney for the Oakland banking institution from its chartering in 1925 until 1931, sued for $3,000 in a bill of particulars for legal services. The bill included sums for verbal advice and special counsel for 1926 and each succeeding year until 1931.

The defense contended that Richards never rendered any services for which he had not been paid, and that it did not owe him the amount claimed and that the bill was filed after Richards was dropped as a stockholder and attorney.

Richards was on the stand Monday afternoon and a greater portion of Tuesday morning. He was subjected to an extensive cross-examination by E. R. Jones for the defense relative to items he testified embracing the legal services he claimed he had rendered.

Witnesses for the defense from Oakland who testified in the case included C. N. McIntire, Berne Teter and Albert L. Lee, who are connected with the bank in official capacities.

The case was sharply contested, especially by the defense, with frequent objection and motion to strike out testimony.

The plaintiff was represented by Thomas L. Richards and Fuller Barnard, Jr., and the defendant attorneys were E. R. Jones and Walter W. Dawson, of Oakland, and George Henderson, of Cumberland.

The program for the general clean-up at the cemetery is being carried out by William Gower, Frank Pifer, Earl Selders and other members of the local Legion post, and by John Faherty and several other men, not members. These workmen are putting in their time gratis and are to be commended for the public spirit thus exhibited.

Redetermination Of Land Areas Shows Garrett County Second and Frederick County First

In a redetermination of the areas of the various counties of the State of Maryland, just completed by the U. S. Government and the Maryland Geological Survey in cooperation, Frederick county is given 664.74 land square miles as against 664.25 for Garrett county, making Garrett county the second largest county in the State instead of the largest, a place it has held for many years.

Including water square miles, Dorchester county, which has only 580.94 land square miles, is given a total area of 943.52, making it the largest county in the state in that respect. In total square miles, Baltimore, Dorchester, Frederick and St. Mary's counties are larger than Garrett.

No water square miles are listed in Garrett county's area, while Frederick is given 3.96.

It has been recommended by the Maryland Geological Survey that all State agencies and statistical bureaus using the area of counties adopt the new figures as standard.

A. G. ROSS TAKES OATH AS CLERK OF CIRCUIT COURT

Court Appoints Veteran Deputy To Fill Unexpired Term of the Late E. Z. Tower

BEEN IN OFFICE 16 YEARS

Mr. Albert G. Ross, of Oakland, took the oath of office and become Clerk of the Circuit Court on Monday afternoon, when he qualified as such before the Judges of the court at Cumberland.

Mr. Ross takes the place of the late Edward Z. Tower, who died on last Thursday morning in a Cumberland hospital following a surgical operation and who had held the position of clerk since the year 1887.

Mr. Ross had been deputy under Mr Tower for 16 years, having taken office in May of 1916, and prior to that time was Clerk to the Board of County Commissioners. He also served as clerk of the town council of Oakland for a number of years, resigning his position just a few weeks ago.

At the death of Mr. Tower, on May 12, the new clerk was appointed acting clerk by the Court, and at a meeting of the judges on Saturday afternoon the Court, consisting of Judges D. Lindley Sloan, Albert A. Doub and Frank G. Waggaman, appointed him to fill the unexpired term of the late Mr. Tower. Mr. Ross will have approximately two and a half years to serve before an election is held for the selection of his successor.

The action of the Court in appointing Mr. Ross gives general satisfaction as he is probably the only person in the county at present qualified to fill the office satisfactorily.

Miss Nethkin Becomes Deputy

Miss Nelle Nethkin accompanied Mr. Ross to Cumberland on Tuesday and assumed the oath of office following her appointment to the position of Deputy Clerk of the Court, by Mr. Ross. Miss Nethkin is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Nethkin and has been employed in the office of Clerk of the Court for several years.

CASE ENDED YESTERDAY

A verdict in the sum of $700 for the Garrett County Commissioners was returned yesterday afternoon by Judge Albert A. Doub in the Circuit Court at Cumberland, in the suit of the commissioners against Clark Snyder, of Garrett county. The trial opened yesterday morning before Judge Doub.

The commississions sought $1,800 for the maintenance of the defendant's wife, Maude Snyder, a patient in a state hospital for the insane. Snyder is deaf, but is able to talk. His cousin, Mrs. Olive Bay, was sworn in as interpreter and all questions were asked in the sign language.

It was contended that Snyder's wife had been in the hospital for eight years and the cost of her maintenane is $125 a year. The commissioners said Snyder promised to pay for her maintenance at the time she was committed as soon as he was able to do so, and that he is heir to a legacy of his grandfather's estate, now in court in Garrett county, sufficient to cover the county's claim.

The defendant contended that his wife left and deserted him prior to the time she became insane and that he was not responsible for her. The Garrett county officials denied that Snyder's wife deserted him, but did go to the home of relatives with two small children and that Snyder went to see her.

Fred. A. Thayer and E. R. Jones were attorneys for the Garrett County Commissioners. Snyder was represented by Fuller Barnard, Jr., and Clarence Lippel, of Cumberland.

Was Expected To Follow Similar Suit For Damages

The suit of Charles A. Oswell and Susan Oswell against the Keely Construction Company of Clarksburg, W. Va., wherein Mr. and Mrs. Oswell are seeking to recover damages to the extent of $50,000 for the death of their son, has been continued to the September term of the Federal Court.

The case was expected to be called following the disposal of a case in which Mrs. Flota Bice Hartman was awarded $7,000 damages against the constuction company, which case culminated last Thursday morning in the United States District Court at Cumberland.

Mr. and Mrs. Oswell are suing the construction company for damages growing out of an accident in which their son, Arthur Oswell, was killed and Mrs. Hartman was injured, which occurred on the night of November 16, 1929.

Arthur Oswell and Mrs. Hartman were driving to Mountain Lake Park from Washington, D. C., when the car in which they were riding ran into a barrier on the road then being built for the State by the Keely Construction Company, between Kitzmiller and Deer Park. The plaintiffs contended that the barrier was defective in that it had neither lights nor danger markers posted.

The case originated in the Garrett County Circuit Court but was transferred to the Federal Court at Cumberland by the defendants and will be disposed of in September.

Town Council To Reduce Light Wattage Over Oakland

In order to economize wherever possible, and yet to do it to a degree not to interfere with the welfare of the citizens of the town, the Mayor and Council met in special session Monday night to work out a plan whereby they might reduce the lighting expense of the city. A representative of the West Maryland Power Company met with the council and offered his services in assisting to adjust the cost of lighting.

The power company's engineer will draft a diagram of the town's lighting service, noting the wattage used in each light and from this diagram reductions will be made in the size of lamps used and in that manner will materially reduce the cost. The matter will be taken up at the next regular meeting of Council and disposed of finally.

JACOB AND ESAU RECONCILED

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 33:1-11.

GOLDEN TEXT—And be ye kind one to another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Two Brothers End a Quarrel.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Esau Forgives His Brother.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Righting a Wrong.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Cultivating Peace at Home and Abroad.

From Bethel, Jacob went to Padan-aram to his mother's people. Here he served Laban, his uncle, for twenty years; fourteen year for his wives, Leah and Rachel, and six years for certain wages.

I. Jacob Departs for Canaan (31:11-21).

The time had come for Jacob to go back to his kindred in the Land of Canaan. This he did according to the Lord's instruction to him (v. 13). Though going forward under divine direction, his Jacob nature caused him to take clandestine leave of Laban. When Laban realized the situation, he went in hot pursuit of him, but God appeared unto him in a dream and warned him against any act of violence toward Jacob. They formed a compact and Laban returned home.

II. Jacob's Experience on the Way (ch. 32).

Laban's return freed Jacob from the enemy who was pursuing him, but he faced a more formidable enemy in the person of Esau from whose wrath he had fled twenty years before.

1. Jacob meeting the angels (vv. 1-8). Two camps of angels met him to give him the assurance that God would be with him according to promise. Notwithstanding this, Jacob continued to scheme. He sent a deputation before him with a message of good cheer to Esau.

2. Jacob praying (vv. 9-12). Esau made no reply to Jacob's message, but went forward with an army of four hundred strong to met Jacob. In his distress, Jacob cast himself upon God in prayer, short, direct, and earnest.

a. He reminded God of his command issued for his return and also of the covenant promise (Gen. 31:3).

b. He pleads God's promise as to his personal safety (v. 9, cf. Gen. 28:13-15, 31-33). In praying to God we should definitely plead his promises in his Word on the ground of covenant relationship in Christ.

c. He confesses his unworthiness (v. 10). In this is shown the proper spirit of humility.

d. He presents definite petitions (v. 11). He laid before the Lord the definite request to be delivered from the wrath of Esau.

3. The angel of the Lord wrestling with Jacob (vv. 24-32, cf. Hos. 12:3, 4).

In God's school of discipline Jacob was making some improvement, but he was still under the sway of self-will and self-trust. Though he had laid the matter definitely before the Lord, he thought that his scheming would render God some assistance. Accordingly, he sent presents ahead to appease the anger of Esau. While on this journey a man met him and wrestled with him, but Jacob knew not who he was. He exerted every ounce of strength in what he thought was the struggle for his very life. The morning was approaching and still the wrestlers continued, Jacob not knowing that it was the Lord manifest in human form. He did not dare enter the promised land under the control of his self-sufficiency. His self-will must be broken—his Jacob nature must be changed. He was humbled by the dislocation of his thigh. When thus humbled, he quit wrestling and clung to God.

4. Jacob gets a new name (v. 28). He was no longer Jacob the "supplanter," but Israel, a "prince with God." Jacob had an experience at the Jabbok which wrought a mighty change in him. His new name was given him after he had a new nature. Jacob came to realize that he had been struggling with God, for he called the place "Peniel," which means "face to face with God." Jacob wrestled most of the night with God, but it was only when he yielded and laid hold of God that he got the blessing.

III. Jacob Meets Esau (33:1-11).

God had evident wrought with Esau for when Jacob approached him the sting of bitterness was gone. It was not Jacob's scheming that removed Esau's anger, but the action of God upon his heart. At Jabbok, Jacob got right with God, so when he met Esau it was an easy matter to get right with him. It is easy to get right with our brother when once we are right with God.

POPPY WEEK, BEGINNING MAY 21

POPPY DAY

A million dollars in a day! Ten million poppies worn in tribute to the World War dead!

That, briefly, is the auxiliary memorial poppy sale. A million dollars raised in a day and every penny of it for an unselfish purpose! Ten million little red flowers distributed to honor the men who gave their lives for America, and every flower made by the hands of the war's living victims.

This year, with present economic conditions making a successful poppy sale more difficult, the local organization of the Legion Auxiliary will extend their poppy sale date over a week's time, inaugurating the event on May 21.

The voice of the Legion and the Legion Auxiliary this year speaks in a loud tone for a successful poppy sale, that the work of assisting the orphans of World War veterans might be carried on uninterruptedly, and to that end effort will be put forth by the local organizations to sell more poppies than ever during the sale period this year.

WHEN GEN. WASHINGTON MADE A GREAT DECISION

Refused The Kingship of America 150 Years Ago

Few Americans know that our country today might be a monarchy but for an act of nobility performed by George Washington on May 22, 1732. The officers of the Revolutionary Army had implored Washington to assume royal power, place himself at their head and rule the country as a king. On May 22, a century and a half ago, General Washington refused this invitation in patriotic terms so strong that the iden was dropped This information comes from the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission.

We know that he refused the offer of kingship, but the circumstances surrounding that dramatic moment in our history, known chiefly to scholars, need be recalled to the everyday American, that he may form a still clearer conception of the nobility of Washington's character.

This incident, which constitutes one of the critical moments in the destiny of America, occurred while General Washington and the Continental Army were encamped at Newburgh, on the Hudson. The surrender of Cornwallis had virtunlly ended the Revolution, but nominally hostilities were still in effect, and Washington was determined to hold the army together against any surprise renewal of the war. As usual his soldiers were poorly clothed and fed, and Congress was deeply in arrears in their pay. By then the war had dragged on for seven long years. The struggle had cost Washington's officers the loss of their personal fortunes, and the entire enlisted force faced a future of want on being released to civil life.

Discontent rose to dangerous intensity in all ranks. At length, Colonel Lewis Nicola, a respected character on friendly terms with the Commander-in-Chief, spoke for the officers as a body when he addressed to Washington a veiled proposal that he take over the government of the country, with the army behind him, and rule it as a king.

The late Senator Cabot Lodge, in his biography of Washington, states tha ton this occasion Washington was as truly tempted as Caesar, with an offer to make himself king or emperor. The stroke, moreover, would have been easy of accomplishment. The colonists were all beggared by war. Their governments were slack and weak. The Revolutionary Army was the one cohesive, national power in the land. To a man the soldiers worshipped Washington, and with their aid he could have taken over control of the nation. As near as that, at this stage of America's history, was the country to becoming a monarchy.

And yet it was a long distance away. To George Washington the temptation of kingship was no temptation at all. On the contrary, he put it aside with far greater and more sincere indignation that did Caesar wave aside the laurel crown. In a letter whose very word should be implanted in the mind of every school child in America, he declined Nicola's offer and rebuked the man who made it. Writing on May 22, 1782, he said:

"With a mixture of great surprise and astonishment, I have read with attention the sentiments you have submitted for my perusal. Be assured, sir, no occurrence in the course of the war has given me more painful sensations, than your information of there being such ideas existing in the army as you have expressed, and I must view with abhorrence and reprehend with severity. . .

"I am at a loss to conceive what part of my conduct could have given encouragement to an address, which to me seems big with the greatest mischiefs that can befall my country. If I am not deceived in the knowledge of myself, you could not have found a person to whom your schemes are more disagreeable. . . Let me conjure you, then, if you have any regard for your country, concern for yourself or posterity, or respect for me, to banish these thoughts from your mind and never communicate as from yourself or anyone else, a sentiment of the like nature."

THE MARYLAND BIBLE SOCIETY'S CORNER

"The Word of Our God Shall Stand Forever"

Within two ycars, 1828-30, the Maryland Bible Society had distributed within the State 30,000 Bibles. The Society, however, was urged not to relax its efforts, but rather to beware of lukewarmness. The fathers of the Society bcgan to be moved by concern for worthy successors. "Apprentices," they said, "should be won, but this cannot well be done through the Sunday schools, in which few youths remain after they are 15 or 16 years of age." This leads us to comment upon the fact that youth in all the centuries remains much the same. The former days were not better than these. Another part of the 1928 report bears a note of rejoicing because auxiliary societies had bcen established in all the countries, "but difficulties in securing workers and the depressed state of trade and commerce had caused the task still to remain incomplete." How modern that sounds! It might have been written yesterday instead of a century ago.

In those days Frederick was so far from Baltimore that the Rev. John G. Nevins is said to have "taken a journey" to Frederick to quicken the zeal of the people of Western Maryland.

It was in this period of the Bible Society's life that Dr. William Nevins, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, and a staunch advocate of Bible distribution, wrote and published an article entitled, "Why the World should have the Bible." Grief had deeply touched him in the loss of his beloved wife, and while the article is somewhat morbid because of this circumstance, much of it rises to sublime heights. He wrote, "Truth is recorded in the Bible, as the stars are sprinkled upon the firmament. There is no appearance of system in either and yet in astronomy is there not orderly arrangement, the most perfect system? And may not the same be true of the Bible? Is there harmony in created objects, and not in revealed truths? Is not the truth one and concordant?"

"It is wonderful that profaneness is not awed into veneration, and infidelity disarmed of its doubts and objectives by the amazing grandeur of even the descriptions of the Bible. There is in them a simplicity that attempts nothing and yet a sublimity that towers above everything."

In another paragraph Dr. Nevins declared, "The Bible, directed to all men, should be delivered to all men. All have an equal need of it. If God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son, surely the world should be informed of the stupendous and deeply interesting fact. All supremely, intensely need the Bible, and need nothing so much, and need nothing in comparison with this." Dr. Nevins passed to his reward in 1835. "He being dead, yet speaketh."

HABITS HAVE A SERIOUS EFFECT ON ONE'S HEALTH

Some of those Acquired in Childhood Are Detrimental

Speaking of habits, Dr. Richard C. Leonard, Chief of the Division of Oral Hygiene of the Maryland State Department of Health, said: "Some of the apparently harmless habits acquired by young children have a serious effect upon the teeth and mouth, and eventually upon the general health. The sooner they are faced, frankly and squarely, the better it will be for the child's health.

"Some people think that thumb and finger sucking are 'cute'. As a matter of fact, they are trouble makers that may have a lasting effect, not only upon the child's health, but also upon the facial expression and general attcrativeness of the child. The constant pressure of the jaw resulting from thumb and finger sucking may gradually push the teeth out of their normal places and make them come in 'crooked.' This in turn makes chewing difficult and interferes with the digestion.

"Other habits, not as noticeable, but as difficult to control and as harmful, are lip and teeth sucking, sleeping with the hand or arm under the cheek, or resting the cheek on the hand while bending over a lesson. All of these tend to make the teeth 'crooked' and start a similar train of evils. And while we are talking of habits, don't let us overlook one of the greatest of all trouble-makers—the so-called 'pacifier' that the careless or indifferent mother sticks into the baby's mouth to keep it quiet. Pacifiers have been responsible for changing the shape of many a mouth arch. They probably have had a great deal to do, also, with the development of adenoids, and in turn, with the production of many a "mouth-breather.'

"It is comparatively easy to break a habit before it has had a chance to become fixed. There is usually a cause underlying it and it is worth while to find the cause and correct that, if possible. In some instances, thumb sucking may be due to unsatisfied hunger; in other, to overfeeding. Get your doctor to help you find out what it is and act accordingly.

"The baby is in no way responsible for the pacifier habit. The mother is the one who begins it. It is impossible to keep a pacifier clean, and no matter how you may look at it, the pacifier habit is a filthy one. Nobody knows how much dirt or what disease germs are stuck into the baby's mouth with one of these trouble-making devices.

"Many mechanical means have been developed to aid in breaking thumb sucking and finger sucking habits as well as to use in correcting mouth or jaw deformities produced in other ways. Sometimes it is necessary to resort to devices constructed by the dentists to fit particular cases. The earlier the dentist is consulted, the easier it will be to make the corrections."

Clean-Up, Paint-Up, Fix-Up

To the Editor of The Republican.

The committee on Yard and Garden improvement is pleased to note the zest and cooperation that is being shown in the "Clean-Up" campaign. Let us all work with a will the remaining two days to make our homes and our town more attractive, not only for ourselves, but for the visitor or tourist who happens to be along. See that no dirt or refuse of any kind lurks in the corners or alleyways.

Tourist travel, even new citizens and new business enterprises are coming to communities which are making themselves more attractive in appearance.

Can we not follow this "Clean-Up" campaign with one of "Paint-Up"—"Fix-Up," "dress-up" our homes, garages, lawns and premises? Walk slowly around your home and as you go observe it as if you were a casual passer-by. What changes would you make? Have you noticed that broken trellis, the rickety steps or the missing window pane? Has your eye ever caught the unsightliness of weeds or grass growing between the bricks in your pavement? and have you ever thought that ugly building could be covered with a quick growing vine?

Hunt up work! Try to give someone a job. Every dollar you pay in wages is better than two given in charity.

COMMITTEE.

One of the principal arguments of those who ballyhooed for the primary in the days gone by when the primary was new and less understood than it is today, was that it would permit the people to choose their own candidates. "Let the people rule," was the shout of the politicians who sought to curry public favor and how their faces would grow red on the platform when they exhorted in favor of the "dear peepul."

But somehow or other the primary system hasn't worked out just as its advance agents said that it would. The day of the primary came at last but instead of less boss rule we had more of it. Party regularity and party responsibility were destroyed and we got no compensating good in the place of it. If you do not believe this just cast your eye for a moment over the recent history of Congress and its lack of responsibility to any authority but the whims of the moment.

The way in which the primary has not worked to let the "dear people" rule was convincingly portrayed the other day in the Baltimore Sun by Frank R. Kent, who cited the present Democratic presidential race as an example. Of course the primary is nonpartisan, affecting, as it does, both parties alike, but the example cited by Mr. Kent is certainly a convincing one.

With the convention only a few weeks away, Mr. Kent calls attention to the fact that nobody knows how the ninety-six New York delegates will vote unless one man knows—Mr. John F. Curry, boss of the Tammany organization. He shows further that Frank Hague of New Jersey, controls thirty-two votes in the convention; Tony Cermak, of Illinois, fifty-eight; Tom Pendergast, of Missouri, thirty-six; Huey Long, of Louisiana, twenty, and Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, an equal number.

There are others, inciuding the twenty-two Oklahoma delegates controlled by Governor Bill Murray, the sixteen Maryland delegates owned by Governor Ritchie, and so on down the line.

Continuing, Mr. Kent declares: "The point of all this is that if, as many now expect, the Roosevelt candidacy is blocked by Smith, and the Smith candidacy is blocked by Roosevelt, and a deadlock then ensues, the nomination will be made in the good old 'smoke filled room' by a combination among these twenty-five controlling men and not on the convention floor. The inevitable end of a deadlock is a conference among the state bosscs."

There is no wish here to unduly criticize the Democratic party or its coming convention. The same thing has happened to all parties in times past. The point to be made is that the primary did not bring in political perfection. On the other hand it brought us nearer to political chaos without in the least benefitting the situation.

It is barely possible that in selecting the party candidate the state bosses will do a good job of it. They will at least have in mind the winning of the election in November and the selection of as strong candidate as possible. But the point to be remembered is that the bosses are still on the job in spite of the primaries. In fact the primaries have often given us bosses more autocratic and irresponsible than the old convention system ever dreamed of.

Will Share Potato Crop In Garden Project

The greatest home garden effort in the history of the country is being made this spring which will exceed the effort along this line during the World War. Thousands of families in Western Maryland and West Virginia who never before had gardens are planting now. In the distribution of seeds, the only lack has been seed potatoes, but farmers here and there having a surplus have donated some in a few instances. It is possible more farmers would donate what they have left over after planting if they knew their donations would fall into worthy hands.

A project bordering on Garrett county, Md., and Preston county, W. Va., is making a worthy effort to give employment to men out of work but like all other institutions it is hampered by lack of sufficient money to carry on. This institution is willing to plant ten or twenty acres of potatoes on the share basis if farmers are willing to donate the seed potatoes. After the doners receive their share from the crop next fall the residue will be distributed among the needy families having no potatoes. This will apply to both Maryland and West Virginia. Information on this project can be supplied by the county agents of Preston and Garrett counties. The farm is located on the old Woods Estate west of Oakland.

Pipe Is Arriving For New Gas Line

Letters Are Being Mailed To Delinquent Taxpayers

Approximately two thousand letters are being mailed this week to all delinquent taxpayers of the county requesting prompt payment of taxes due for 1931. A copy of the advertisement appearing in The Republican in regard to delinquent taxpayers is enclosed in the letter sent by Treasurer Jesse J. Ashby.

The letter points out that prompt payment of taxes means a saving by the taxpayer of six per cent interest thereon after January 1; more prompt payment of the State's and county's financial obligations; less borrowing of money by governmental agencies and therefore saving of interest charges for the taxpayers; each county tax year kept separate and intact; less pressing upon the taxpayers, since the taxes for 1932 will be it is easier to pay one year's taxes due after July 1, and it is agreed that than two.

There is yet about $100,000 to be collected on taxes for the year 1931.

Out Door Living Room In Reach of Everyone

The modern outdoor living room is not at all beyond anyone's reach when once the plan of planting and beautification of the home grounds is begun. Such a livable place out of doors need not be elaborate nor expensive. Oftentimes one of these comfortable and refreshing areas can be created by rearrangement of the back yard.

In the above illustration is shown a simple outdoor living room. And yet it holds unlimited opportunities for the family's use and enjoyment. It furnishes an ideal playground for the children and keeps them off the streets and out of the alleys at the same time. In fact, it's a recreation ground for the entire family.

PLANT PERENNIALS FOR PERMANENT BEAUTY WITH LITTLE WORK

Happily for most of us, perennials add a permanent note of gayety and color to the outdoor living room, and yet require little attention and effort to insure their successful growth. Perennials might well be called the "Busy Man's Flower," for a colorful border once worked out and planted becomes a permanent feature, returning year after year, and it saves the effort involved in arranging temporary plantings each year.

Spring is the ideal time to plant most perennials, with the possible exception of those which come into bloom in the very earliest weeks of spring.

Perennials will grow in almost any location, but thought should be given to the proper position of varieties. For instance, one cannot expect to grow water-side plants in a dry spot upon a hill, nor sun-loving perennials to thrive in the shade. Nature is perhaps the best guide in this, so around a creek or pond, for instance, we may plant Hemerocallis, Irises, Liatris, Anchusa or Funkia.

In a sunny border where the soil is rich and no extremes of moisture conditions are encountered, one may plant to good advantage the old favorites such as Phlox, Larkspur, Coreopsis, Shasta Daisy, Columbine, Canterbury Bells and Foxglove.

There are so many attractive flowers to choose from that one is very apt to forget the appearance of unity in the garden and select too many varieties to be used.

The distance between the plants is a very important consideration as on this often depends the size of the order. A perennial is a comparatively slow-growing subject which develops its greatest beauty frequently after a period of years. Those varieties such as Phlox, Bleeding Heart, German Iris, Delphinium and Peony, which have great permanence and need quite a little room, should be planted with sufficient space between to allow for their later development. During the first year the bare places that would thus occur may be devoted to annuals or bulbs. The proper distance apart then really depends upon the permanency of the plant and the size which it will attain when fully developed. Thus some very upright and narrow perennials will require little ground space and may be planted close together while the bushy spreading kind may sometimes need three feet of space betwen them for proper development.

If you start your perennial plantings with young vigorous plants—and after all, they are the very best ones for a new border—and then give them the proper soil in which to grow, encouraging them with the proper treatment, you may expect successful results right from the first year.

Why deny yourself another year of garden color and glorious blooms? Complete your plans now for perennial borders to be planted this spring, for once they are established they will delight you anew each year with their lovely array of beautiful blooms.

Sauerkraut-Tomato Cocktail

Equal parts sauerkraut and tomato juice, or one part sauerkraut to two tomatoes; add few drops of tabasco or horseradish sauce, thoroughly chill.

Lamb Balls With Currant Jelly

Two pounds canned lamb, chopped, being careful not to have too much fat. Add 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1-3 cup cold water (this water is added to take place of liquid lost in chopping meat). Shape into balls, pan fry in a hot pan two minutes on each side, reduce heat and cook slowly 20 minutes, turning twice. Melt 1 cup currant jelly, boil 1 minute and pour around meat balls arranged on hot platter. Garnish with parsley.

Corn Creole

Into a hot skillet in which has been melted butter size of a walnut empty 2 cups canned corn, add 1 green pepper, chopped fine, season to taste. Fry until golden yellow. Serve piping hot.

Jelly Roll

One and two-third cups sugar, two teaspoons baking powder, 6 well beaten eggs, 2 cups flour, pinch of salt.

Mix dry ingredients. Add eggs. Spread about ¼ inch thick in large cookie pan, with greased, floured paper in bottom. Bake rather slowly, about 15 minutes at 400 degrees F., without letting it brown, especially on the bottom.

Turn out on a cloth or heavy paper dusted with powdered sugar. Spread with jelly or custard at once. Trim off any rough or crusty edges. Roll quickly while warm, holding it by the cloth, and keep rolled in the cloth till cool.

Card of Thanks

We desire in this manner to thank those who freely gave their services and assistance during the illness and after the death of our son and brother, Frank McCamic Murphy. We also wish to thank those who donated the use of their cars.

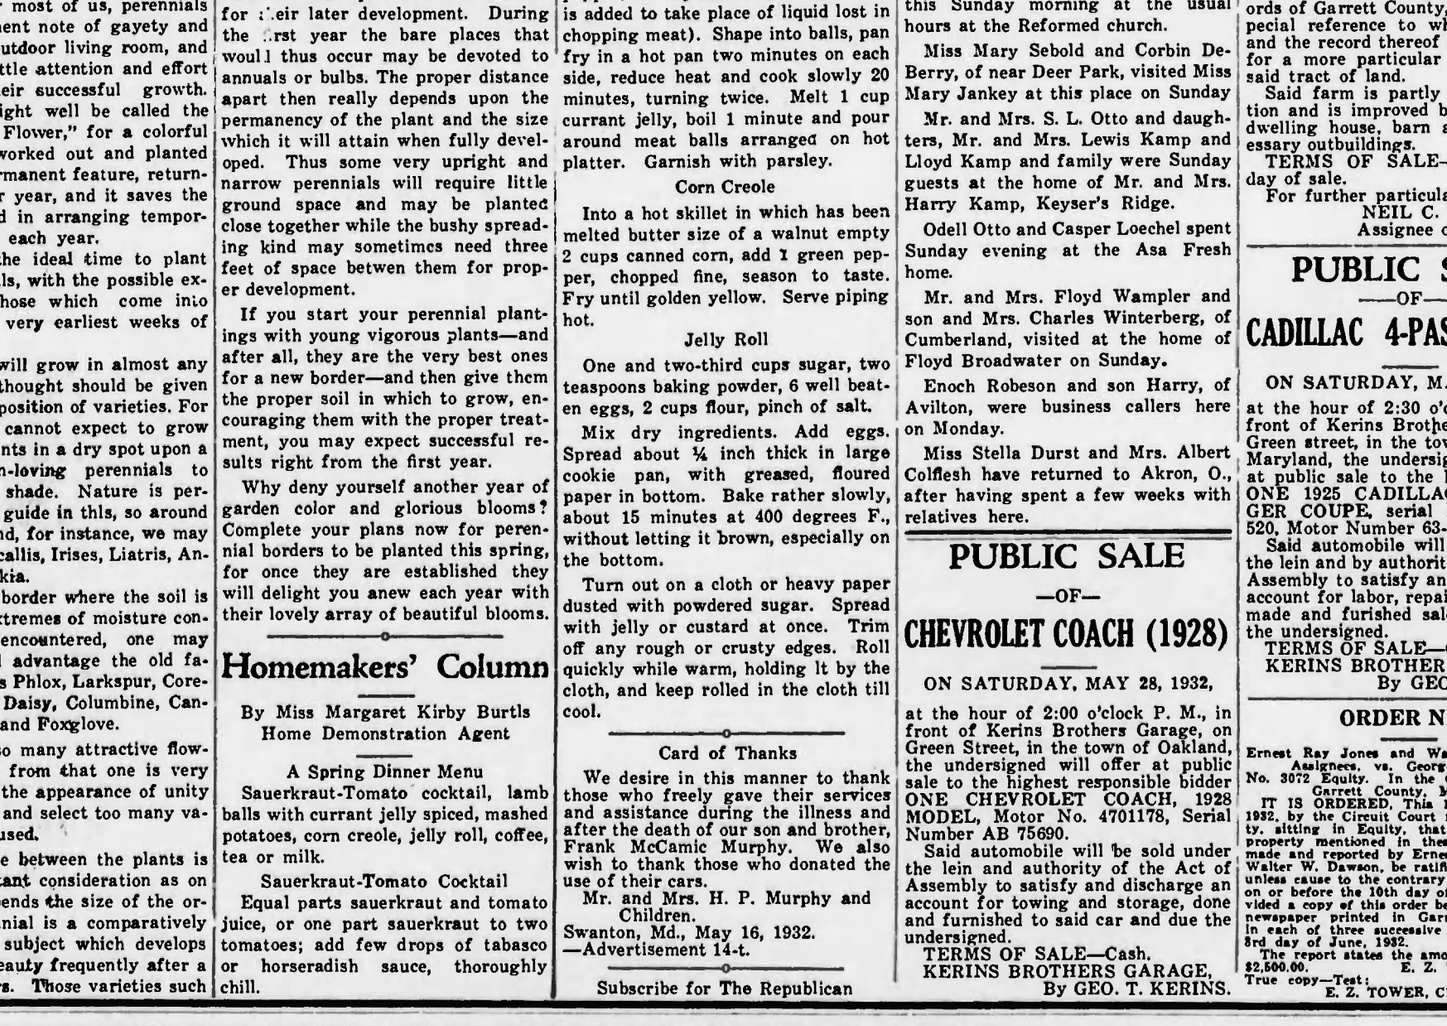
WHO REMEMBERS?



Who remembers when the accompanying illustration was used on most of the sale bills advertising the disposal of livestock and implements?

This illustration was made at a time when the farm house was larger and better built than the barn, which in many cases is not the rule today. In order to bring this "cut" up to date it would be necessary to add to and subtract from it extensively. For instance, horses were used instead of the tractor, which is not shown at all. Then the silo is missing and there are no electric lights nor aerials running from the house to the barn. And it has been a long time since a yoke for oxen has been offered for sale on a Garrett county farm. In fact, so many changes would have to be made in this illustration to make it worthwhile as a present-day sale bill that we hardly ever expect to use it again. In fact, it has not been used during the past twenty-five years.

BITTINGER

Rain in abundance fell every day last week in this community and farmers were unable to do any work in their fields as a consequence.

Jacob Brenneman, Fred. M. Bittinger, Simon Brenneman and Asa Bittinger attended the sale of personal property at the Silas Teats home last Saturday.

Protracted services every night this week are being held in the Glades Mennonite church, near this village.

C. E. Ellithorp purchased a fine young work horse from M. W. Race, Frostburg, a few days ago.

Rev. E. E. Campbell and family removed from Bittinger this week, going to their new home in the State of Ohio. Rev. Campbell faithfully served the three Lutheran congregations of the Bittinger pastorate for a period of eleven years and was forced to resign the work because of ill health. During his pastorate here, Rev. Mr. Campbell made many warm friends and did much effective work among his parishioners, who regret his retirement from the active ministry and removal from the community.

The Davis Brothers Lumber Company have their saw mill in operation near this village for a few days.

Mrs. Lydia Wiley returnd to her home in Grantsville last Thursday after having spent some days with relatives here.

William Winterberg, of Grantsville, was in Bittinger one day last week.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

The hypocrisy and buck passing tendencies of some of the European diplomatic poker players, supposedly gathered at Geneva to help the disarmament movement, was exemplified again recently in the outburst of Premier Andre Tardieu, of France, against the proposals of Hugh S. Gibson, the American representative, that the disarmament conference get down to business by outlawing some of the aggressive weapons of war. This suggestion of Mr. Gibson was made evidently on the theory that the way to get something done was to do something, and that such a proposal would be practicable now that all nations have agreed to eschew aggressive warfare.

In his reply M. Tardieu is said to have pounded the table and grown red in the face, declaring it was useless to prohibit big cannon, great tanks and other implements of offensive warfare because the scientists of the various countries would then invent pocket cannon to replace the big guns, and so on, and it was useless to try to save money by abolishing certain kinds of implements of war because the money would then be expended in developing other implements.

If this is the true situation in Europe then there is little use to talk about limitation of armament, and all the efforts of our own government for disarmament have been in vain. Perhaps the best thing to be gathered from M. Tardieu's outburst is that the people of Europe are not so anxious for peace as some of our own verdant pacifists would have us believe.

M. Tardieu's remedy is to make the League of Nations a real super-state, give it big offensive armament and let it enforce peace. Under this method the United States, in case war broke out between Italy and France, would be obliged to accept the judgment of the League as to which side to join and then to furnish its full quota of men, money and ammunition for the picnic. The plan is of course a very good one from M. Tardieu's standpoint owing to the fact that France, through its allies in Europe dominates the League and the World Court and would have the power and pleasure of designating just which side we should join in case of trouble.

It is to be hoped that some steps for just and efficient limitation of offensive armament can be taken at Geneva but it is becoming more and more doubtful whether anything of the kind can be accomplished.

Maybe some of the European nations could be induced to junk a few rusty cannon if Uncle Sam will agree to cancel the war debts, join the League of Nations and furnish plenty of men and money in case trouble breaks out on the dark and bloody continent.

POOR MARCELLA

A Story of Persistent Love

By FANNIE HURST

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.) (WNU Service)

WHEN she was eighteen, the only child of the Honorable Festus Martin had been painted by Delmar, presented at the court of St. James and introduced with formality to the official social life of Washington.

It was a quick transition from the busy, unremarkable life of Marcella Martin's childhood, as daughter of a prosperous manufacturer of radio parts, to the highly complex social plane achieved by Festus Martin after his growing wealth had enabled him to foster political ambitions, and after those ambitions had landed him in congress.

Undoubtedly it was the combination of Marcella's estate of only child, combined with the doting ambition of parents who could have loved her more wisely, which was accountable for the six years of rigid social disciplining which were imposed upon the protesting Marcella.

It was said of the Martins, laughingly, in certain Washington circles, that the adoring parents of this girl had actually succeeded in making over her face. A rather plain face, too long, with overhanging brow and dull brown hair entirely lacking in lights. But so often had this and that artist idealized it, and so long and arduously had schools of massage, dentistry and hairdressing, expended skill in improving it, that by the time she was eighteen, Marcella was indeed quite an improvement upon the lank, lusterless little girl of other days.

It can readily be imagined that the Martins spared neither time nor the most elaborate expenditures to launch successfully into an estate befitting her father's rank this idolized and only daughter.

The fact that she was diffident, frankly unsocial, unimpressed by wealth or station, unambitious along lines assiduously mapped out for her by her parents whose dreams of ultimate highest realization lay in this girl, only conspired to urge the elder Martins to maximum effort.

"Why, Marcella, another girl with your opportunities would be in her seventh heaven of delight. Doesn't it mean anything to you to have all the things your father's wealth and position can afford for you?"

"Of course it does, mother, only I want them in my way. I'm no good at this social-round kind of thing. I don't like it chiefly, I guess, because I'm a failure at it. Don't force, mother. Can't you reconcile yourself to the fact that I'm not what you want me to be?"

No, neither of the parental Martins could. Festus Martin, as much as his more obvious wife, wanted this daughter a fitting complement to his achievements both official and social. His wife was that, A pretty, pampered-looking woman with small eager ways and deep gold eyes that were brighter than, if not as profound, as her daughter's.

"Emma," he confided to her once during one of their frequent controversies about this problem of their girl, "I actually believe you still have more youth and social charm than Marcella. What is it ails the child? She's as fine a girl as you'll meet in a thousand years, and yet—and yet—no two ways about it—something's missing."

"It's her own fault, Festus. Marcella's heart isn't in living the life about her. That's what hurts me so. To think a girl with her opportunities doesn't appreciate them."

Marcella's reaction to these implications of her doting parents was emotional and deeply sincere.

"Dears, don't you think it hurts me as much as it hurts you that I don't seem to live up to what you want of me? If only you could make up your minds that you're trying to make a silk purse out of—"

"Marcella Martin, nothing of the sort. You've ten times the sense and intelligence of the girls you compete with. Why, a man like Senator Morris wouldn't look at the swarms of silly girls who buzz around him, if you so much as took the trouble to exert yourself to interest him. That's what troubles us, dear. You have all the opportunities for success, including some very natural qualities of your own, and you won't use them."

The subject of Senator Morris was a mooted one in the Martin household. It seemed fitting to the parents of Marcella that the most eligible bachelor in Washington, one of the most outstanding members of the upper house, a man with much achievement behind him and obviously again as much ahead, should be potential timber for Marcella. After all, the only child of a millionaire many times over, personable, probably the most all round educated young woman in the capital, traveled, informed and by no means without a certain quality of distinction, had the right to cast her eyes high.

Anyway, the Martins felt that way about it, and spared neither time, effort nor expense to the bringing together of these two.

It must be admitted, however, that these somewhat ingenuous and not always skilful efforts met with little success.

It is doubtful if in all the times he met Marcella, both in the Martin home and at public occasions, the beautifully gowned, jeweled, caparisoned little lady of longish face, bulging brow, deeply intent eyes and clear brown skin, ever more than passingly snagged his attention. Oh, yes, his reaction, if any, might have been: Martin's daughter! Said to be clever; but a solemn young lady with that dark brown look. Good enough fellow, Martin, if he knew enough to keep out of politics. Pretty little wife with soapsuds for brains.

Marcella's reactions, secret as her own secretive-looking eyes, were not in line with the senator's. There resided in the makeup of this aggressive, massive-jawed, rough-haired member of the liberal wing of politics, qualities that were stirring within Marcella keen, new and exciting thrills.

The most interesting man in all Washington, the most interesting man in America, the most interesting man she had ever met, was the senator. Secret as were these deep-seated emotions, and impenetrable as her brown eyes continued to remain, that fact grew with the months. Secretly, Marcella was in love with Senator Morris.

That it was unrequited caused her neither bitterness nor undue pain. One just went on—alone—caring—hoping for the glimpse of him here and there, picking up crumbs of information of his comings and goings, and outwardly reconciled to defeat.

After a while, even the Martins became half reconciled to it. At twenty-four, Marcella simply had not made her dent. Her generation of debutantes had come and gone. Practically all of the girls who had made their bows the winter that the Marcella Martin coming-out ball was the crowning event of an eventful social season, were married now—rightly.

At twenty-five, something latent in Marcella rose and asserted itself.

Against the resistance of her parents, which she wore down with a high-handedness uncharacteristic of her, she enrolled in a school of social research, and after two winters of intensive work became allied with a settlement house in New York known as Mulberry Center.

Then began the happiest, most interested years of her life. When she was twenty-eight, Marcella was first assistant head of this large institution and an outstanding figure in her chosen field.

The Martins, in their way, were proud of this success. Of course it was miles and miles removed from what had been their dreams for her, but, well, it takes all kinds of people to make a world. Poor Marcella. Of course, one appreciated her brains and her distinction, but just the same, the heart of the mother of this daughter seemed to beat to the rhythm: poor Marcella.

It was when she was thirty-two, considerably heavier, and with streaks of faint gray in her strong dark hair, that Marcella Martin, appointed by her government as first woman member of an international conference on housing conditions to be held in Geneva, again encountered Edgar Morris, now Governor Morris. He, too, gray now, heavier now, found himself sitting beside her at a political luncheon at Geneva where he was in attendance at a conference.

Life, tides, affairs, had flowed swiftly for him in the years which had intervened since his previous meeting with her. It is doubtful if he recalled her at all. He only knew that suddenly he was meeting a woman whose talk, whose point of view, whose deeply quiet eyes and a certain unworldliness, were giving him the first serious pause he had ever in his life felt where the other sex was concerned.

It occurred to him even, as he sat there beside her in the first hour of that lunch in Geneva, that he seemed to be developing symptoms of a man on the verge of falling in love.

Strong Bond Between George V and Scotland

When the lord provost handed to King George the keys of Edinburgh, the ceremonial required his majesty to say, in returning them, that the key could not be in "better hands." The British rulers were celebrating the thirty-eighth anniversary of their wedding in Edinburgh. This was fitting, because it is due to two weddings that the keys of the city were handed to them at all.

If the Tudor princess had not married a king of Scotland, James VI of that country could never have been Elizabeth's successor under the title of James I of the United Kingdom, of Ireland and the Dominions Beyond the Seas. And if his daughter had not married the elector palatine the house of Hanover, from which George V is more directly descended, could not have come to the British throne after the death of Queen Anae.

Because of their marriages George V bears the blended blood of the royal house of England and Scotland. His Plantagenet ancestors (through John of Gaunt) were repentedly chased out of Scotland. His Tudor ancestors didn't dare try to conquer the brawlik of Caledon. His Stuart ancestors were the Scots' well-beloved. Because of that strain they forgive him his Hanoverian blood.—New York Times.

The Art of Illusion

"Remember," said the earnest citizen, "that the eyes of the public are upon you."

"That condition is provided for," answered Senator Sorghum. "In political prestidigitation the hand-out must always be quicker than the eyesight."

Spending to Save Through ADVERTISING

Not many of us these days are troubled with so much money that we cannot spend it. But we ARE interested in spending the money we have, to get the most out of it.

People, in these times, usually keep a budget, putting down so much for food, so much for clothing, so much for rent, etc. They get a lot of their figures from advertising in newspapers and magazines.

Advertising helps. Advertisements in The Republican will tell the housewife how much butter, foods, meats, and clothing will cost BEFORE she goes shopping, and better still, will inform her where the best can be bought for the least money.

Advertising costs so little when compared with the returns it brings in increased business.

STRAWHAT DAY TURNS WEATHER INTO MID-SUMMER

What is this power Straw Hat Day has upon the weather?

May 15, the official day for donning the headgear of "lighter than air" fabrics has never won a place in red ink upon the calendar, excepting when it falls upon a Sunday, as it did this year, but nevertheless it exerted a power over the elements that turned the weather from a week of the most disagreeable kind into one of mid-summer delightfulness.

During the past week, starting Sunday night, a steady rain caused the streams to swell to overflowing in many instances, and an official report from the H. Weber and Sons company, local weather tabulators for the government, showed that 4.14 inches of rain had fallen from Sunday night, May 8, to Saturday, May 14. But Straw Hat Day ended this downpour, and literally turned the season from spring into mid-summer.

Just whether or not this Day can hold its spell over the elements until June 21, the offical "Summer's Day," cannot be predicted, but it has been exceptionally well the first half of this week.

Four and fourteen-hundredths inches of rainfall during a week's time is unusual in this section, according to Ralph E. Weber, and is approximately the average amount of rainfall for any one month of the year.

PREDICT HARMONY AT STATE G. O. P. MEETING

Goldsborough Expected To Succeed Jackson As Member of National Committee

Leaders of the Republican party of Maryland foresee a harmony session in store May 26, when the State convention will be held in Baltimore to officially name the party's nominees and delegates to the National convention in Chicago.

Some of the most powerful figures in the party are solidly behind Senator Phillips Lee Goldsborough to succeed William P. Jackson as national committeeman, and others declare and predict a fight over the senatorial nomination will not materialize.

Important leaders of the party declare unofficially that Linwood L. Clark, former representative from the Second District, will not push his claim for the senatorial nomination, based on the plea that he had carried the popular vote over State Senator Wallace Williams in the primary of May 2.

Williams Carries Counties

Senator Williams, though beaten in the primary carried enough of the counties to assure himself of the nomination under the unit rule. Several party leaders called on Williams and Galen L. Tait, chairman of the State central committee and his principal backer, to withdraw from the race on the face of the primary returns.

Both Williams and Tait refused to heed these demands and Clark, at the meeting of the State committee in Baltimore Monday intimated that he would not press his claim further.

Selection of a new national committeeman was necessitated by the statement from Mr. Jackson last winter that he would not be a candidate for renomination. The new committeeman will be selected by the national convention delegates immediately after the convention on a week from Thursday.

Many of the most powerful leaders were united behind Senator Goldsborough for the position. No decision has been reached as to a successor to Mrs. W. Bladen Lowndes as national committeewoman.

MT. LAKE PARK

Loyalty of Loch Lynn Citizens

It was certainly a fine gesture of public spirit and loyalty made in Loch Lynn yesterday when nearly every able-bodied man turned out to donate a day's work on the new road now being built in that village.

The folks over there are trying to complete Roanoke Avenue, the main street through the town connecting with the Pleasant Valley highway, and when the authorities announced that there was not enough money in the treasury to finish the project, the men (and women) of the town just simply refused to accept defeat. So they notified the Council to keep at it, threw off their coats, donned their overalls and spent the entire day seeing that the road was completed.

Not to be outdone (here the loyal women of the community figure) the women provided the dinner, which was served at noon. And as usual, with dinners served by the women of Loch Lynn, it was all that could be desired.

We have wondered, in this time when taxes are being paid a few dollars at a time, when the Council of Mount Aln Lake Park is hard put to meet the financial demands of the town whether there are enough public-spirited citizens who would offer their services to work for a day, doing whatever the city dads decide is most necessary to be done. We are sure the women will do their part. Any suggestions?

Property Values Down

Owing to the fact that certain properties have recently been sold for less than their actual value, for reasons best known to the owners, there seems to be a general impression that properties can be purchased or rented for little or nothing.

It is true that real estate values have depreciated here as elsewhere, but unless some absolute necessity exists for present sale, there is no question that in time the tide will turn when credit will be restored, unemployment cease and values return to normal, and those who can will be the gainers by refusing to sell or rent properties at these deflated prices.

Dogs Kill Sheep Near Park

It is reported that Mr. D. L. Reed, who operates a farm near the Park, suffered the loss of nine fine sheep one night recently, the animals having been killed by worthless dogs.

Loss of a similar nature would have been suffered by Mr. James White on Tuesday night had he not heard the commotion and chased the dogs away.

To Discuss Watershed Problems at Forestry Meeting

What is happening to the nation's water sources will be brought into prominence at Baltimore, on May 26 and 27, when members of the Maryland Forestry Association gather for their annual conference, which will be held jointly with the American Forestry Association. The Secretary of Agriculture, Arthur M. Hyde, will head the list of national speakers assembled in the interest of combined forestry and watershed problems.

The purpose of the conference is to present the more important phase of the country's water situation and to suggest constructive approaches to the many water problems with which the nation, states, communities, and individuals are confronted. Further, the sessions are designed to focus public attention upon the watershed and the importance of giving due recognition and development to watershed influences.

In commenting upon the subject of the conference, George D. Pratt, president of the American Forestry Association, said:

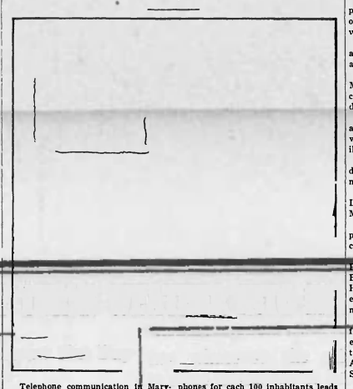
"There is no more important conservation problem before the American people than that of water. We are featuring it not only because of its national and local importance, but because of the import bearing which intelligent management of forest lands has upon water conservation and water supply. Most city dwellers know water merely as something obtained by turning on a faucet. Few of them understand the sources from which it comes or appreciate the influences of modern developments and exploitation upon these sources. Forest fire, soil erosion, floods, droughts, and mismanagement of watershed lands are slowly but surely levying a heavy drain upon our water resources and our natural wealth.

"Every school boy knows that water is vital to life. It is the nation's basic natural resource. Recurring droughts, floods, and the loss of millions of acres of good agriculture land through erosion, stress the need of an intelligent national water policy if our country is to emerge from the present economic breakdown into an era of sound and permanent prosperity."

In the Lindbergh kidnapping, a peculiar coincident is the fact that Col. Lindbergh, on his famous hop to Paris, landed at Curtis Field for his take-off on May 12, 1927 at 5:33 p. m. and his baby's body was discovered May 12, 1932, shortly after 3 p. m.

At Salt Lake City, the inmates of the State Penitentiary have resolved to do without meals next Sunday and donate them to the unemployed.

U. S. Retains Lead In World Telephone Service



Telephone communication in Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, and the District of Columbia is so universally used by men, women and children in every walk of life that it will come as a shock to many people to learn that there are numerous larger cities in other countries with fewer telephones than are found in the smaller cities in this area.

Small towns and rural sections of America are notably well provided with telephone facilities. Communities in the United States with less than 50,000 population each, have at their disposal an average of 12.2 telephones for each 100 inhabitants, according to a survey made recently by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, giving world telephone statistics as of January 1, 1931, which is the latest date for which comparable figures can be secured. In Europe, the report shows, even the larger cities are for the most part less adequately supplied with telephones than these smaller American communities.

Telephone facilities in America are widely distributed. While such development abroad is largely concentrated in metropolitan areas, American cities are generally far ahead of foreign cities in the extent of telephone service. The eight cities in the United States of more than 1,000,000 population had, on January 1 of last year, an average of one telephone for every four people, and the 52 American cities of more than 500,000 population were almost equally well equipped telephonically. This development exceeds the telephone density of all foreign cities except two. San Francisco with 40.2 telephones for each 100 inhabitants leads the larger cities of the world in telephone development. Washington is second, Seattle third, and Denver is a close fourth.

In absolute numbers, the telephones of large American cities are more nearly comparable with the telephones of foreign countries, and even contiacats, than with those of individual cities abroad. New York City, for example, has considerably more telephones than France; nearly as many as Great Britain, and more than one-half as many as Germany. Chicago has about as many telephoaes as there are in all of Spain, Italy and Russia added together. Los Angeles has more telephoaes than any European country, except Germany, Great Britain, France or Sweden. The telephones of New York City outaumber those of Asia and Africa combined, while Chicago has coasiderably more telephones than either South America or Oceania.

The distribution of telephoae facilities abroad is of greater significance to Americans now that they can talk with 92 per cent of all the telephones throughout the world. The telephone system of the United States is connected with most of the telephones in North and South America, Europe and even Australia, as well as a small district in northwest Africa. Among recent additional extensions of service were the radiotelephone circuits established to Java, Sumatra, Bermuda, Brazil, the Canary Islands, and the Hawaiian Islands. Ship-to-shore radiotelephone service also connects American telephones with certain ocean liners at sea.

REPUBLICANS MEET TODAY IN MARYLAND CONVENTION

Wet Issue Expected to be Injected Into Meeting by Goldsborough-Tait Opposition

LOOK FOR BITTER FIGHT

Groups antagonistic to the Goldsborough-Tait faction are expected to inject a wet fight into the Republican state convention, which is being held at the Maryland Theatre, in Baltimore today. It is understood that they will sponsor a wet delegation to the Republican national convention and endeavor to get a wet plank in the state convention platform.

Senator Phillips Lee Goldsborough and Galen L. Tait, chairman of the state central eommittee of the party, are drys.

The antagonistic groups are expected, however, to center their anticipated opposition activities in a convention-floor fight on a successor to William P. Jackson, retiring Republican national committeeman. They will back C. Wilbur Miller for the post, which is being sought by Senator Goldsborough.

Hope to Shatter Factional Lines

The view is held generally that the voting control of the convention will be in the hands of the Goldsborough-Tait leaders. Despite this contention, leaders of the opposition forces hope to shatter factional lines with the intended wet fight and the offer of Miller's candidacy.

The fight against Senator Goldsborough and Tait broke out shortly after the primary election. Spokesmen for the Norris-Harvey coterie from Baltimore county announced that State Senator Wallace Williams, of Cecil county, who won the nomination on the unit count for the United States Senate, should withdraw in favor of Linwood L. Clark, who gained the popular vote.

Senator Williams was the primary candidate of the Goldsborough-Tait combine. When he failed to withdraw and Tait announced that under the unit rule the convention delegations would have to certify his nomination, the Baltimore county delegates announced the candidacy of Miller for national committeeman.

Transportation of Pupils Caused Closing of All But Seven

At the meeting of the County Board of Education last Thursday it was reported that a total of sixty-two one-teacher schools had been closed since the school year of 1924-25, when the transportation of school children was begun by Superintendent F. E. Rathbun. Of this list seven schools were closed due to depopulation of the school communities, the children of the remaining fifty-five being transported to other public schools of the county.

At present there are 74 one-teacher schools in the county, 8 two-teacher schools, 9 graded schools and 6 high schools.

Rev. Straesser will succeed Rev. E. E. Campbell who resigned January 1 on account of ill health.

CONTRACT FOR WIDENING OF HIGHWAY IS AWARDED

Will Complete Work On National Road; Bridge Contract Let

The State Roads Commission of Maryland awarded the contract for widening the National Highway between Keyser's Ridge and Chestnut Ridge, in Garrett county, on Saturday, to Thomas, Bennett and Hunter, of Westminster. The firm's bid was $102,974, not including cement, which is to be furnished by the State.

The work consists of laying concrete shoulders for a distance of 7.45 miles. This stretch will be the last section of the highway to be widened in Maryland. Improvements to the highway from Hagerstown through Cumberland to Chestnut Ridge and from Keyser's Ridge to the Pennsylvania State line, were completed in recent years.

The Mullan Construction Company of Baltimore, was awarded the contract for the construction of a triple span steel girder bridge with concrete floor over the Youghogheny River at Friendsville. The company's bid was $31,729.

COURT NOT TO ALLOW NEW TRIAL IN DAMAGE SUIT

Washington Woman Hurt in Auto Crash, Given $7,000 Verdict

Judge W. Calvin Chestnut, in the United States District Court, Baltimore, has overruled the motion for a new trial in the suit of Mrs. Flota Bell Hartman, of Washington, against the Keeley Construction Company, Clarksburg, W. Va.

A jury returned a verdict of $7,000 for the plaintiff in Federal Court at Cumberland on May 12. Counsel for the defendant company filed a motion for a new trial, contending that the verdict was excessive.

Mrs. Hartman, a former resident of Deer Park, was injured on the night of November 16, 1929, when a car in which she was riding crashed into a barrier on the road between Kitzmiller and Deer Park. The driver, Arthur Oswell, of Washington and Mt. Lake Park, was killed. The road was being improved and it was alleged the construction firm did not have lights on the barrier.

Mrs. Hartman was represented in the court by E. R. Jones and Walter W. Dawson, Oakland, and Geo. W. Legge and Walter C. Capper, of Cumberland.

Attorneys of Ottumwa, Iowa, are trying to locate the heirs of one Charles L. Wilson, deceased, formerly of Maryland, according to a letter received yesterday morning by B. B. Nethken, chief of police of Oakland.

He died without a will, the letter continues, and his estate now awaits the location and identification of his heirs.

"MYSTERY LIGHT" IN SKY IS WELL-KNOWN PLANET

The "mystery" of the bright light in the heavens to the west of Oakland which for many nights has disturbed scores of star gazers and others engaged in more practical activities, has been explained.

Many persons have discussed the matter and are of the opinion that the light is a man-made affair and is used as a beacon light for airmen moored over the city of Akron, Ohio.

The brilliant light appears high in the heavens about dusk and by ten o'clock is almost down to the line of the hills west of town.

Others offered the explanation that runaway balloons, carrying lights to assist in finding them, had originated from some far away port and had come into this section.

Everywhere there was so much doubt about the explanations or hypotheses that no one seems satisfied, and all the time the light makes its nightly appearance, to cause additional consternation.

Here's the answer—The Allegheny Observatory at Pittsburgh gives the information that it is "just our old friend Venus that has been shining there for 6,000 years that we know of, and maybe 6,000 million years."

And that's that!

PAROCHIAL PUPILS NAME BIGGEST MAN IN MARYLAND

During this week, the Supervisor from Baltimore visited St. Peter's school at Oakland.

The first and second grade group was being tested for general information. The question was asked:

"Who has charge of this school?"

Of course they knew that one.

"Who has charge of this class?"

The teacher's name was speedily given.

"Fine; now who has charge of Oakland?"

"Mayor Stemple," came in a general chorus.

"Can someone tell me the occupation or duty that the Mayor performs?"

A brave lad answered quickly: "He's a plumber."

Several more "Who has charge of" questions were asked which finally led up to—

"And who has charge of the whole State of Maryland?"

A profound silence followed, while the Supervisor coaxed on for Governor Ritchie's name.

"Who has charge of the whole wide State? He's a great, big man."

In a full chorus came: "Bun Nethken."

PROGRAMS FOR MT. LAKE INSTITUTE BEING PLACED

Are Being Thoroughly Distributed Over Large Territory

By the end of this week, the summer program of Mt. Lake Institute will have been rather thoroughly distributed over an area extending from Baltimore to Cincinnati and Pittsburgh. The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, the Blue Ridge Bus lines, the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, the Extension Services of the three states, and many other groups are cooperating in the distribution of the Mountain Lake program and already a very definite interest has been expressed in such centers as Pittsburgh. Hotels, boarding houses, and business officers are asked to cooperate in enclosing the programs in their office mail and I. S. Middaugh, director, states that all those who desire programs may obtain them at the Mt. Lake Institute office.

Hiking Club

An interest is developing in the nearby states especially among the Civic Clubs and Historical organizations in re-discovering the old Indian trails and the roadways marked out by Washington and other pioneers. Mr. Middaugh is calling a meeting in the near future of a group of those interested in the development and preservation of the historic material and the folk lore of the Tablelands and will organize a Hiking club as a part of Mountain Lake Institute to trace out and mark some of the most interesting Washington trails. As soon as this has been done, parties will be organized from Morgantown and other nearby cities to hike over and develop these historic trails. Those especially interested should communicate with the Mountain Lake Institute office that a group may be organized.

Firemen Called to Extinguish Blaze in Barn on Third Street

The prompt discovery of a fire in a barn near the Baltimore and Ohio overhead bridge on Third street, at an early hour Friday morning, brought out the Oakland Volunteer Fire department which extinguished the blaze before it had done any damage.

Rev. C. A. Shilke, returning from a ministerial convention in Fairmont, noticed the blaze and turned in the alarm. The fire is supposed to have been of incendiary origin, as members of the department stated that the smell of gasoline was strong in the vicinity of the building.

The barn was owned by George Giessman and contained a quantity of hay.

Fined for Reckless Driving

John R. Taylor, of Reedsville, W. Va., arrested Sunday, May 15, on a charge of reckless driving, when he struck Miss Pomaine Moon, of near Sunnyside, at a point on the roadway near Red House church, was given a hearing before Justice W. A. Gonder, on Saturday and fined $5 and costs.

Miss Moon was only slightly injured. In company with her father, Harry Moon, and a sister, Miss Moon was on her way to attend church and was walking on the left side of the road facing traffic when the accident occurred. Taylor was held under $500 bond for his appearance.

Card Party in Offutt's Hall

There will be a card party this evening in Offutt's Hall, for the benefit of the American Legion. The Legion drum and bugle corps will turn out for a parade prior to the party. Refreshments will be served, prizes awarded, and an electric Singer sewing machine will be given away. Harold Dawson, Edward P. Kahl, and Joseph M. Gonder, members of the committee in charge of the sewing machine, request that every legion member turn in his book stubs.

16TH ANNUAL FIELD MEET TO BE HELD ON TUESDAY

Garrett County School Athletes To Compete for Honors

The sixteenth annual county-wide field and track meet will be held at Mt. Lake Park on Tuesday, May 31, with more than 350 athletes from various schools in the county competing, Foster O. Speicher, chairman of the committee in charge, announced.

The meet is being held under the auspices of the Playground Athletic League of Baltimore, and under the authority of F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent of schools.

A number of schools have already sent in their entries to the chairman of the committee, and a number of schools have held or will hold local field day meets in their respective communities in preparation for the county-wide contest.

There will be various running events, relay races, broad jumps, high jump, shot put, etc., for the 80-lb., 115-lb., junior and senior unlimited classes, and speedball, volleyball and dodgeball contests and other games for all schools participating.

Oakland High school won the meet last year, Kitzmiller in 1930, 1928 and 1927, while Accident was first in 1929. Last year Kitzmiller High was second, Friendsville third, and Oakland grammar fourth.

Oakland High holds sixteen of the thirty county athletic records, Kitzmiller High, 9; Kitzmiller Grammar, 2; Oakland Grammar, 1; Accident, 1; and Friendsville, 1.

Two new county records were established last year and one record was tied, and with the wealth of material which will represent the schools this year it is expected that more records will fall, providing the weather is favorable.

Says Courts Can't Cure Delinquency in Children

Asserting that juvenile courts were merely machines and could not in themselves solve the problem of juvenile delinquency, Dr. James S. Plant, of the Juvenile court, Essex county, New Jersey, declared Tuesday in Baltimore that the proper way to start a solution of the problem was to better the neighborhoods in which children live.

He was one of eight to address the conference of county juvenile court committees, held at the Southern hotel, under the auspices of the Maryland League of Women Voters. About 275 attended.

"We should stop telling children to live and act one way while in us they have examples of grown people living and acting in an entirely different way," he stated.

Mrs. E. R. O'Donnell represented the Garrett county committee at the conference.

Scouts Spend Week-end At Deep Creek Lake Camp

Twelve Scouts and their scoutmaster spent the week-end at their permanent camping quarters on Deep Creek Lake, the first overnight hike since in February.

Meals were cooked individually and a number of tests were passed by members of the troop. Those present included Bernard Gonder, Jr., assistant scoutmaster; Harley Dawson, Joseph Sollars, junior assistants; Robert Altstetter, senior patrol leader; Carroll Casteel, scribe; J. Billie Yutzy, Robert Browning, Hopwood Woddell, Lewis Jones, Charles Mason, John Edward Baird, Robert Utterback, George Hanst, scoutmaster, and Chas. Davis, a former scout.

Charles Mason and Robert Lawton were added to the troop at the last regular meeting. There will be no more members received until after the annual camping period, the first of August.

PITTSBURGHERS PLANNING A CARAVAN TO TABLELAND

To Make Two-Day Trip Through the Allegheny Region, Stopping Overnight at Mt. Lake Park

WILL DINE AT OAKLAND

Pittsburgh has stretched a friendly hand to the tableland area of Pennsylvania, Maryland, and West Virginia, of which Garrett county is a part.

The chamber of commerce of Pittsburgh formed a council to develop and carry out a comprehensive program of regional planning, designed to link this metropolitan district more closely socially and economically with 125,000 of its neighbors.

Joseph T. Miller, Pennsylvania Water company executive, was named chairman; Thomas M. Liggett, of the Izaak Walton League, was named vice-chairman; and Harry W. Correll, of the Chamber of Commerce, secretary.

A bus caravan of Pittsburgh business men is planned for June 16 and 17, for a study of the region which occupies 3,000 square miles, and the possibilities of its development as a market area and a summer playground for Pittsburghers. One bus load of tourists is already booked, according to Mr. Correll, secretary.

Receptions for the visitors are being planned along the route, which includes such entertainment as Morgantown, and Kingwood, W. Va.; Oakland and Mt. Lake Park; Berlin and Somerset, Pa.; with brief stops at Accident, Keyser's Ridge, and Grantsville while enroute. There will be a two-hour dinner meeting at Oakland on the evening of June 16, and the night will be spent at Mt. Lake Park.

Among the speakers at the meeting on the 24th were Dr. Nat T. Frame, director of extension, West Virginia University; and Bushrod Grimes.

Plans for the reception of these guests at Oakland will be made this week. After the dinner here, a meeting is being planned at Mt. Lake Park where there will be singing in charge of Miss Sara B. Huff, and a display of the agricultural and industrial products of the area.

I. S. Middaugh represented Mt. Lake Institute and the Allegheny Tableland Association at the luncheon at Pittsburgh on Tuesday.

Court Retains Right to Amend Custody Ruling

In the habeas corpus petition hearing before Judge Albert A. Doub, in the Circuit Court, Friday, regarding the custody of Ruth Arnold, ten-year old daughter of William T. Arnold, of Finzel, Garrett county, the court retained the right to amend the ruling in the case, should cause arise.

The child's mother, prior to her death, suggested in her will that Rev. C. H. Wakeman, of Cumberland, be named as the girl's guardian. Rev. Wakeman gave the custody of the child to Mr. and Mrs. Keifer. Mr. and Mrs. Arnold had been separated prior to her death. The court ruled that Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Keifer, relatives, should keep the child, but the father is permitted to visit her at intervals.

JOSEPH THE DREAMER

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 37:1-11.
GOLDEN TEXT—Recompense to no man evil for evil. Provide things honest in the sight of all men.
PRIMARY TOPIC—A Boy's Dream.
JUNIOR TOPIC—A Boy's Dream.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Right and Wrong Ambition.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Right and Wrong Ambition.

I. Joseph the Favored Child (vv. 1-3).

Joseph was Jacob's favorite son. This favoritism expressed itself in a superior position and more respectable clothes. That Jacob should feel partial toward Joseph perhaps was inevitable, but that he should manifest it was extremely unwise.

II. Joseph Hated by His Brethren (v. 4).

His superior character was a continual reminder to his brethren of their evil deeds. The silent rebuke of a righteous life is hard for the wicked to hear. His father's favoritism fanned this hatred into a flame which at last burst forth upon him. Such parental indiscretion may lead to murder. The good are not always loved.

III. Joseph's Dreams (vv. 5-11).

God showed to Joseph by means of these dreams his future. It was right for Joseph to have these dreams because they were from God, but perhaps he was indiscreet in making them known. Often times the manner in which a thing is done offends more than the thing itself.

1. His brothers' sheaves bowing in obeisance to his (vv. 5-8). This was rightly interpreted by them to mean their subjection and obedience to him. This intensified their hatred of him. It was hard enough for them to endure the father's favoritism, but to have this dream narrated, which pictured his rule over him, was more than they could endure.

2. The sun, moon, and eleven stars rendering obeisance to him (vv. 9-11). This dream is wider in its application than that of the sheaves. The eleven stars are identical with the eleven sheaves. The sun and moon is rightly interpreted by his father as representing his father and mother rendering obeisance to him. This dream created within his father's mind a suspicion of a lurking ambition of selfishness and vanity in Joseph's bosom. He rebuked him for it, but possessed the good sense to observe it. The hatred of his brethren revealed itself in envy.

IV. Joseph Sent by His Father on a Mission of Mercy to His Brethren (vv. 12-17).

His brethren had gone to Sheehem, about fifty miles distant from Hebron, where was abundance of pasture for their flocks. Jacob became anxious about their welfare and sent Joseph to find out their condition. Knowing the attitude of his brethren toward him, he no doubt realized that his mission was fraught with grave danger. It means exposure to highway robbers, wild beasts, and the murderous hatred of his brethren. Undeterred by the envious hatred of his brethren, he willingly responded, "Here am I."

V. Joseph's Reception by His Brethren (vv. 18-28).

As soon as they saw him their hatred began to burn.

1. Their murderous plot (vv. 18-22). They said, "Behold, this dreamer cometh. Come now therefore, and let us slay him." They thought to prevent these dreams from coming true by destroying the dreamer. Reuben dissuaded them from this act by proposing to cast him into a pit, thinking to rescue him and return him to his father.

2. They stripped him of his coat of many colors and cast him into the pit (vv. 23, 24). In spite of his earnest entreaty against this wicked act, they perpetrated this heartless cruelty (Gen. 42:21).

3. Their feasting (v. 25). Their heartlessness manifested itself in their enjoyment of a meal, perhaps within the sight and hearing of Joseph's cry.

4. Sold to the Ishmaelites (vv. 25-28). In the providence of God, these merchantmen passed by at the opportune time. Judah proposed that they sell him, as no gain could accrue from letting him die in the pit. Having done this infamous deed, they sought to cover it up by lying and deceit. They took his coat of many colors and dipped it in the blood of a kid and sent it to his father, allowing him to draw his own conclusion as to the matter. Jacob is now reaping what he had sown. Many years before this he had wronged a brother and deceived his father by trickery and lying.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By Scoop Hlmself

So many people wonder how I can get up this column every week, and more than many wonder if it takes any thought. They don't see how it can, after they get a look at me, but for the benefit of those who subscribed to The Republican long before I became the leech that I am, and who might have me visualized as a rational and intelligent being, I will explain just how I write what I do.

Before going to bed at night I tie a carpenter's pencil to my bedpost. Then I eat fancy food before retiring. Then I always keep one eye open for nightmares. When one comes along I jot down the ideas on the pillow slip with the big pencil.

Next morning I look over the notes on pillow slip and then write about something else.

All of which brings me to my trip to Baltimore, although that is no resemblance to a nightmare, even if I did travel with Harland Jones and Herbert Leighton.

I was constantly reminded of George Giessman and home when I saw those Betholine elephants along Route 40.

We called on the State editor of the Sun and then looked in every edition the next day for our names under the local column, in this style: "H. L. Jones, socially prominent and successful Oakland banker; Herb Leighton, congenial postmaster of Mountain Lake Park and with a pleasing personality, and George Hanst, alias Scoop, famous for his remarks in Garrett county's leading newspaper, are spending a few days in Baltimore doing the town." Our story was probably crowded out at the last minute by a seven-alarm fire.

Where is the postoffice? There goes a parade, probably a circus, and the first to get up and gawk out of the windows were the Baltimoreans themselves. Herb, don't look at those high buildings, but it's too late now; look at the crowd that has gathered, all looking in the same direction you are, trying to see what you see. What a bunch of goofs. I'll bet they think milk is manufactured by a dairy.

If I could only lay my hands on that taxi driver who let us out in front of the Southern Hotel instead of the Emerson, and it was still raining, too. Picture of Harland Jones, locked out of his room and banging on 626 to let him in, when we were in 625. If only a woman had opened the door!

And then there was the story of the 20 horses and 3 stalls, and the horses had to be placed so that there would not be an even number in any stall. (Answer upon request).

And was I about to burst when we met Mark White at Perry Point, a former Oakland boy, and he said he read this column every week and enjoyed it. Even if he hadn't taken us out to dinner I would still like him, because he told it so beautifully I believed him.

Don't anyone come along now for at least a week to burst my bubble.

Another letter from Paul Stutzman, of Uniontown, Ohio, a faithful reader, boosts my stock to a new high level. Is the boom on?

Maybe you think I have never been to the city? Well, I have. At least twice.

Forty years ago under the caption of "Dobbin," and signed "Snag," The Republican printed the following: "Nature has again clothed the earth with grass and flowers and the birds are singing their sweet songs in the fast-budding tree tops. The peach and cherry trees are in full bloom adding much joy to these songsters." He omitted that the flies were also with us, the ants were preparing themselves for picnic parties and the mosquitoes were sharpening their spears.

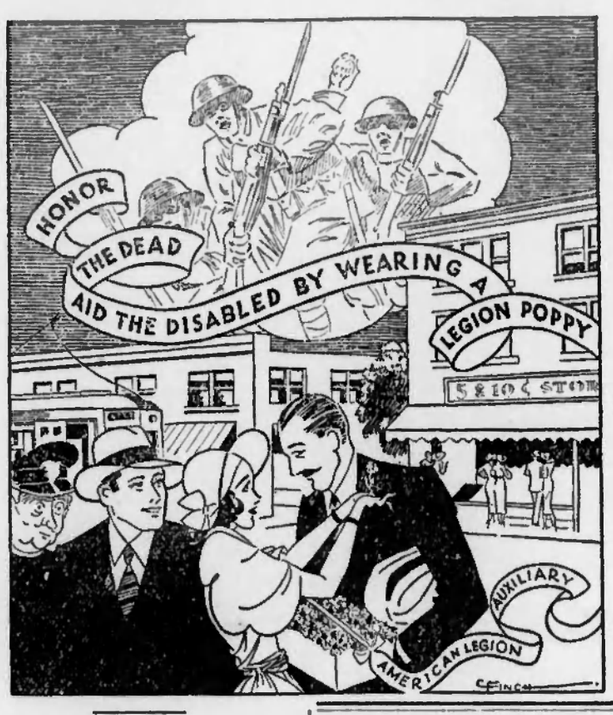
The boss editor left for Baltimore yesterday at 11 o'clock. Neil Cusser Fraley left at 1, but before either left Cusser exacted a promise that he be allowed to use space in Scoop's column this week. So here it is uncensored and unadulterated:

"Uncle Benjalim left before noon yesterday to be on hand when the G. O. P. convention convenes at Baltimore today. He is expected to lead the fight for a plank in the platform demanding more beer and better beer. It is said that he took a sample of his own make to convince the boys that he still knows how to make 'er."

POPPY WEEK, MAY 21 TO MEMORIAL DAY



POPPY DAY

A million dollars in a day! Ten million poppies worn in tribute to the World War dead!

That, briefly, is the auxiliary memorial poppy sale. A million dollars raised in a day and every penny of it for an unselfish purpose! Ten million little red flowers distributed to honor the men who gave their lives for America, and every flower made by the hands of the war's living victims.

This year, with present economic conditions making a successful poppy sale more difficult, the local organization of the Legion Auxiliary extended their poppy sale date over a week's time, from May 21 to Memorial Day.

The voice of the Legion and the Legion Auxiliary this year speaks in a loud tone for a successful poppy sale, that the work of assisting the orphans of World War veterans might be carried on uninterruptedly, and to that end effort will be put forth by the local organizations to sell more poppies than ever during the sale period this year.

HOW TO HELP

Dump your investments at panic prices and let men of money pick them up. (?)

Help keep all rumors concerning bad business in circulation. (?)

Replace the old and reliable employes by putting in inexpensive and cheap help. (?)

Think and talk hard times and threaten to shut down. This will encourage your employes, extend your credit and increase your own ability to think intelligently and work wisely. (?)

Cut out all amusements for your family. This will make a happy home. Give nothing to charity and you will be very, very happy. (?)

Put off paying over-due accounts as long as possible. Stop buying new goods. Stop advertising. Stop trying anything that will help you advance and wait for better times. (?)

Buy a dose of cyanide, a cheap coffin, but be sure your life insurance premium is paid, for the innocent should not suffer for the guilty.

CAN YOU PROVE THAT YOU ARE AN AMERICAN CITIZEN

The Best Evidence Is a Certified Copy of Your Birth Certificate

Are you an American citizen? Can you prove it? Is your baby a citizen of Maryland? Can your prove it? Are you a Marylander? Can you prove it?

You may answer "yes, of course," to all these questions, you may even say, "My ancestors came over in the Ark and Dove and settled in Maryland in 1634," but unless you can produce a certified copy of your birth certificate, or some equally authoritative evidence, you may have some difficulty in proving your identity and in establishing your rights as a citizen.

The Bureau of Vital Statistics of the State Department of Health, with the assistance of the county health officers, has recently completed a check-up of the birth records for over 25,000 children already attending school or who will be old enough to enter school in the fall, living in thirteen counties—Anne Arundel, Baltimore, Calvert, Carroll, Cecil, Dorchester, Frederick, Harford, Kent (white only), Montgomery, Prince George's, Talbot and Wicomico counties. The names were obtained through the courtesy of the county superintendents of schools from the school census of 1930.

The report of the survey, prepared by Dr. John Collinson, Chief of the Bureau of Vital Statistics, shows that birth certificates were found on file for nearly 23,000 of the children, or about 90 per cent of the total. The parents of the children whose births were not registered, were written to and an effort was made to obtain the necessary information. As a result of these inquiries, 500 additional certificates were placed on file.

Commenting on the findings, Dr. Collinson said, "Though there was no birth certificate on file for about one out of every ten of the children, it is likely that the number of unregistered births is considerably less. Many of these children were probably born in Balimore City or outside the State and the records were accordingly filed at the place of birth. When we were unable to obtain this information from the parents, the names had to be placed in the 'unregistered' list.

"Duly certified copies of birth records furnish legal proof of identity; of the right to inherit or to bequeath property; to obtain settlement of insurance; to prove age; to obtain admission to school; to prove qualification for, or exemption from, civil or military duty; to establish citizenship and to obtain a passport for visits to other countries. Unless they can furnish other proof of their identity, persons whose births are not registered will have some difficulty in proving their claims.

"The laws of Maryland require every birth to be registered within four days of its occurrence. Within a week after the report has been received, an attractively engraved certificate is sent to the parents notifying them that the record is on file. Parents whose children were born in the counties of Maryland and who have not received such certificates are requested to write to the State Department of Health, 2411 N. Charles street, Baltimore, Md."

How to Clean the Gas Stove

Does your gas range give you satisfactory service? If not, a thorough cleansing may be all that is needed to restore it to good condition.

Never let the burners become clogged with dirt or spilled food. At least once a month they should be removed and boiled in soapy water to which should be added a little washing soda or lye. After boiling they should be scrubbed with a stiff bristle brush.

Before washing the enameled parts of the gas range, wait until the surface has cooled, otherwise cracking may result. Go over the range with a soapy cloth every day and wipe up immediately all spilled foods. Stubborn discolorations will usually yield to a little baking soda or kerosene.

Avoid gritty cleansers. In time they will wear off the glazed surface of the enamel and leave it porous. This porous surface is absorbent and is more difficult to keep clean than the smooth, glazed surface.

When cleaning the gas range do not neglect the water heater and other appliances. Dust and corrosion on the coils act as insulators, keeping the heat from reaching the water.

Clyde Miller sang "We Stood by the Window," a popular love song of the forties. The Choral Club sang "The Blue Juanita" and "Gaily the Trobadour," and everyone joined in old favorites as "Home, Sweet Home," The Old Oaken Bucket," and a number of other old-time favorites.

Mrs. Nevin Broadwater read a selection from Washington Irving; Miss Ruth Keller gave a reading from Cooper's "Deerslayer"; Miss Wallace read Poe's "Raven" and Bryant's "Gladness of Nature" was read by Mrs. Harry Edwards. Mrs. P. C. Boucher, Miss Tena Winterberg, Miss Dorothy Younkin and Mrs. Stewart Rodamer. If you once have a taste of the New NuGrape, you always come back for more. It's just that sort of a flavor—a mysterious something, born of plump Concord grapes and sunshine. There is nothing anywhere near like it, with its bouquet of dew-ripened grapes, and its sparkling, dancing life—as of champagne.
Next to impossible to keep the New NuGrape on ice at home—the family sneaks in for "just another bottle," even when a case is purchased at a time. But since Nature and Science brewed it and brought it to its delightful state of appetizing perfection—you can drink as much as you please as often as you please.
There is no substitute for the New NuGrape. Accept none, for it would only mean disappointment. The genuine is sold everywhere for 5¢.

THE FAMILY STANDS THE STRAIN

There is a bright side to every picture. One of the consolations of the existing state of affairs is the loyal and cherful manner in which members of families are standing together. It has done much to demolish the theory that the American home has broken up and is no longer the basis of the social system of our country. Mr. John L. Elliott, of New York, speaking before the National Federation of Settlements in Philadelphia, calls attention to this phase of life and draws from it the conclusion that the home now, as in the past, can still be counted upon as the bulwark of society.

He says the widespread unemployment has shown that the family of America is a unit, "bound together by ties of affection and of common interest. In every city in the United States it has been found that when a member of a family loses his job the other members are the first to come to his aid. In the great majority of cases it is only when mutual aid is no longer possible that the needy are forced to apply to relief agencies. In New York it is estimated that public and private relief funds have contributed only one-tenth of one per cent of the total help afforded. The remainder has been provided by families of the destitute. This is surely a state of affairs that should cause all to rejoice. It is the highest tribute that could be paid to our common humanity. In days of unusual prosperity families are often torn with dissensions, petty jealousies and little irritations that help to make life miserable; but in times of stress these things are cast aside and people rise to greater heights.

It is a phase of the difficult period through which we are passing that can not be too strongly emphasized. It should be indeliby imprinted on the memory of all. Hear Mr. Elliott again: "When a man can no longer pay his rent, his relatives receive him, his wife and children. Often it means a great discomfort, but the sacrifices, as a rule, are cheerfully accepted. When the home is lost through inability to pay taxes, once again the other members of the family take charge. Else how does it happen that, with thousands of homes sold at public auction, there are so few homeless?"

Here, then, we have the answer to the puzzle. On the surface things go on as usual. The sun shines and automobiles crowd the streets. But only the stupid or the selfish or the wilfully blind fail to see the suffering and the mutual sacrifices. And out of it because of courage and strengthened relationships will come future happiness and prosperity, says the Philadelphia Inquirer, in conclusion.

SUNDAY MEDITATIONS

By J. A. HALL
Editor The DeKalb (Ga.) New Era.

It is a glorious spring morning—a quiet, restful Sunday, which seems strangely out of place in the midst of a sorrow-stricken and tumultuous world. Urged by the eternal discontent of human life most people have gone somewhere seeking for something which they cannot explain, yet it is something they are well aware they do not possess. It is repose of soul—a harmony and comradeship with one's surroundings.

On this May morning—a day which seems to closely approach perfection—people have gone racing in motor cars to distant places to see and talk to other people equally discontented. Some have gone to church, seeking to solve that age-old question—a question which leashed its grip upon the heart of man since the very beginning of his existence—can man by searching find God? We are no nearer the answer to this question than was Job, notwithstanding its grip on the hungry soul, always searching for something upon which to rest.

As I sit here in the stillness of a May Sunday morning, I am reminded of the soothing companionship of silence. How restful and how re-assuring is silence! Silence arouses no resentment, it irritates no overwrough nerves, it provokes no controversy. The songs of the wood thrush, the catbird and the cardinal which come to me give melody to the primeval quietude.

A new sound comes to me from somewhere in the overhead sky. It is the throb of airship motors. It is the voice of the combustion engine uttering the exultant note of mastery to the modern world. "I have conquered the air, the sea and the wide stretches of the land. I have triumphed over both time and distance," it says. "I have conquered what simple man once thought was unconquereable."

The wind rustles the leaves in the trees above my head. This voice of the wind is a common sound. We hear it so often we give it no attention. But somehow the sough of the breeze through the oak leaves today grips my attention. It seems to say: "Listen to me! I am not a new and disturbing note like the noisy motor of the airship. I am the voice of the wind. I am the oldest sound in the world. Long before the earth was fit for any kind of human life I blew my soothing breath on its red-hot craters. I toyed with the first ocean waste and pushed its waves in long, foaming rollers upon beaches ages before any living thing appeared. I wandered in wild freedom among the jungles and across the strange open spaces of the first forests and plains. In the long forgotten spring times I kissed the tardy buds of the first flowers and bade them come forth with bloom. I have by turns cheered and terrified all living things. I have given voice to the fury of the maddened sea, and I have driven away the chilling winter and brought forth in its place the balm and sweetness of spring. I was at home in this land and busy with my task long before the first pulse of hope stirred the primitive human soul, and my whisperings will still stir on the bosom of the deep after humanity has finished its course and gone its way. I am the Voice of the Wind."

HISTORICAL PAGEANT TO BE STAGED BY TRI-TOWNS

Will Be Presented On Memorial Day With 175 Taking Part

A cast of 175 persons will take part in the historical pageant which will be presented at 2:30 o'clock Memorial day, Monday, May 30, on the Bruce High School grounds, Westernport.

The underlying motif which gives unity to the five episodes is the place highways—roads, river, railroad—played in the development of the pioneer community. The titles of the episodes are: The Nemacolin trail, the Braddock route, the Old State road, the Potomac river, and the coming of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad.

The characters to be portrayed include: Colonel Thomas Cresap, his wife, Hannah Cresap, and their son, Daniel Cresap; Colonel George Washington, General Braddock and his soldiers, James Morrison and Adam Sigler, first settlers in Westernport; Indian girls, road makers, river sprites, and other groups.

Miss Sara B. Huff, music director of the Allegheny Tableland, has given the project her hearty endorsement and has invited the promoters to present a part of it at Somerset, Pa., and another part at Mt. Lake Park later in the season.

The pageant was written and will be directed by Mrs. Catherine Herzel, wife of Rev. Frank Benton Herzel, pastor of the Lutheran church at Westernport.

FORMER WEST VIRGINIA GIRL IS STATE LEADER

(Morgantown Dominion-News)

Trails across the continent have led back to West Virginia again for Mrs. Polly Johnson Hanst, a former Braxton county 4-H club girl who took a degree in home economics at West Virginia University and then served for about two years as home demonstration agent in Ritchie county, following which she joined the staff of the Farmers' Wife, published at St. Paul, Minnesota, as junior editor in charge of its page for 4-H Club members and young people.

In this capacity her work took her to many parts of the United States and gave her an opportunity to learn about the activities of 4-H Club members as conducted in all parts of the country. Her articles in this magazine have been an inspiration for the young people throughout the nation and her achievements in this field have led to a call from her native state which she has accepted and returned as acting State leader of 4-H girls' work.

Mrs. Hanst still retains her connection with the Farmers' Wife, however, and will edit the page devoted to 4-H and young peoples' activities. She will be in charge of the girls state 4-H camp at Jackson's Mill, June 28 to July 8, and has already arranged for one of the most constructive and helpful programs yet held.

HARNED'S CONTRIBUTION TO BOTANY NOTABLE

"Wild Flowers of the Alleghanies" Called Classic by Critic

(Cumberland Evening Times)

An unusual book, product of Maryland genius, and work of art as to book-making, is "Wild Flowers of the Alleghanies," by Joseph E. Harned, of Oakland. Modest regarding his own accomplishments, Mr. Harned is proud of the book as a contribution to the book-maker's art. It was printed by the Sincell Printing Company, Oakland.

"Wild Flowers of the Alleghanies" is one of the most complete botanical works by an American author and leading botanists and educators are not slow in making this assertion. It covers nearly 700 pages and has eight colored plates besides 400 illustrations from line drawings. The work, while of general interest, placing its author's name among the greatest botanists, had decidedly a local appeal and will enlighten flower lovers about the wild flower species at their very doors.

In the introduction Mr. Harned pays "tribute to the memory of my departed friend, Professor George M. Perdew, of Cumberland, Md., with whose co-operation in his lifetime was planned the publication of a small volume on the wild flowers of Western Maryland. Companionship with him in the field of nature was a continuous source of encouragement and of pleasure. His genial disposition and great interest in plant life found full expression in his association with the youth who came under his influence and instruction."

The work is devoid of technicality and as such has a great appeal to the layman. It will be read with gripping interest by any flower lover. It has many unusual features. The New York Times gives it high commendation in a review.

New Telephone Directories Are Now Being Delivered.

Delivery of the new Oakland telephone directory has just started. This latest "book of numbers" makes its appearance in a new green cover on which is a map showing important cities in the various areas which may be reached by Oakland telephone users at specified rates.

This issue of the directory serves telephone users in Cumberland, Frostburg, Lonaconing, and Mt. Savage, Md., and Ridgley, W. Va.

In making the delivery G. A. Hinds, manager of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone company of Baltimore City, urges that all previous directories be turned in or destroyed, so that there will be no confusion caused by calling wrong numbers.

Telephone directories, Mr. Hinds states, contain a great amount of useful information on how to get the best service from one's telephone, how to make out-of-town calls, what to do in reporting trouble, how to call information, and many other phases of telephone service. Then, there is an interesting feature of the directory which people find most useful—that is the page for telephone numbers called frequently. This page is ruled off in tabulated form, giving a space for names, exchanges and telephone numbers for both local and out-of-town points. Many people avail themselves of this facility which expediates the placing of calls made frequently, according to Mr. Hinds.

Undoubtedly telephone directories are referred to more often daily than any other book. People of every walk of life use the telephone book many times each day in carrying on their business and social affairs. For many years the telephone directory has been recognized as a valuable source of information on the proper spelling of peoples' names, and as well furnishing their street addresses.

COUNTY AGENT'S COLUMN

J. H. CARTER,
Resident County Agent,

An unusually large amount of damage to gardens and crops of the State by cut worms is reported by Dr. E. N. Cory, specialist in entomology for the Extension Service. These worms, which are particularly destructive to vegetable and flower gardens, also cause considerable injury to tobacco, pepper and tomato plants. Weedy fields are especially liable to harbor cut worms which have lived there over the winter and anyone who has set plants in a field where a heavy growth of weeds has been plowed down are warned to keep on the lookout for the worms.

In regard to control measures, Dr. Cory says: "Poison bran mash, if placed around the plants just about sunset will attract and kill the worms that feed upon it. Poison bran mash is made by mixing two pounds of Paris green with fifty pounds of bran. After this is mixed thoroughly, it should be wet with one gallon of molasses added to six gallons of water. This should be worked into the bran thoroughly and, when completed, it should be crumbly, but not sloppy. For small amounts, use six pounds of bran, one-puarter pound of Paris green, one pint of molasses and three quarts of water.

Care should be exercised in mixing, storing and using the material as it is poisonous to all animals and man. It should not be used in fields where chickens or other poultry are allowed to roam."

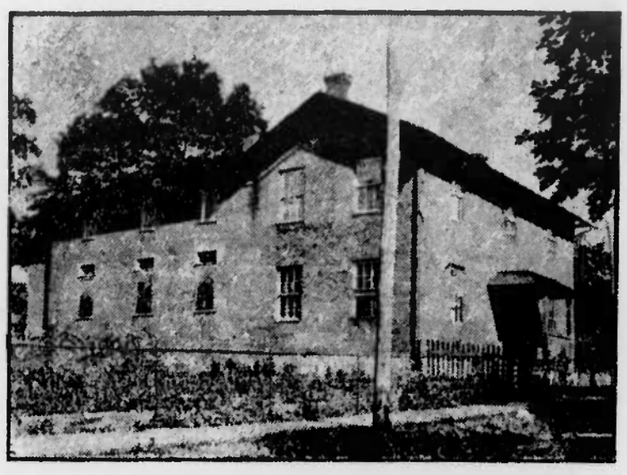
DO YOU REMEMBER?



Not many people living today will remember when they were roomers in this house at the expense of the State, but they should remember about when this picture was taken.

It is a picture of what was known until recently as the Maffett property, and was originally used as the Garrett County Jail. It is situated on the corner of Fifth and Green streets, and is now the vocational building of Oakland High school, being connected to the high school by a runway.

It was in this building that John Smith, negro, waited for the appointed time when he would walk out on the scaffold and receive the doubtful distintion of being the only man hanged in Garrett county.

The building was used as a jail until the erection of the present one, corner of Fourth and Alder streets, more than twenty-five years ago. It became a residence from that time until it was purchased by the Board of Education a few years ago. With the exception of the addition of a front porch, its outward appearance is but little changed.

THE MARYLAND BIBLE SOCIETY'S CORNER

"The Word of Our God Shall Stand Forever"

Saint Matthew's Gospel closes with the great Christian Commission: "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and the Son, and the Holy Ghost: teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world." The Master had taught His disciples that the Word is the seed of the Kingdom and that as they spread it they are sowers of the good seed.

The Maryland Bible Society, with its auxiliaries, has always felt the urge of this great commission, and has sought to carry on its sowing of the seed in ever widening fields, until the knowledge of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea, is realized.

To supply the world was only to do, on a larger scale, what had been done in the United States, so that there was nothing against the practicability of extending this program to the ends of the earth. Translations were being made in different languages and then were being printed. The theory of Christian Stewardship was held by these pioneers. Said they, "Money to pay for this work exists, and it is—all of it—the Lord's, whose Bible is, and the hearts of those who have it in trust are in His hand.

The work of translation costs, over a long period, millions of dollars; but such costs are disregarded by big business. Wars cost in treasure many times more, to say nothing of the suffering and death they bring in their train. Over 100 years ago these faithful men declared, "If any tribe of men cannot be reached, they are not in the accessible world, but God is opening the world to His word. Enough is accessible to begin with, and who can doubt that, as we go on, the openings will be multiplied. Why delay the work?" they cried. "Twenty years may pass away, aye forty, sixty, and the work not be done, and the Church may have to look back with blushes and tears to hear her neglected, broken resolution. We have prayed for the world, without acting for the world long enough. Now let us pray and act."

Dr. Nevins, the devoted young pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, gave voice to the missionary appeal of the Maryland Bible Society. From him and others like him flowed those electric currents of spiritual power which gave to the churches of that day the dynamic resulting in a succession of vernacular translations, until now every day is Pentecost, every man hearing in his own tongue. There are in print Bibles and portions in not far from 1,000 languages and dialects, ranging from the tongues of the Arctic circle to those barbarous jargons spoken along the Equator in darkest Africa. The work of translation has been fostered and carried on by two great parent bodies, the British and Foreign and the American Bible Societies. Well may we exclaim in the language of Balaam as he looked down upon the white tents of Israel, "What hath God wrought?"

Spending to Save Through ADVERTISING

Not many of us these days are troubled with so much money that we cannot spend it. But we ARE interested in spending the money we have, to get the most out of it.

People, in these times, usually keep a budget, putting down so much for food, so much for clothing, so much for rent, etc. They get a lot of their figures from advertising in newspapers and magazines.

Advertising helps. Advertisements in The Republican will tell the housewife how much butter, foods, meats, and clothing will cost BEFORE she goes shopping, and better still, will inform her where the best can be bought for the least money.

Advertising costs so little when compared with the returns it brings in increased business.

MT. LAKE PARK

With Saunders, the regular county tractor operator and Nelse Miller manning the scraper and ditcher, the roads have been shaped up for the summer. Roads that have not been scraped and ditched for several years have been touched up, and after we have a good rain to settle the dust, they will be in fine shape.

We believe the Council is doing its best with the funds available. None of them draws a salary. Neither does the Mayor. And yet never a day passes but that the Mayor, Jim Elliott and Tom Schooley, who are the road committee, can be seen on the job looking after the interests of the town. And the other members seem to be just as busy. Even Darwin Martin, the town clerk, works without a salary, his only compensation being a small commission on the tax collections, and what with the recording of minutes and the posting and recording the new ordinances, he is a busy boy. Of course, they can't please all of us all the time, but they are an economical bunch and make every penny count, and that's something in these times.

Tiling and material for the new culverts are on the ground and will soon be in place.

At the last meeting of the Council Silas O. Wiley was appointed as town bailiff. Mr. Wiley commands the respect of the boys as well as the older citizens, and we predict will make a good officer. This is the third time Mr. Wiley has acted in such capacity, he having been Park policeman thirty-two years ago, and again about two years ago.

Personal Items

Mr. E. G. Kimmell, of Keyser, was in the Park for a day or two getting his property in shape for the summer.

Miss Virginia Marshall, of Uniontown, Pa., was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Murphy over the week-end.

Mrs. Daisy B. Hicks and son, Robert, of Moundsville, West Va., arrived here Saturday for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. John Deveny and Mrs. A. T. Watson, Jr., of Fairmont, were guests at the Park on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Smouse, of Fairmont, were guests of the latter's sisters, the Misses Hamill.

Dr. and Mrs. Logan Carr motored here from Baltimore Friday. They are now visiting friends in Fairmont, West Va. They expect to return here about the middle of June for the summer.

Miss Helen Grimes, of Pittsburgh, Pa., is a guest at the Mt. Lake Park Hotel.

Mr. Jordon D. Hill arrived at the Park on Tuesday, and will spend some time with his mother, Mrs. Isobel Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cale, Terra Alta, stopped at the Park Monday and spent the day with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Comerford. They were en route to their home from Washington, where they spent several weeks.

Miss Beatrice Clary has accepted a position in Hagerstown.

Miss Mary Deveny, Fairmont, is the guest of Mrs. Frank M. Murphy.

The post office building is receiving a fresh coat of paint.

Major and Mrs. DeVore are the guests of Mrs. E. L. Winchell.

Mrs. William T. Burch arrived today from Washington where she had been for the past ten days.

We wonder if there is a new drink, having a very potent effect, being distributed to a favored few in the Park, of which we know nothing. In any event, when a bright light appeared in the western heavens, some of our best minds insisted that it was a balloon anchored miles above the earth either at Akron or Cincinnati, Ohio. Their imagination even discovered that there were red, white and blue, the colors of the flag to be seen. And late in the evening, when the transcontinental airplanes had passed over the cities mentioned, the light was drawn down and tucked in his hangar. We hate to spoil a good romantic imagination, or even hint that the drink was not what it was recommended to be, but a search through the books reveals that on last Sunday night Venus was the most brilliant of the planets, and one who was favored by a sight of this flaming star in the west, is to be excused for believing it to be any thing but a star.

Word has just been received by Director Middaugh that approximately sixty of the leading business men, representing the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, will make a tour of the Allegheny Tableland section on June 16 and 17. They will arrive in Oakland for the evening meal on the 16th. Later in the evening, a reception is being planned to the visitors in the Amphitheatre at Mountain Lake, at which addresses will be delivered. It is also proposed to have a display on the platform, consisting of wild flowers and various products of the section. The party will stay at the Mountain Lake Hotel that night, and early the morning of the 17th leave for Somerset, Pa., where another stop will be made.

The entire plans for the reception of the distinguished company of men have not, of course, been completed. It goes without saying that every loyal citizen of the Park should cooperate in every possible way with Mr. Middaugh in extending a hearty welcome to these men, who will represent all walks of Pittsburgh's business activities.

THE REPUBLICAN

VOLUME 55. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND, JUNE 2, 1932. NUMBER 16.

WET PROPOSAL IS VOTED DOWN AT G. O. P. MEETING

Maryland's 19 Votes Formally Given to President Hoover at Convention Last Thursday

SESSION WAS VERY STORMY

The Republican State convention, in session in Baltimore last Thursday, formally gave Maryland's 19 votes in the National convention to President Herbert Hoover and refused to go on record as favoring a national referendum on the prohibition question.

In a stormy session, marked by acrimonious debate and vicious personal thrusts, the convention voted down the referendum proposal 105 to 41. The fight for the adoption of the referendum resolution was led by former Senator Joseph Irwin France, who was beaten in the May 2 primaries by President Hoover.

Wallace Williams was nominated as the senatorial candidate, having carried enough of the counties to give him the majority of convention votes, 88 to 60, although he was beaten in the popular vote of the primary by Linwood L. Clark. Williams, in his speech of acceptance, called for immediate balancing of the budget, advocating the sales tax as one of the greatest means of accomplishing it, said the prohibition question should be submitted to referendum without any other issue, praised President Hoover and his administration and called for an extension of the moratorium on the war debts owed the United States.

Senator Phillips Lee Goldsborough was elected to the National committee to replace William P. Jackson, who was not a candidate for re-election. Mrs. Jane Gabriel was elected National committeewoman.

District delegates to the National convention in Chicago included Chas. N. McIntire, of Oakland.

Garrett county representatives in the State convention were Mr. McIntire, Lawrence M. Fraley, Jesse J. Ashby, Jr., and Benj. H. Sincell, with Neil C. Fraley and F. R. Utterback as spectators.

Keyser Eliminated as Terminal For B. & O. R. R. Trains

Keyser, West Virginia, was eliminated as a terminal by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company as a part of their plan to curtail expenses of this division on an order recently issued from the general offices in Baltimore.

All freight trains are now routed into and out of Cumberland and train crews will be changed at that place. A few engines are being retained at Keyser to help trains over the mountain grade and other engines have been taken to Cumberland.

The number of workmen employed at Keyser has been greatly reduced by this change and it is expected that even more reductions in the working force will be made. Indications are that the Keyser shops will be virtually abandoned and only sufficient men will be retained to service the helper engines at that point.

May Plant Garden for Use of Unemployed and Needy

Plans are being discussed by members of the Board of County Commissioners, the Health Department, and others who were connected with the county relief work last winter, concerning the planting of a number of vegetables, the products to be used next winter for the relief of the needy.

A plot of ground may be secured near Loch Lynn, and potatoes, beans and other staple vegetables planted, the work being done by the unemployed. No definite decision has been reached as yet.

Deer Park Golf Course To Be Available This Summer

That the Deer Park golf course would be available for use this summer was announced this morning by D. Edward Offutt, a member of the Deer Park Golf Club.

The grounds are being made ready and will be complete within a week or two, Mr. Offutt stated. The charges for use of the course will be the same as last year, $10 for membership into the club, which gives free use of the course to an entire family; or if not a member of the club, $1 per day for green fees. Membership cards can be obtained at either Gonder's or Sturgiss' pharmacy.

Oakland Department Responds to Three Alarms During Week

The Oakland Volunteer Fire Department answered three fire alarms during the past week, two at Deer Park, and one at Mt. Lake Park.

The home of Van Browning, Deer Park, was completely destroyed by fire early Friday morning before the Fire department had arrived. The call came at 2:45 o'clock.

A flue fire at the home of J. R. Runyan, Mt. Lake Park, caused the second alarm at about 9:30 Friday morning, which was extinguished without any damage.

A third call came about noon Saturday, when it was feared that a forest fire would destroy several farm houses along the road from Mt. Lake Park to Deer Park.

NEW PROJECT IN GROWING PEAS STARTED IN COUNTY

Forty-Six Varieties and Ninety-two Numbered Strains Have Been Planted on Farm Here

WILL DEVELOP INDUSTRY

A new project on peas has been started by John H. Carter, county agent, in cooperation with C. E. Temple, University of Maryland Extension service and Experiment station.

The purpose is to demonstrate the value of peas as a market garden crop in this county; to test a large number of varieties of peas in order to find out which are best suited to local conditions; and to multiply the seed of certain new canning varieties originated at the Maryland experiment station and elsewhere.

Forty-six varieties and ninety-two numbered strains and selections have been planted on the farm of Roy C. Winters, east of town.

The seed of these varieties will be produced in abundance so that they can be used next year by the farmers if any of them proves to be valuable under local conditions. The cool climate here makes it possible to grow peas during the summer when states east and south are unable to grow them, Mr. Carter stated. This means that the market garden peas of Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and other cities must be produced either in the mountains or in the north. "There is no reason why Garrett county should not develop a new industry in the growing of green peas to market in the large eastern cities during August and September," Mr. Carter continued.

"The conditions for such an industry are favorable, but the growth of it will depend on the farmers. It is planned to supervise the growing of larger plots by farmers and club boys next year."

This project is expected to create labor for many people now unemployed, and bring into the county extra money that would not be received otherwise. The pea crop is a short-time crop, being marketed within three months from the time the seed is planted.

The numbered varieties now planted have been multiplied twice in the greenhouse since last summer. Instead of shipping this seed to the Pacific Northwest to grow it in mid-season, it was found that conditions in Maryland were favorable to multiplication during summer.

These varieties have been selected for resistance to the wilt disease, being almost 100 perent resistant. Garrett county, therefore, is going to be able to help the farmers of other states as well as those of Maryland by increasing the amount of seed of the wilt resistant varieties.

Takes Appeal On Verdict

Alva R. Martin, Oakland, has taken an appeal on two alleged automobile law violations, having no registration card in his possession, and displaying tags belonging to another car. He was fined $10 and costs in the first case and $25 and costs in the second case, before Justice Gonder last Friday. Corporal Currie preferred the charges.

EXAMINATION OF SCHOOL CHILDREN IS COMPLETED

Over 20 Percent Have No Defects—Only Few Underweight

The first extensive examination of all children of the elementary schools of the county has been practically completed by Dr. George E. Clarke, county health officer, only one school remaining to be visited.

During the period of this examination, with the assistance of the health nurses, Dr. Clarke has examined 3,642 pupils. No defects were found in 741, or 20.3 percent; only .49 of a percent were under weight; 846, or 23.2 percent had defects needing to be corrected: and the remaining number had only slight defects.

Dr. Clarke pointed out that children in town schools were in worse condition than ones in the rural schools. Only pupils in elementary schools were examined.

The healthiest condition was found at the Yoder school, where out of 40 pupils examined, 18 had no defects, none was underweight, and only 7 had defects needing correction.

HARDESTY GETS TERM AT ATLANTA FOR CAR THEFT

Deer Park Man Arrested at Morgantown, Sentenced to 3 Years

Pleading guilty in the United States District Court at Baltimore before Federal Judge W. Calvin Chestnut to a charge of transporting a stolen automobile interstate, William N. Hardesty, about 30, man of many addresses, including Deer Park, but arrested in Morgantown several months ago, was sentenced last Friday to three years in Atlanta Penitentiary.

Hardsty held up Edward Beam on October 24, 1931, in Pennsylvania, the court was told. After forcing Beam and his companion at the point of a pistol to alight from the car, Hardesty was alleged to have driven into West Virginia and Maryland with the stolen machine.

He was arrested in Morgantown by Patrolman William Dougherty after a newspaperman had seen Hardesty try to enter a parked automobile near the court house and suspected the man of attempting theft of the car.

Hardesty was carrying a revolver, believed to be the same one that he used in the Pennsylvania crime, and served a term in the county jail at Morgantown for pistol toting, being released several weeks ago on a Federal writ and taken into custody again by officers of the Government.

Officers at Morgantown obtained finger prints and a complete record of the man from the bureau of criminal identification in Washington and from it gained information which led to his sentencing last Friday.

Former Senator A. D. Naylor of Oakland and a number of others of the Deer Park section of the county were summoned to appear in Baltimore as witnesses in connection with the theft of the automobile of Paul B. Naylor from in front of St. Paul's M. E. church in Oakland last October. Hardesty was found not guilty in connection with this offense as it was impossible to prove that he was the man who drove the machine away, which was later found parked along a street in Uniontown, Pa.

Hardesty was known in several other Pennsylvania, Maryland and West Virginia towns.

Traffic Light Being Erected

The Mayor and Town Council of Oakland are having erected a traffic light at the corner of Second and Oak streets, the intersection of the highway from the west to Route 37.

This will make the fourth light for Oakland, others having been placed at the corners of Second and Green; Third and Alder, and Third and Oak. The Second and Oak street corner is considered a dangerous one and numerous wrecks have occurred at that point in recent months.

MEMORIAL DAY OBSERVED BY LOCAL ORGANIZATIONS

George Henderson, Cumberland Mayor, Delivers Address Before Unknown Soldier's Tomb

GRAVES ARE DECORATED

Another Memorial Day was appropriately observed in Oakland on Sunday, May 29, with a parade of local organizations, an address at the cemetery by George Henderson, Mayor of Cumberland, and the decoration of the graves of the departed veterans of various wars at home and in foreign countries.

The parade started promptly at 2:30 and composed of the Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band of Oakland, the Knights of Pythias organization, the Junior Drum and Bugle corps of Oakland, Proctor Kildow Post, No. 71, American Legion, three of the ten survivors of the county who took part as Federal soldiers in the Civil War and two Spanish-American war veterans, who were transported in an automobile over the parde route to the cemetery. The marshals of the parade were W. H. Hinebaugh and Alva R. Martin.

After traversing the main streets of Oakland the parade ended at the tomb of the unknown soldier where the ritualistic services were conducted by Alex. G. Hesen, post commander of the Legion, and Rev. Fr. William J. McVeigh, its chaplain.

George Henderson, Mayor of Cumberland, and past department commander of Maryland, American Legion, made the address of the afternoon, after which the graves of departed veterans were decorated in the usual manner. The graves of the deceased members of the local lodge, Knights of Pythias, were also decorated by the surviving members of that organization.

The three veterans of the Civil War and two veterans of the Spaish-American War, who were escorted to the cemetery were George Marley, aged 96, of Deer Park; Thomas Nethkin,

Oswell Damage Suit Settled Out of Court

The damage suit brought against the Keely Construction Company of Clarksburg, W. Va., by Arthur H. Oswell, of Mountain Lake Park, as the result of an automobile accident at a point on the Deer Park-Kitzmiller road then under construction, in which his son Archibald Oswell was killed, was settled out of court on Monday. It is understood that the consideration was in the neighborhood of $15,000.

The appeal case in a similar suit brought by Mrs. Flota Bice Hartman against the same company, was withdrawn by the plaintiff's attorneys and the verdict of $7,000 for injuries received in the same accident, will stand. Jones and Dawson, of Oakland, and Capper and Legge, of Cumberland, were attorneys for the plaintiffs, while W. R. Offutt, Oakland, and Steptoe and Johnson, Clarksburg, West Va., appeared for the defendants in the action.

JOSEPH THE WORKER

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 41:46-57.
GOLDEN TEXT—Seest thou a man diligent in his business? he shall stand before kings; he shall not stand before mean men.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Making Dreams Come True.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Joseph the Worker.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Rewards of Faithfulness.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Religious Value of Work.

Joseph was not a self-made man, but a God-made man. His masters alwsys attributed the quality of his character and the success of his work to the fuet that the Lord was with him.

I. Joseph Serving Potiphar (39:1-20).

1. Sold to the Ishmaelites (37:28). Joseph was sent by his father to his brethren on an errand of mercy. At the sight of Joseph the murderous envy of his brethren was stirred up. They first proposed to kill him in order to prevent his dreams from coming true. Finally the prudent suggestion of Judah to sell him prevailed, and he was carried to Egypt and sold as a slave to Potiphar.

2. His prosperity while a slave in Potiphar's house (39:2-6). This prosperity consisted of:

a. Being accorded the privilege of Potiphar's house. By "house" is meant his private residenee instead of fields or public buildings.

b. He became Potiphar's personal attendant (v. 4).

c. He was made overseer of Potiphar's house (v. 4).

d. He brought prosperity to Potiphar (v. 5). The Lord blassed Potiphar for Joseph's sake.

e. He possessed an attractive personality (v. 6.) His fine physique and eommanding personality were gifts from God.

3. His temptation (vv. 7-20). Potiphar's wife became infatuated with this handsome slave. He resisted her, unwilling to sin against his master and his God.

II. Joseph Serving in Prison (39:21-40:23).

1. Overseeing the prisoners (39:21-40:4). Being defeated in her wicked purpose, Potiphar's wife aceused Joseph falsely. Potiphar must not have really believed his wife's story, or he would have put Joseph to death. He imprisoned him, the least that was possible under the circumstances.

a. The Lord gave him favor in the sight of the keeper of the prison (v. 21). This keeper was none other than Potiphar himself (40:3, cf. 39:1).

b. He was given eharge of the prisoners (v. 22). Potiphar knew Joseph's ability and faithfulness, therefore gave him employment of the most important kind.

c. The Lord made him to be prosperous (v. 23). Joseph's success was due to the hand of God upon him.

2. Interpreting the dreams of the butler and the baker (40:5-23). These were two very important officers in Pharaoh's eourt, their business being to provide the drink and food of the ruler and his household. These officers had disturbing dreams. He interpreted their dreams. His interpretstion was favorable to the butler, who gave his pledge to Joseph that he would intereede with Pharaoh for him when he was set free.

III. Joseph Serving Pharaoh (41:1-57).

1. Interpreting his dream (vv. 1-32). For two full years Joseph remained in prison, forgotten by the butler. Pharaoh's dream brought to Joseph a great opportunity. The failure of the wise men of Egypt to interpret the dream caused the chief butler to remember what Joseph hsd done for him. Joseph was brought out of prison and made known to Phsraoh that it meant seven years of plenty followed by seven years of famine.

2. Advising Pharaoh (vv. 33-36). He suggested to him that psrt of the produce be stored during the years of plenty. The plan appealed to Pharaoh, and he invested Joseph with authority to execute it.

3. Preparing for famine (vv. 37-52). During the seven years the earth brought forth plentifully. Clothed with royal authority, Joseph went over all the country and gathered and stored the food in all the cities.

4. Selling food to the needy (vv. 53-57).

a. At last the years of fruitfulness ended and then began famine in all the lands (v. 53).

b. Bread was to be found in Egypt only (v. 54). This wss the result of Joseph's foresight and preparation.

c. Distribution in the hands of Joseph (vv. 55-57). He opened the storehouses and sold food unto the Egyptians and foreigners.

Sure Remedy

There is no surer remedy for desponding weakness than, when we have done our own parts, to commit all cheerfully, for the rest, to the good pleasure of heaven. — Sir Roger L'Estrange.

God's Demands

God demands of us that though we lose health and wealth we do not lose faith in him, and though we have abundantly of both that we do not lose sight of him.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By Scoop Himself

Ye Olde Swimmin' Hole

I'm off for a swim in the lake. I can't stand to see the sun beat down any longer. It's hot as blazes and the water ought to be warm, even if it was below freezing this morning.

I'll show up these young bucks who think they can get in the water faster than I. I'm only 27 and my blood still moves pretty fast through my veins.

Boy, the water could feel warmer on the finger tips, but I mustn't say a word to the others or they'd know what a washout I am as a bullfrog.

What a chill that sent up my spine and I only stuck in one big toe. So far it hasn't done me any good to be the first undressed. Maybe if I just make a run for it it'll be over without knowing it. But I must get used to it. It doesn't feel any warmer on my knees, in fact my calves are getting blue, and if there's anything I hate about myself it is blue calves.

Rubbing the arms and shoulders with water often helps, but my nerve has failed me. If I could only just fall down!

Too late; here comes the others running like mad! They couldn't stop short of the middle of the lake and a complete ducking now, if they wanted to. And what a ducking I'm going to get if I stay in the way. Well, here goes. If I don't come up, send me roses. Brrr—the water is g-r-e-A-T! Sez me, only I don't mean it.

Let me get next to the fire. If I must have goose pimples, I want hot ones.

Texan Likes the Depression
By Henry Ansley

(Passed over to me by S. H. Jackson)

I like the depression.

No more prosperity for me.

I have had more fun since the depression started than I ever had in my life. I had forgotten how to live, what it meant to have real friends, what it was like to eat common everyday food. Fact is, I was getting a little high hat.

Then and Now

Three years ago, only one man of the News-Globe organization could be out of town at a time and he had to leave at the last minute and get back as soon as possible. Many times I have driven 100 miles to a banquet, sat through three hours of bunk in order to make a 5-minute speech, then drive the 100 miles back so as to be ready for work the next morning.

Nowadays, as many News-Globe employes as are invited make those trips and we stay as long as we want to. The whole outfit could leave the office now and it wouldn't make any differenee.

I like the depression. I have time to visit my friends, to make new ones. Two years ago when I went to a neighboring town, I always stayed at a hotel. Now I go home with my friends, stay all night and enjoy homecooking; I have even spent the weekend with some of the boys who have been kind enough to invite me.

Time, Neighbors, Clothes

It's great to drop into a store and feel that you spend an hour or two or three or a half day just visiting and not feel that you are wasting valuable time. I like the depression.

I am getting acquainted with folks who have been living next door to me for three years. I am following a Biblical admonition, "Love your neighbors." One of my neighbors has the best looking wife I have ever seen. She is a dandy; I am getting acquainted with my neighbors and learning to love them.

Three years ago I ordered my clothes from a merchant tailor—two or three suits at a time. All my clothes were good ones. I was always dressed up. But now, I haven't bought a suit in two years. I am mighty proud of my Sunday-go-to-meeting clothes. When I dress up, I am dressed up and I don't mean maybe. I like the depression.

The Wife

Three years ago I was so busy and my wife was so busy that we didn't see much of each other, consequently we sort of lost interest in each other. I never went home to lunch. About twice a week I went home to dinner—at 6:30 o'clock. I never had time to go anywhere with her. If I did go to a party, I never could locate her, but since there was always a blonde or a red-head available I didn't worry much about it.

My wife belonged to all the clubs in town. She even joined the young mothers' club. We don't have any children, but she was studying—and between playing bridge and going to clubs, she was never at home.

We got stuck-up and hifalutin'. We even took down the old family bed and bought a set of twin beds—on the installment plan.

When I would come home at night, if my wife was at home, she would already be in her bed and I would crawl in mine. If I came in first, it was vice versa.

Beds and Clubs

We like the depression. We have come down off our pedestal and are really living at my house now. The twin beds are stored in the garage and the old family affair is being used. We are enjoying life. Instead of taking a hot water bottle to bed these cold nights, she sticks her heels in my back, just like she did before Hoover was elected.

I haven't been out on a party in eighteen months. I have lost my book of telephone numbers. My wife has dropped all the clubs. I believe we are falling in love all over again. I am pretty well satisfied with my wife. Think I will keep her, at least until she is forty and then if I feel like I do now, I may trade her for two twenties.

I am feeling better since the depression. I take more exercise. I walk to town and a lot of folk who used to drive Cadillacs are walking with me. I like the depression.

My digestion is better. I haven't been to see a doctor in a year. I can eat anything I want to.

Food and Food

I am getting real, honest-to-goodness food. Three years ago we had filet mignon once a week. Now we have round steak and flour gravy. Then, we had roast breast of guinea hen, now we are glad to get sowbosom with buttons on it.

I like the depression. My salary has been cut to where I can't afford to buy lettuce and spinach and parsley and we can't afford to have sandwiches and frozen desserts and all that damfoolishness which has killed more good men than the World War.

I like the depression. Three years ago I never had time to go to church. I played golf all day Sunday and besides I was so darned smart that there wasn't a preacher in West Texas who could tell me anything.

Now, I'm going to church regularly, never miss a Sunday.

And if this depression keeps up, I will be going to prayer-meeting before long. I like the depression.

COUNTY AGENT'S COLUMN

J. H. CARTER,
Resident County Agent,

Time Now To Clean Poultry Houses For Body Lice and Mites

In the spring, among other things, that a poultryman's fancy turns to, are thoughts of how to get rid of body liee and roost mites in the poultry house. Aecording to the poultry ealendar prepared by the University of Maryland Extension Serviee, nicotine sulphate has been found most effective in dealing with body liee and a solution of erank ease oil and crude carbolic acid or cresol disinfectant will eradicate mites.

In dealing with body lice, if the roosts are dirty, they should be carefully cleaned with a scraper or stiff brush and wiped free of dust. The upper surfaces of the perches and supports should then be smeared with the nicotine sulphate, full strength, which may be poured on in a thin stream and spread with a paint brush or rag.

Nicotine sulphate (Black Leaf Forty) may be obtained from most dealers carrying a complete line of spray supplies or from druggists and one good treatment at this time and another in August should keep the birds comparatively free of lice. One ounce will treat from twelve to fifteen linear feet of roosts or for a house 20 by 20 feet, holding from 100 to 125 birds, five ounces will be required.

Crank ease oil, to which has been added about one-fourth part of erude carbolic acid or cresol disinfectant, will serve very well in the eradication of roost mites, according to the calendar. As with body lice, the roost poles should be cleaned thoroughly and then they and all cracks and crevices should be painted with the mixture. Where the mites are particularly bad, the mixture should be flooded on freely. In eovering, include parts of the walls adjacent to roosts and dropping boards. Another treatment should follow in August.

Ants May Be Controlled With Several Effective Poisons

In spite of respect for the diligence and industry of the ant, there are few persons who are not anxlous to get rid of them, especially when these little insects select the front lawn for their activities. When such an invasion of the lawn takes place, or for that matter any other part of the home, suitable measures of control are in order and one of the best of these for Maryland ls a poison bait made with sugar, water and arsenate of soda.

This poison bait is both easy and lnexpensive to prepare, it ls stated by Dr. E. N. Corey, State Entomologist for Maryland. One pound of sugar and 125 grains of arsenate of soda are boiled ln a quart of water until the arsenate of soda is thoroughly dissolved. A tablespoon of honey added to the mixture will attract the ants more readily.

One of the best ways to distribute the poison is in shallow eontainers, such as pill boxes which have been treated perviously with paraffin to make them water proof. The poison should puposely be made weak so that worker ants will carry it back to the nest and feed the queen and young ants.

Often the little red ants will not take the above poison, in which case the following mixture will prove effective: One pound of sugar, three ounees of honey and 27 grains of thallium sulphate brought to a boil in one pint of water, while stirring vigorously.

If the large black ants, which are found so often in the house, do not seem to relish the poison bait mixed with honey, then it should be spread on the inside of a piece of ham rind as they are very fond of fatty substsnees. Dusting around the entranee places, base boards and creviees with sodium fluorid is also effective and if the nesting place outside ean be found which is usually a hollow tree, it may be fumigated with carbon bisulphide.

Dr. Cory warns that since all the above mixtures are poisonous to man they should be handled carefully and the exact amount of poison weighed out by a druggist.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

Every once in a while we see statements in the newspapers written by prominent leaders, urging the members of Congress, on account of the seriousness of the national economie situation to forget politics, settle down, pass a tax bill, balanee the budget and go home, to give business a chanee to start on a much needed recovery. Then we see in reply, indignant statements from members of Congress to the effeet that Congress is not playing polities and that there is really a bi-partisan effort to put through adequate financial measures.

This square disagreement would seem to indicate that somebody is mistaken, but it is possible that the leaders inside Congress and out, are not so far apart in their statements as would seem likely at first thought. There may be politics in both branches of Congress and without doubt there is, but it is not partisan politics, but selfish personal politics. The politics that is being played is not being furthered by the leaders of the two great political parties, who have positions of authority going along with their leadership. Most of these leaders are really anxious that Congress complete its program and go home. They well realize that the best thing for the future success of the party to which they happen to belong, is to have that party's representatives in Congress help devise a real constructive program and hasten through with it to completion.

Then why isn't something of that kind done? The reason is not too mueh partisan politics, but too mueh personal polities. There is not too much party diseipline in Congress. In fact, there is not enough of it, either in the Republican or the Demoeratie organization. The proof of this is to be found in the pitiable plight in the House at the time a majority rejected the manufacturers sales tax and then went haywire, with each individual or little bloe promoting a poliey of its own. The partisan leaders in Congress were not responsible for this plight of Congress. In fact they would have prevented it if they could from both patriotic and partisan motives. The politics which have mussed things up in Congress is not partisan polities, but selfish, individual polities. Too many legislators have been trying to legislate from the local rather than the national viewpoint. They have not asked of themselves the question, "What is the best thing for Unele Sam?" but "What will get the most votes ln my district or my State next fall?" This has not been the case with all of our legislators or even with the majority of them, but it has been the case with enough of them to seriously upset the regular party programs. These statesmen with the localized viewpoint have not stopped to think that if Unele Sam goes down their districts and their states will go down along with him.

So what we have had in Congress has been too much non-partisan, personal polities and not enough party diseipline. With two smoothly working old-time political organizations in the House and Senate, we would have had a balanced budget long before this. Each week that Congress fails in its accepted task of balancing the budget the more serious the national situation becomes. Business men in America are afraid to start any sort of constructive program until they know what sort of legislation is coming out of Congress and Europeans have become so suspicious of our Congress that for several weeks they have been withdrawing their gold from the United States as rapidly as possible. Isn't it about time we begin to consider the United States first rather than Podunk County? For if Uncle Sam does not get back to normalcy it is a sure thing that Podunk County won't either.

Oakland, and John Sines, Sines, of the Federal Army, and George Brown, Loch Lynn Heights, and Simon Myers, Oakland, Spanish-American soldiers. At the cemetery the five were joined by William C. Buncutter, a Confederate veteran.

There are ten veterans of the Union Army of the Civil War known to be living in Garrett county, and they include Joseph Frantz and George Marley, of Deer Park; Reuben Tasker, of Vindex; John Bowman, Accident; Scott Friend, Selbysport; George Frantz, Friendsville; Josiah Wolfe, Cranesville; John Sines, Sines; Henry Sines, Oakland, and Thomas Nethkin, Oakland.

William C. Buncutter, of near Oakland, is said to be the only Confederate veteran still living in the county.

Mayor Henderson's address follows:

Memorial Day

Once again Spring has returned bringing with it Memorial Day, with its sacred duty of remembrance. And at the very outset it might be well to recall the establishing of this National Holiday of ours, associated as it ever will be with those brave defenders of the Union—only ten of whom are alive today in Garrett county, and only three of whom are able to be present at these ceremonies in their special honor.

Its nationwide recognition was begun by the order to the Grand Army of the Republic issued in 1868 by its then Commander-in-Chief, Gen. John Logan. And yet we can trace its history farther back than that. It leads back to the year after the war when a little group of Confederate women, laying flowers on the graves of Confederate dead, also decorated the nearby graves of Federal soldiers, an act which was reported in the North and helped to dispell some of the bitterness engendered by that mighty conflict. We can trace it on back to the Civil War itself; back to the first shot fired on Fort Sumter which began the war; to John Brown's raid; or even to the coming to America of the first slave trader, bringing to our shores that first cargo of human freight, and setting in motion the chain of events that caused tens of thousands of our citizens to die on the field of battle.

Few survive in the ranks of those mighty armies that once followed Grant and Lee. And to us of the Legion the G. A. R. is saying:

"To you from falling hands we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high."

It shall be our sacred duty to carry on the observance of Memorial Day in the same spirit in which the duty has been performed by the G. A. R. And in so doing we honor not only those of our county's defenders who have answered the last Roll Call. Because behind them stands our Country, whose principles they supported, and for whose sake they offered their lives. And in honoring its soldiers we honor our Country today.

In 1918 at this time of the year the First Division was holding Cantigny against repeated German counter-attacks—our first attack. This success proved to the anxious allies that the United States could fight. In another part of the line the 2nd Division was moving to the front to fill the gaps in the line, and to make the name of Belleau Woods famous in American history.

In 1898 at this time American Troops were assembling for the invasion of Cuba that was to be concluded by the attack at San Juan, by the sinking of the Spanish fleet blockaded there for so long a time, and by the capture of Santiago.

In May of 1861 in both the North and in the South there were being formed the forces that were later to engage in that terrible four year struggle.

Prevention of War

On such a day when the price of war in human lives is self-evident to everyone would it not be well to study briefly the causes of war, in order to prevent war, or at least to lessen the probability of it?

And in so doing it is necessary to distinguish between the proximate and the more remote causes of war. You all know how a fire smoulders for a time with no sign of a flame, only to burst forth at a puff of air. So it is with war. Too often for many years there is trouble brewing between two nations; it goes on almost un-noticed, only to burst into war at the drop of a hat or some other incident seemingly inconsequential.

Little things often sway the destiny of empires, and trifles change the history of mankind. There was an old saying:

"For want of a nail the shoe was lost;
For want of a shoe the horse and rider were lost;
For want of the message the battle was lost;
Because of the battle a kingdom was lost."

And on such a day as this I will re-tell to you how it came about that Antictam—the fiercest battle fought on Maryland soil—was fought where and when is was.

Lee had won at Second Bull Run and crossed into Maryland on his first invasion of the North. At Frederick he turned westward, leaving behind him a cavalry screen that McClellan's scouts were unable to penetrate. Moving westward from Washington McClellan paused at Frederick, hesitating to follow Lee westward toward Hagerstown, lest the Confederates slip around his flank and seize Washington. In the midst of his indecision a scrap of paper was handed to him, which had been picked up by a Union soldier wrapped around some cigars. It was Lee's field order sending Jackson with part of the army to capture Harper's Ferry, while the remainder of the army of Northern Virginia marched on Hagerstown. It gave McClellan the opportunity of striking Lee while Jackson was absent; and so he pushed his columns west over the National Road with a vigor which surprised Lee. At South Mountain Lee's rear-guard tried to check the advance (one can read the story on those tablets on South Mountain today) but the Federal forces were too strong. Lee had to fall back toward the Potomac from Hagerstown, ordering Jackson to meet him at Sharpsburg, lest McClellan strike with overwhelming numbers first one part and then the rest of his divided army. And along the Antietam around the little town of Sharpsburg was fought one of the most fiercly contested battles of the war, brought on because some Confederate General was careless in taking his cigars from his pocket.

Causes of War

After all wars spring from so many different reasons that it would be impossible to prevent wars by saying "danger lies in this." In our own history we see many different reasons:

The Spanish American War was fought to free a neighboring ill-treated subject nation.

The Civil War was caused by the question of slavery.

The War of 1812 was to secure the freedom of the seas, and to prevent imprisonment of our seamen.

The Revolution was brought on by the continual growing desire of the Colonies to govern themselves.

And when we examine the causes of other wars we find an equally great diversity of causes.

Trade rivalry brought on the French and Indian War, which had its inception when Washington and his little band of Virginians were captured at Fort Necessity, and which spread from America to Europe and finally to India—a war on three continents.

Religion brought on the Thirty Years' War in Germany, which drenched that land with blood, and left hundreds of ruins where once had stood happy little villages and towns.

Race hatred sent the Balkan states against the Turks, and disputes over the spoils of conquest sent the Balkan states against one another after Turkey had been conquered.

Love of conquest started Alexander on his career, and caused him to march his army eastward, conquering all the then known world. The same motive caused Napoleon—starting as a lieutenant of Artillery—to become Emperor of France, and as such to continue his struggle for power and to spread war's desolation far and wide over Europe.

The desire for more territory today is sending Japan into Manchuria, with the possibility of drawing into that arena Soviet Russia as well as China.

And along with other causes there is the undeniable fact that many men really love to fight. Particularly is this so with boys and men who have not seen the horrors of war, and whose imagination tinges with romantic colors the ideas of battle. You may recall Lee's remark to Jackson at Fredericksburg as they watched the Union waves beat in vain against the Confederate lines on Mary's Hill: "It is well that war is so horrible, else we would become too fond of it." We who have served can do much to help here. When war is in the offing, men who have stood up to a foreign foe (and who therefore cannot be accused of shirking a fight or of trying to avoid danger) can have a decided influence for peace by adopting a non-belligerent attitude and by counseling moderation and conciliation before armed conflict is resorted to.

League of Nations and World Court

Unfortunately (or so it seems to me) the question of the League of Nations was made a partizan issue in 1920. And so even today the question of our membership is argued from a politically partizan attitude rather than from an unprejudiced viewpoint. But as the old generation of irreconcilables in the Senate passes out, and as we see the United States of necessity taking part in deliberations of the League as an "unofficial observer," we begin to realize that sentiment is changing.

But the old prejudices die hard, and —strange as it may seem—we have not yet even entered the World Court. In private life we freely admit the necessity of having some impartial tribunal to whom our quarrels shall be admitted. We recognize the fact that we as individuals are all too apt to be partial when our own interests are at stake, and that Courts are the sensible way to adjust disputes and to decide cases. But we still—due, I think, to the persistence of the old political catchwords and ideas—refuse to admit that our National judgment is apt to be prejudiced, and that some impartial court may do much to adjust differences between nations which might otherwise result in wars.

We were told prior to 1914 that another great war would never happen because war had become too expensive and too horrible. And in the light of what we saw between 1914 and 1918, and what we still see as the result of the wastage of the World's treasure, we know that the prediction was at least partially correct. I dare not predict that there will be another Great War. But I do dare to believe that if it comes it will probably destroy Civilization. Is it not better that we take the risk of an occasional unfair decision from a World Court than that we risk another war?

It may be many years before the time comes—

"When the war drums throb no longer, and the battle flags are furled
In the Parliament of Man, the Federation of the World."

But surely we should do what we can to hasten that time.

A few years ago the United States seemed to have a "corner" on prosperity, and we flattered ourselves that we could make out all right tho' the rest of the world were turned upside down. Now we see that we share the common heritage of mankind.

The Relief

Many of you will recall those tense moments in France when one outfit was relieving another. Stumbling or slipping through the night would go up the relieving battalion, following the guides sent back by the front line troops. On up past the battalion headquarters then on up toward those little groups holding the front lines. Post after post would be reached, those going on duty would receive whispered instructions from those who were being relieved, and would be turned over trench stores such as cartridges, grenades and flares. And then those whose duty in the front was done for the time being at least would start on back, grumbling as all good soldiers do as they stumbled or slipped through the communication trenches. Gradually the group would become larger as other groups, similarly relieved, plodden wearily back.

And at last the entire new battalion has taken over the sector, and company after company has phoned or reported to the Battalion C. P. that it has "taken over". Finally the old Battalion commander is able to report back to higher headquarters "Sir, the new Battalion holds the line and the relief is complete."

All over our Country the G. A. R. is gradually passing on to the Legion the duty of holding the line.

And with the full consciousness that they have done their duty to the utmost the surviving Veterans can now report:

"The relief is complete.
The Legion holds the line.
All is quiet along the Potomac."

With the hope and trust that we may carry on in the future as well as they have done in the past, let us all join in saluting these venerable and honored defenders of our Country.

WILL WE EVER LEARN A LESSON?

It took the depression to make people understand that it is entirely possible for government expenses to become so high that taxing the people to meet them becomes an oppressive burden upon the entire public. So long as nearly everybody was making a good deal of money, public expenses were nobody's business. Of course the people took an academic interest in the subject and perhaps growled a bit every time they had to march up to the treasurer's office and give up a good deal of money, but, after all, they had money to give up and so they forgot the whole matter in a few days and failed to remember it until next tax-paying time. But when taxes became due and several million people did not know which way to turn to obtain the money to pay their share of government expenses, they began to wonder whether, after all, they had not been making a mistake all these years in permitting government costs to mount, year after year. But now that they have discovered that there is no doubt about their having been negligent, they do not know what to do about it except to demand lower taxes to meet expenses that for the most part are definitely fixed and cannot be lowered except by special legislation.

But this attitude is merely a reflection of the average man and his family's attitude toward their personal affairs during boom times. They did not reflect that the family income might be reduced. They always had been able to met their installments eventually, and so they proceeded to buy anything on the installment plan that happened to please their fancy. For transportation purposes a Figety Four might meet their needs quite well, but since the Jonses next door had an Opulent Eight they also bought an Opulent Eight. Good times were going to last forever and if anybody ventured even to pipe a squeak of doubt about it, he was promptly dubbed a killjoy, a knocker and a bum sport.

The lesson of this depression is that in times of prosperity we should prepare for times of adversity, but if you think anybody will learn that lesson you merely do not know what you are talking about. Almost nobody ever has learned it, although it has been taught many times, and probably nobody ever will.

Even though the weather man predicts rain, who carries an umbrella if the sun, at the moment, is shining brightly?

MT. LAKE PARK

With approximately a thousand people in attendance on the track meet held at the Park on Tuesday, the old question of providing athletic grounds again comes to the front. Just how that is to be accomplished we do not know. But certainly it is that the building of such would be about the best advertisement the Park could have. Many intercity events would undoubtedly be held here, and as the project developed and the grounds put in A-1 condition, more and larger events would be attracted by our natural beauty and environment.

This suggestion brings up another matter, namely, the holding of the Garrett County Fair at the Park. Why can not this be done? We understand the old Fair grounds at Oakland has been sold. If this is true, the Park can offer an ideal location(with plenty of space, abundance of shade and good water.

Whether the necessary acreage can be bought or otherwise secured, we do not know. But if either one or both of these projects can be successfully launched, the property owners, large and small, would benefit

Before Christ, 1451 years, when the old Hebrew lawgiver, Moses, formulated a code for the children of Israel, he enacted the following:

If a bird's nest chance to be before thee in the way in any tree or on the ground, whether they be young ones or eggs and the dam sitting upon the young, or upon the eggs, thou shalt not take the dam with the young; but thou shalt in anywise let the dam go, that it may be well with thee and that thou mayest prolong thy days.

WOOD TICKS HELP SPREAD DISEASES, IT IS STATED

Are Being Put On Black List by State Department of Health

Wood ticks have been recognized as go-betweens in the spread of rabbit fever—tularemia—typhus fever and more recently, of Rocky Mountain spotted fever, to human beings. They are accordingly being black-listed by health departments, including the Maryland State Department of Health.

For the protection of campers and picnickers against these insect enemies, the State Department of Health advises persons who are in charge of summer camps and recreation grounds to clear out the undergrowth along paths and especially along the approaches to bathing shores. Explaining the reason for this recommendation, Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, said: "Everybody who has ever had any experience with them, will agree that wood ticks are pests, and that even when they are not sources of danger they cause great discomfort. But since it has been found that certain kinds of ticks may also be carriers of the germs that cause certain disenses, they have been given a definite status as insect enemies and that there is a very real reason for waging war against them.

"The diseases for which ticks have been found to be carriers include Rocky Mountain spotted fever, which usually occurs during the summer, and tularemia or rabbit fever, which is more likely to be contracted after the hunting season opens in the fall. Rocky Mountain spotted fever has been prevalent in sections in the West for some time, but it was not recognized in this part of the country until recently. Last year 23 cases were reported to the Maryland State Department of Health. All of them occurred in the counties, and in nearly every instance investigation showed that the patients had been bitten by wood ticks. The same thing was shown in connection with the investigation of the 20 cases of rabbit fever that occurred in the State last year.

"The ticks that become 'carriers' suck out the infectious material from animals that are themselves infected. They transmit this disease producing material to the human beings upon whom they attach themselves. Not all ticks are infected, but it is wiser to regard all of them as possible sources of danger—as they are of discomfort—and to clear out their breeding places. They are especially likely to be found in low bushes and in the undergrowth along the approaches to bathing shores.

"In removing ticks that have become imbedded in the flesh, be careful not to crush the insects. It is possible for the disease producing material to be absorbed through a break in the skin, or a scratch, as well as through the bite of the insect."

Facts and Figures on Your Telephone

By EDWIN F. HILL

Edwin F. Hill

Stock of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company was never more widely held than now. The first quarterly dividend of $2.25 per share was paid recently to the more than 665,000 stockholders, according to officials of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone companies, operating in Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, and the District of Columbia.

This is the largest number of stockholders to receive dividend payments. About 25,000 stockholders were added to those previously holding this stock during the first quarter of the year. This is the third highest increase in the number of stockholders in the history of the company. As a result of this large gain, the average number of shares held per stockholder declined to twenty-eight.

All parts of the United States showed increases in the number of stockholders. The largest gains occurred in the northwestern, southwestern, and mountain states areas where the number of American Telephone and Telegraph Company stockholders is relatively less than in other sections.

For the sixth consecutive quarter, the number of shares registered in brokers' names declined and at the end of the quarter formed only three per cent of all shares outstanding. This is the lowest proportion since March, 1927.

Few Without Desire to Peer Into the Future

The good round sum of $125,000,000 annually is reported to be paid by our people to various prophets of the future who by reading horoscopes, gazing into glass globes and by other means agree to give information as to the future. It is customary to set down this investment as a tribute made by human folly to desire for foreknowledge. But it is reasonable to believe that a goodly part of this expenditure is made much like investment in other amusements.

Every normal person is interested in the future, so that the urge to learn something about it, if that were possible, is well nigh universal. But it is not reasonable to suppose that $125,000,000 annually is spent by people who really believe that they can learn something. For the curiosity about the future is accompanied by curiosity almost as urgent about anything mysterious—anything that is seemingly outside the zone of personal experience and capacities.

Fortune tellers have attracted and continue to attract a host of patrons who would strenuously deny belief that the future can be foretold, but yet are interested in the occasional evidences, deriving from unknown means and causes, that those who practice prophecy do "hit it right" many times.

There is innate in humanity distrust of absolute rationality. We are all conscious of the vast nescience that underlies our knowledge and present means of acquiring it. We are greatly curious about possible sources of knowledge yet undeveloped. And we pay a high price merely to gratify curiosity.—Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

Indians Outclassed in Use of Bow and Arrow

Archery 200 or more years ago was a useful accomplishment as well as a competitive sport. Prior to the invention of gunpowder, the bow and arrow had been, for almost 1,000 years, the principal weapon of defense in England. So important was it considered that every Englishman be able to wield a wicked bow that archery practice was long compulsory for all men between the ages of sixteen and sixty. The Mayflower immigrants were armed with blunderbusses, but, in order to conserve their supply of shot, they frequently hunted with the bow and arrow, in the use of which they were more skillful than were their savage neighbors. Indian prowess with the bow and arrow seems to have been much overrated by romanticists. They usually shot their quarry at close range after it had been stalked for them, and in friendly shooting competitions between redskins and Englishmen, the white men are said to have invariably won.

Lip Pronunciation

Forms of the letters in a recently discovered old Phoenician alphabet show evidences of having been chosen to represent the forms of the mouth used in speaking them. This theory is advanced by Sir Richard Paget, an authority on human speech, who finds that nearly every one of the twenty-nine symbols used is suggestive of the lip formation to produce the sound symbolized. He does not suggest that the scribe who selected the mouthlike characters did so intentionally, but believes instead that the forms were chosen unconsciously. The letter "P," for instance, is represented by a sign suggestive of the closed lips used at the start of pronouncing it.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Girls Have Remarkable Record

Two students of the school, both bearing the name of Miller, but no relation to one another, have had remarkable records ln their four years' studies in the local school. Their class standing has been the same in all the studies they have pursued, each obtaining an "A" when the examination periods came around, and as a result the school authorities were in a quandary what to do in the choice of a valedictorian and a salutatorian for the graduating class.

A plan, however, was devised, and Miss Martha Miller won the honor of being valedictorian of her class and Miss Mary Miller the honor of being salutatorian.

DISCUSS CHILD PROBLEMS AT MEETING IN BALTIMORE

Miss Katharine T. Kirwan Is Speaker at State Conference

Some of the problems of county children were discussed by Miss Katharine T. Kirwan, executive secretary of the Maryland Children's Aid Society, and until recently engaged in social service work in Garrett county, before the State conference on juvenile delinquency held in Baltimore, May 24th.

"While country life under best conditions offers important advantages to children," Miss Kirwan said, "many grow up in the counties unhappy, inefficient and even anti-social, due to mal-adjustments which might have been prevented in childhood days."

Miss Kirwan spoke on the subject, "Children's Problems in the Counties of the State of Maryland," and among other things said, "We are just beginning to recognize the justice and the value of looking upon each child wherever we find him as a distinct individual and as deserving of as much attention, care and protection that his needs and our State of Maryland can possible provide. The greatest difficulty which confronts us in the rural communities is the lack of available resources for growing boys and girls. The Juvenile Court committees have opened an important way to the needs of problem children. The services of the Maryland Children's Aid Society are becoming increasingly available through branch organizations of the society in some of the counties of the State and also ln other areas of the State upon request of local groups or individuals."

Judge Thomas J. S. Waxter of the Baltimore City Juvenile Court, outlined for his audience the development of those organizations caring for juvenile delinquencies and other problems of the childhood population, from the first Juvenile Court organized ln Chicago in 1899 down to the present day when only two states in the Union are without such tribunals. He traced the development of knowledge concerning correctlon of children from days when courts dealt only with the act of the child down to the present time when it is increasingly recognized that the courts are not dealing primarlly with the acts but with the individual. Judge Waxter declared that there were three types of children with which the Juvenile Court must deal: the delinquent, the destitute and the abused child. He stated that "the treatment given the destitute children, who must depend entirely on the State for lts life, ls a disgrace and ls manufacturing crlminals."

Other subjects presented and discussed by the conference were, "What is Juvenile delinquency?" "What is a Juvenile Court?" "Juvenile Delinquency as a State problem." "What shall the County Juvenlle Court Committee do?" What State or county agencies will help?" "How can a county get physical and mental examinations for children?" "When shall a county organize a Juvenile Court?"

The next conference on juvenile delinquency will be held ln January next.

THE MARYLAND BIBLE SOCIETY'S CORNER

"The Word of Our God Shall Stand Forever"

Ralph Waldo Emerson tells us that every institution is the lengthened shadow of a man. As we stated in a previous article it is impossible to isolate from the original group the man who first saw the vision of the Maryland Bible Socicty; however, there are oak-like men who stand out against the horizon of the past like those giants of the forest that for decades defy all storms while they lift their arms to the sky. Such a man was the late Rev. Thomas Atkins, D.D., who, in 1848, was rector of St. Peter's Protestant Episcopal church. Dr. Atkins was born in Virginia in 1807, studied law at Yale and Hampden Sidney Colleges and practiced law for eight years at Winchester, Va., before entering the ministry. He was ordained in 1836, and, after holdiag pastorates ln Norfolk and Lynchburg, came to Baltimore ln 1843. He became the first rector of Grace church when it was organized, and after declining twice a call to become Bishop of Indiana, accepted one in 1853 to become Bishop of North Carolina. He was largely instrumental in the reunion of the Northern and Southern Diocese of his church in 1865.

It must have been during Dr. Atkin's administration that the Bible House was established at 13 Fayette street, one door west of Charles street. At this time much of its work was being done by colporteurs, one of whom worked among the German immigrants.

About ten years earlier there were auxiliaries in all of the counties, but at this time only one remained alive, and that still thrives as the Young Men's Bible Society of Frederick, which has now attained the ripe age of 111 years. This society has always typified church unity in that prosperous and important county where—

"The clustering spires of Frederick stand
Green-walled by the hills of Maryland."

Its present efficient officers are: Mr. R. Ames Hendrickson, president; Mr. Jacob Rohrbaugh, chairman of the colportage committee, and Mr. William G. Zimmerman, treasurer.

The Maryland Bible Society gave particular attention at this period to supplying hotels, hospitals and the almshouse with Bibles, a beautiful ministry which is still carried on.

It is the hope of the writer that ways may be found to enlarge this beautiful ministry in our day, until there shall be in every county seat a duly accredited committee from the churches whose duty it will be to see that all prisoners in the jails receive portions of the Scriptures and that no one living in the county homes shall be without a personal Bible of large type and durable workmanship.

This is a modern Macedonian cry: Come on into Macedonia and help us.

Highways in County Are Now Marked With Stakes

The State Roads Commission has completed a system of marking the National Highway through the county, Route 37 and the Sand Flat-Kitzmiller road by a series of small stakes, planted one-tenth of a mile apart along the highways.

Each stake bears a number for the purpose of designating distances from established points of beginning and also to designate upon reports made any section of the highway needing repairs. The markers will also enable State police and other officials to locate points at which accidents occur.

Miss Moon was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Moon, of the Sunnyside community and was in company with her father and another member of the family on their way to attend services at Red House church when an automobile driven by John R. MANY MATTERS DISPOSED OF AT COUNCIL SESSION

Wattage of Lights Reduced and Dog Ordinance Passed

Two ordinances were changed, the wattage of street lights lowered and decision to tear down the old boardwalk leading from Second street to Railroad street alongside the Garrett National Bank building, were a few of the matters acted upon at the regular meeting of the Mayor and Council at the City Hall on Monday evening.

All 250-watt light bulbs on the streets of Oakland were ordered cut to 100-watt bulbs and as an experiment one of the 400-watt bulbs in the main section of town was ordered cut to 250 watts. This light is on the corner of Second and Alder streets and will remain as a reduced light for a month to determine whether all the lights in the business section should be cut to that wattage.

The dog ordinance for the town was changed so that now dogs will not be permitted to run at large on the Oakland streets. They must be under the care of some person or be in danger of being impounded and disposed of.

The water ordinance was changed slightly to admit the reading of meters monthly instead of quarterly and to permit the rendering of a monthly bill for water rent.

Because of the rowdyism displayed last year during the Fourth of July parade, Mayor Stemple stated that the town ordinance forbidding the discharge of firecrackers or other explosives in the town limits would be strictly enforced this year. The firecrackers may be sold but must not be set off.

Council decided that the elevated boardwalk between Second street and Railroad street was unsafe and should be torn down immediately.

An oak tree fronting the Goldsborough property on Oak street, which was deemed unsafe, following an examination by State Forester Besley, was cut down upon an order of Council.

It was ordered that all fire hydrants be painted in official colors—yellow and black.

The work of improving Pennington street from Wilson to Bartlett, is going forward and this is expected to be completed in a few days.

Bills amounting to $1,100 were ordered paid.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Member of Faculty, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(©, 1932, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for June 12

JUDAH THE TRUE BROTHER

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 44:18-45:15.
GOLDEN TEXT—Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity!
PRIMARY TOPIC—Keeping a Promise.
JUNIOR TOPIC —Benjamin's Big Brother.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Boys and Girls Can Do for Their Family.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC —True Brotherhood.

I. Joseph Severely Tests His Brethren (42:9-44:17).

Driven by sore need because of the famine, Joseph's brethren came to Egypt to buy food. As Joseph personally dispensed the food, he immediately recognized his brethren upon their arrival in Egypt, but they did not recognize him. In this test Joseph

1. Accused them of being spies (42:9-17). He declared that they had come to see the nakedness of the land. In spite of their protests of innocency, he cast them into prison and demanded that their younger brother be brought as a proof of the truthfulness of their word.

2. He kept Simeon as a hostage (42:18-38). Joseph declared that because he feared God he sent the rest home with provisions for their families, demanding that Benjamin be brought to him. To further impress them with his wisdom and power, Joseph ordered the money of every one to be restored in his sack. Upon the discovery of the money they exclaimed, "What hath God done to us?"

3. Benjamin's peril (44:2-13). By a clever device Joseph's cup was placed in Benjamin's sack and was used as an occasion for bringing them back on the charge of theft. Convicted now of their sins and realizing the seriousness of their situation, Judah pleaded for the release of Benjamin. Benjamin was now being held as the one supposedly guilty of theft.

II. Judah's Pleas (44:18-34).

1. For the turning away of Joseph's anger (vv. 18-32). In this plea he recited the history of the family, their coming to Egypt, and appealed to Joseph on the basis of the effect upon Jacob, their father, if Benjamin were not permitted to accompany them home. In most powerful and persuasive language he set forth the love of Jacob for Benjamin, the son of his old age, and the sole survivor of his beloved wife, Rachel. His plea was as much for his father as for Benjamin.

2. That he himself might be kept in slavery instead of Benjamin (vv. 33, 34). In this he showed his true worth, that is, as being worthy of the trust reposed in him by Jacob his father.

III. Joseph Reveals His Identity (45:1-15).

After such a plea as Judah had made it is not surprising that Joseph could no longer restrain himself.

1. He declared his identity (vv. 1-3). This act on the part of Joseph troubled them. It ought to have made them glad. Under ordinary circumstances this would have been a time of exceeding joy, but their sins were in the way. This not only affords a beautiful example of forgiving love, but most beautifully illustrates Christ's dealing with his brethren, the Jews. When the seven years of famine came his brethren who had left him and sold him were compelled to come to him for aid. Joseph dealt severely with his brethren to test them and to bring them to repentance.

2. He bade his brethren come near to him (vv. 4-8). When he revealed himself to them, the remembrance of their sins pierced them through. How just it would have been now for Joseph to take vengeance upon them. Joseph's first question was about his father, showing that his desire was to put their thoughts far away from their crime. He invited them to come near unto him and assured them that God had overruled their crime for salvation. They meant it for evil, but it was part of God's plan for good. He comforted them. This is exactly what Christ will do for his brethren, the Jews. He will become reconciled unto them and become their Saviour and Benefactor. Just as all Egypt was obliged to come to Joseph for sustenance, and become the servants of Pharaoh through him, so will all the world come to Christ for his blessing and be reconciled to God through him.

3. Joseph sent his brethren away with good news (vv. 9-15). As soon as Joseph's brethren knew him and were reconciled to him they were sent with glad tidings to their father. As soon as the Jews come to know Jesus Christ as the Messiah he will send them away to the ends of the earth with the good news of his saving grace.

Stick to It

Whatever you are from nature, keep to it; never desert your own line of talent. Be what nature intended you for, and you will succeed; be anything else, and you will be ten thousand times worse than nothing!—Sydney Smith.

Human Nature

However exquisitely human nature may have been described by writers, the true practical system can be learned only in the world.—Fielding.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By Scoop Himself

I have just finished reading a letter to the editor, which appeared two weeks ago in another paper, and which amused me immensely. It stated: "What more disgusting spectacle could be imagined than one of our local papers refusing to print articles on tax reductions, or giving an accurate and unbiased account of the activities of a local tax payers' league."

Something quite a lot more disgusting than that, oh fellow, (whose articles sound like someone else wrote them) is trying to befog the people with a lot of inaccurate and biased statements. It is probably disgusting to you because you can't get away with it.

It doesn't take people long to see through a wind jammer. And from present indications it looks like nothing will appear now in either papers.

And now to all readers of this column, let it be said that I am just as much interested in getting lower taxes as anybody. It was only the other day that Bill Butt had the nerve to send me a tax bill and he had my old Ford car assessed at $450. If he wasn't already bald headed—but as it is I'll have to think up some other punishment. Anyhow I'm thinking seriously of offering the Lizzie to the city council at their next meeting for exactly that amount, just to see how quickly they say that it isn't worth it.

Taxes are a serious thing to nil of us farmers, and they've been reduced n little, and must be reduced more. But be sure that those who profess to be the leaders in the tax fight, aren't doing it for their own personal gain in some other channel—such as politics—maybe. There's a step-ant in the ditch, somewhere. Look out for him.

There's a rumor around the Society for the Prevention of Work that Turk Shartzer was the power behind the passing of the dog ordinance at the City Council on Monday evening. No more dogs running loose.

Real News

From a Republican of 40 years ago: "We noticed Messrs. J. W. Thomas and John R. Cruzen, Cumberland, taking a whiff of Mountain air on our streets Thursday."

Momentary Madness

It's rather strange that you never hear of anybody who has done a good deed claiming to have been temporarily insane.

You've heard of the Stitch in Time, but a slap at the fly saves the struggle to prevent 2,000 of her descendants from breaking into the house the first cool day in the fall.

"Who is complaining of hard times?" asks the Underwood correspondent. "Sing a song of good will and cheer up those who are down and out, give them a helping hand and times will be better."

Right you are, sez I.

If Locals Told the Truth

Mr. Clem Clutz, farmer, was seen on our streets Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and will probably be seen this morning also. No wonder his crops never amount to anything and he is always hollering about his taxes.

Mr. and Mrs. O. Whatta Sponger and five children are visiting Mrs. Sponger's aunt, Mrs. Sufferlong, for an indefinite stay during the vacation months. Not if Mr. Sufferlong has anything to say about it, which he doesn't.

Mr. and Mrs. Pinnacle are here for a month's rest. Mrs. Pinnacle was formerly quoted as saying that she wouldn't marry the best man on earth, and from all appearances, she didn't.

Mr. O. So Tight spent a half hour in the drug store the other day talking about depression and hard times and then went back to his place of business and drew the same salary he had been drawing since 1928.

Mrs. Lotta Gasse was operated upon for appendicitis. Attending physicians state that the ether was not the least bit effective in controlling her tongue, and that it continued to make 200 revolutions per minute. It is feared she will recover to tell every body about her suffering.

Dumneran Iam finally graduates this year. He spent two years in each grade, and wouldn't be getting out now if his father wasn't a trustee. The principal is unofficially quoted as saying, "Heaven be praised." But if the truth were fully known, maybe it wasn't all the kid's fault.

Mrs. Hundred Bucks, who puts on a million airs, has finally got her daughter married to some unsuspecting goof. He thinks he is getting a bargain but he doesn't know he attended a remnant sale. Mrs. Bucks is secretly glad to get her daughter off her hands, and just as secretly Miss Buck is glad to be on her own hook, where she might be able to overcome some of the handicaps her mother forced on her on account of a warped society brain. Maybe she'll turn out all right, in spite of her former environment, but the odds are against it.

Mrs. Zilch entertained with five tables of bridge. It's common gossip that she hardly ever plays anything but poker, but she owed so many society people a bid that she was afraid to have anything else. It was stated afterward that all the so-called society people were disappointed when they really did play bridge.

Mrs. Aloysius Zilch-Scrapper is visiting her mother again, and has taken the three kids. Mrs. Scrapper says it's homesickness, but the neighbors have given other reasons. This is her fourth visit within six months. Mr. Scrapper is not to be pitied but rather to be congratulated on his good luck. It isn't often there is such freedom for the married men of the town.

Mrs. Livin Hope is expected to throw a big party soon. It's the unexpected that always happens though. Mrs. Hope has been expected to throw a party for a number of years, and friends have just about given up hope. If it doesn't happen soon this paper will also stop publishing the notice.

This is going to be all for this week. But don't give up hope. It is expected that one will be written next week.

THE MARYLAND BIBLE SOCIETY'S CORNER

"The Word of Our God Shall Stand Forever"

In 1851 a movement was inaugurated to raise a fund of $10,000 to erect a Bible depository. Francis T. King was made chairman of the committee. This campaign was carried on so vigorously that the new Bible House was opened in 1852 on Fayette street, east of Charles, where it remained the center of the Society's distribution until 1874.

One of the very active presidents of the Maryland Bible Society was William McKim, who was born in Baltimore in 1808. He was graduated from St. Mary's College, studied law, and later became a banker. Among many important positions held by him was the presidency of the Baltimore Marine Insurance company. These were the days of the famous Baltimore clipper ships, whose white sails dotted the seven seas and whose voyages have added scores of tales to the romance of American seamanship.

He served in the bank riots and for fifteen years thereafter was an enthusiastic National Guardsman, having a position on the staff of General John Spear Smith. In politics he was a Whig. At the founding of the Peabody Institute he was made one of its trustees. He was a Union man in 1861. For nineteen years he served the Maryland Bible Society, four years as president, eleven years in the ranks, and four years more as treasurer. Faithful and continuous service of this kind made the Society strong, laying broad and deep the foundation upon which the splendid superstructure of the present is erected.

Eighteen and fifty-seven must have produced one of the old-fashioned winters of which our grandparents used to relate such thrilling tales, the sort of winter that inspired Whittier's "Snowbound." On January 28, 1857, a great anniversary celebration was planned, and would have been held in the Associate Reformed Church. Rev. George W. Bethune came from Brooklyn to deliver the address, but did not do so for "the severity of the weather prevented the friends of the Bible Cause from attending." Another determined effort had been made the year before (1856) to explore the counties and reach everyone with the Scriptures. More county societies resulted from this exploration, one in Allegany county and one at St. Michaels, in Talbot county. Again the mountains of Maryland were brought low and her valleys exalted by the spread of the life-giving word.

During the years 1857-59, Galloway Cheston, a member of the Orthodox Society of Friends filled the President's chair. He proved himself a friend indeed to the Society. He was a prosperous flour merchant. He gave so liberally of his own means and inspired such liberality in others that the Society's annual receipts of the two years of his presidency averaged about $12,000.

Frend Cheston was one of the original trustees of the Peabody Institute and of the Johns Hopkins Hospital, having been one of the executors of Mr. Hopkins' will. Like his colleague, Mr. McKimm, he stood for the preservation of the Union when Confederate guns thundered against Fort Sumpter. Under him the Society employed six agents or colporteurs, and had eighteen active auxiliaries.

In 1858, midshipmen of the Naval Academy were supplied with Bibles. In that year the Female Bible Society of Annapolis dissolved relations with the American Bible Society and became an auxiliary of the Maryland Society.

At this time the American Bible Society produced a new standard Bible which did not conform to the generally received editions of the English Bible in 1816. The Maryland Society protested against this deviation from custom, whereupon the American Bible Society promised to correct the discrepancy. Then the Maryland Society rewarded the National Society with a gift of $1,000.

In 1859 the high tide of giving to this noble work was reached, under the noble leadership of Rev. John Baer, the father of Dr. William S. Baer, Baltimore's famous orthopedic surgeon, whose recent untimely death so greatly bereaved the city of his birth and professional achievements. Rev. Baer collected for the Society in one year $18,000—an amount never again equalled.

Straesser, who recently accepted a call to become pastor of the Bittinger Lutheran charge, arrived here from his home in Curreyville, Pa., last Friday morning and is temporarily residing at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Buckle. Rev. Straesser conducted services in the Bittinger church on Sunday morning and at Jennings in the evening. Both services were well attended and well received.

The Bittinger bat-breaking baseball team played a game with the Accident team on Sunday afternoon on the home grounds and the Bittinger boys walked away with the honors to the tune of seven to three.

Mr. and Mrs. Columbus Oester and children passed through this village last Saturday evening enroute to Grantsville.

Dr. N. R. Davis, of Grantsville, was called to Bittinger last Sunday to attend Mrs. Charles H. Wiley, who is ill of the measles.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Tressler, of near Accident, and Mr. F. J. Glotfelty, of Cherry Creek, were business callers in this village Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Brenneman are the happy parents of a baby boy, born to them on Sunday, May 29.

On account of the prevalence of measles in this neighborhood and as a result of other interfering circumstances, the social which was announced would be held last Saturday evening in Broadwater's Grove, near here, was postponed until next Saturday evening, June 11th. All come then and help the missionary cause.

MARRIAGES DURING PAST WEEK REACH THIRTY-ONE

Total For May Is Below Average —Nine Marked "Don't Publish"

Thirty-one marriage licenses were issued during the week ending Monday at noon from the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court, according to A. G. Ross, Clerk.

The total for May was 75, a number far below the average for that month. The June record is 154, made in 1930, and last year 138 were issued during that month. The increase in the number of licenses thus far this month promises to bring the total for the year up to the average.

Nine licenses issued were marked "don't publish," while one applicant was refused a permit.

SOMETHING ABOUT TAXES

The principal suggestion of the unthinking person on taxes is to "take it out of the rich," either the wealthy individual or corporation. This was all good and well back in 1929 when there were plenty of rich and plenty of prosperous corporations. What these amateur experts do not seem to realize is that conditions have changed for the millionaire and the giant corporation since 1929 as well as they have changed for the poorer man. Therefore all of this talk about raising more income from the "higher brackets" is mostly moonshine in this year 1932. Of course it is easy to fix the rate but to collect from fat earnings when there are no fat earnings is something else again.

For example: According to a compilation by Standard Statistics, 239 industrial companies reporting for the first quarter of 1932 show that they earned during the first three months of this year only $26,000,000 against $146,000,000 in the first quarter of last year, a decline of 82.1 per cent. The situation with the railroads is even worse. Twenty-nine of them reporting earned about seven and a half million dollars in the first quarter of 1931 and showed a deficit of over nine million dollars in the first quarter of 1932. And the number of companies reporting deficits this year against earnings last year is too large to make comfortable reading.

In view of all this, the suggestion of raising huge amounts of taxes and balancing the budget by taking it out on the "rich" corporations, sounds a great deal like plain bunk. The fact of the matter is that with earnings of the corporations showing a steady shrinkage, the time has come when everyone must bear part of the burden for balancing the budget, either in the form of direct nuisance taxes or indirectly through a sales tax. There is no other way around it.

So the best thing the average statesman can do, instead of wasting his breath about taxing billions out of corporations who haven't got it, is to insist that there be a trimming and cutting of governmental expenses, state and local, as well as national. A dollar saved is a dollar earned. Each of us has heard that expression a thousand times. And it applies as well to the federal government, and the State and local government as to the individual. Every hundred dollars which is cut off public expense means that a hundred dollars less in taxes will have to be raised.

BUTLER'S FAIRY TALE

All the world is at sea—excepting only Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler. Men and women everywhere must be astounded to note how the absentee president of Columbia University maintains his eliquilibrium while all the rest of humanity is immersed in depression. Yet how can any one believe otherwise, when Dr. Butler testifies to the world's bankruptcy and his own clear vision?

Dr. Butler's latest fulmination on the progress of the United States toward the edge of a political precipice deserves a high place among the modern Mother Goose tales. He envisions the Republican national convention selecting a committee to make peace with the Democrats and secure the adoption of a joint platform for the forthcoming campaign. Then these two conventions "having risen to such a height, should politely turn their backs upon the office-holding and office-seeking class and draft from the abundant capable and intelligent citizenship of this land men to voice the principles with clearness, with definiteness and with courage." Of course, the hero thus selected would rise up and save the country, thereby writing his name with an immortal scrawl across the pages of American history.

Ah, but that is not all. Dr. Butler would not leave the strong man thus selected to grope in the dark. With meticulous care he has outlined a program which the hypothetical American Mussolini could put into effect for the salvation, not only of this cuntry, but of the world. Although he deplores the abysmal ignorance of his countrymen, the international schoolmaster is not one to leave them in darkness.

Here is the Utopian formula: Repeal the eighteenth amendment; rip down the protective tariff, saddle the debts resulting from Europe's war upon American taxpayers; put a siphon in the Federal Treasury for relief of the unemployed; bring about "complete cooperation" with the League of Nations, and instantly join the League's so-called court of international justice. There are other provisions about reorganizing the government and making the best economic knowledge available to the farmer, but these are the high spots. In short, Dr. Butler proposes to strike America a blow on the head to revive Europe.

After a glance at the program one gets the impression that the plan for putting it into effect is unduly modest. To carry this formula to its ultimate conclusion the new "United Liberal" party" should join forces and throw America into a receivership for the benefit of every defunct nation under the sun.

FORTY YEARS AGO

The usual crop of rattlesnakes was being gathered. W. M. Coddington reported having killed a monster of the species on the Terra Alta road.

At Mountain Lake Park six cars loaded with miscellaneous freight, were unloaded within two days.

Telephone wires were strung and telephone communication with Mountain Lake Park was established.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

A number of old soldiers of the Federal Army and one Confederate soldier were taken to the cemetery in automobiles for Decoration Day following a parade in which the Knights of Pythias, the Red Men and the Mountain City Band participated. Dr. A. B. Riker, pastor of St. Paul's M. E. church of Oakland, was the orator at the ceremony. In the afternoon the new Knights of Pythias building was dedicated. Stuart F. Hamill was one of the speakers upon the occasion.

John Rice had a portion of his finger torn off by a horse which he was endeavoring to hitch to a buggy at the Maroney stables in East Oakland.

Virgil Stewart, an employe in The Republican office, had four fingers of his left hand caught in a press he was operating and received some painful bruises.

The store of Karl Kantowitz, Kitzmiller, was entered and robbed of considerable clothing. Bloodhounds from Fairmont, W. Va., were secured to follow the trail of the robbers.

A Youthful Poet

The editor's family has received in recent days a brochure of poems from the pen of Miss Alice Bremer, the youthful daughter of Rev. and Mrs. O. A. Bremer, formerly of Oakland, now residing in Seattle, Washington.

The pages are dedicated by the author to her parents and were written while she was yet in the elementary school, and from it is taken the following:

THE EAGLE

When the welcome sun is high
In the radiant eastern sky,
When the gladsome morn is nigh,
Comes the eagle.
Swooping, swerving, wings its way
O'er the crest above the bay,
Dark against the sunrise glory,
Eagle views the new-born day.

Over cliffs and ridges steep,
Down ravines and canyons deep,
Still a fleeting pace doth keep
Through the mountains.
Nor can dawning's glorious hues
Halt his flight to tell the news
That the world in beauty lies,—
On, unmindful still he goes.

When at last the night draws near,
With the crimson sunset clear,
Eagle swoops without a fear
Trough the twilight
To a purple peak so far.
Soon beneath a lovely star
There his gypsy heart will rest
Till the morning dawns again.

Home Made Furniture Polish

Prepared polishes are expensive; often they contain too much varnish, which if used too frequently will form a sticky deposit on the furniture. Home preparations require a little more work, but they may be used in large quantities and sealed for use in several polishings.

Encaustic

A good cleaner to be used before polish, will remove fresh ink stains and smoky film: Five quarts boiling water, 4 oz. laundry soap, 2 oz. sal soda, 1 lb. wax.

Cue soap and wax fine, put into water and place over heat. Stir frequently until dissolved. Add sal soda and remove from heat. Stir constantly until cool. Put into container that can be sealed. Before using, heat and dilute with an equal proportion of turpentine.

One-to-One Polish

Easily used, gives high polish: One part of pariffin oil to one part of turpentie, 1 part of paraffin oil to one part of alcohol.

CRIME LAID TO ROTTEN POLITICS AND SORDID GRAFT

Judge Offutt In Address to Attorneys, Flays Administration of Criminal Laws

Useless and unpopular laws, public insensibility to violations, "rotten politics," sordid graft" and "sloppy idealism" were given as reasons for the lawlessness of America by Judge T. Scott Offutt, of the Court of Appeals, in his address Tuesday night to city and county prosecuting officials at the dinner of the State's Attorneys Associaion of Maryland.

Judge Offutt declared that "neither capable prosecuting officials nor good laws are sufficient unless they are supported by public sentiment." He said the reputation of the English as a law-abiding people is due chiefly to the sentiment of the people, not to its criminal and judicial system.

"I do not suppose that in all the rest of the world there is as much 'science', so-called, as many statistics, as many commissions, and as little common honesty in the administration of the criminal law as there is in America," he declared.

In spite of public utterances by officials in the past regarding the "swelling tide of crime," Judge Offutt said, "in America we have passed more and more cruel laws, we have gathered more statistics, we have appointed more commissions and we have, as is our custom, talked, talked, talked, but done nothing.

"Our 'gift of gab' and our habit of paying our obligations to civilization by worthless notes in the form of laws, some farcical, some brutal, some emotional, have grown stronger with the years, so that instaed of learning from experience and wisdom of doing more and talking less, we talk even more and do even less.

"It is that atmosphere of tearful sentiment, emotional hysteria, rotten politics, sordid graft and sloppy idealism that makes it so difficult for the prosecuting officers to function as efficiently as they are capable of doing or as they are willing and anxious to do."

Maryland Relatively Free

However, in Maryland, the jurist declared due to the homogenousness of the people and a "traditional atmosphere of conservation and common sense, coupled with a sense of obligation as citizens, we are relatively free from the evils and scandals found in some other places." Our prosecutors are what they are because "the people of this State have been and are behind them and have faith in them," Judge Offutt said.

Beyond the County

In Cleveland, a watchmaker, after working three years, has produced an electric motor so small that it will fit into a thimble but powerful enough to pull a pound weight across a table.

At Elkins, W. Va., twins, a boy and a girl, were born this week who will have different birthdays, one having been born just before midnight and the other a few minutes after.

At Delaware City, Del., a fisfiherman caught an 800-pound sturgeon, containing 95 pounds of row which netted the man one hundred dollars. That's even better than Deep Creek tench.

In Washington a survey shows that nearly half of the motor cars owned in that city are parked all night on the streets, a count showing that between 1 and 6 a. m. there were 57,959 cars so parked.

From Washington it is reported that Charles G. Dawes, former American Ambassador to the Court of St. James, has resigned as president of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

In Washington, the first clash between the bonus marchers and Congress occurred Monday when Speaker Garner threatened to clear the galleries of several hundred veterans who applauded when some action was taken on a bill pending by members of the House.

WHO Owns the Gas Company?
EVEN THOUGH YOU HOLD NO STOCK, YOU MAY BE PROFITING

MORE than 50,000 persons and corporations are financially interested in the gas company here—by owning stock or bonds of the parent corporation, and behind them are many, many thousands more without any investment who have an indirect interest in its success. Many of our customers are indirect partners in the Company through being depositors in commercial and savings banks and holders of life, casualty or fire insurance policies. Your college education or the care given you in a hospital, may have in part been paid by this company's dividend and interest payments.

The securities of the Columbia Gas and Electric Corporation, the parent company, are widely owned by many individuals, banks, insurance companies, colleges, hospitals and other institutions upon whose welfare you are dependent.

To realize how close a part the utility companies are of your daily life, beyond furnishing you with gas, electricity, water, telephone and other services, just consider these approximate figures:

Mutual savings banks have over $600,000,000 in utility investments.

National banks have over $800,000,000 of their funds so invested.

All banks of the country have about $1,900,000,000 of their funds in utility securities.

Many university, college, hospital and church endowments have large percentages of utility bonds and stocks. For instance, one of the greatest colleges in the United States, respected throughout the world, has invested over $25,000,000 in utility securities.

Back Yard Is Place To Begin If High Score Is Goal

"Back in your own bock yard" is the place to begin work if you expect to win a prize in the Yard and Garden contest, it was pointed out today by the contest committee.

This line in one of Al Jolson's songs not only points the way to those who are looking for the little blue bird, emblematic of happiness, but it also shows the place of beginning to those who would make their home grounds into an attractive and enjoyable outdoor living room.

The humblest place is at no disadvantage in this contest, for prizes are given for improvement as well as for attractiveness. Yards and gardens are entered in two classes—yards where the famlly does all the work of planting and beautification, are in Class I; yards where occasional manual labor is hired are in Class II.

Announcement of prizes to be given In this contest will be made at an early date.

Father Loved Punishment

By FANNIE HURST

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)
(WNU Service)

TO KATHLEEN, ever since she could remember, there had been something almost unbearably pathetic about her father. Not alone because he was so good; not alone because widowered at thirty, his middle years had been entirely dominated by the heritage of a brood of five young children; not alone because with hands horny from labor, nightly he would undress with the tenderness that would have befitted the wife who had left him in death, the five noisy, brawling, often squalling youngsters, who rode him with a high hand because of his apparently infallible good humor.

To Kathleen, his second, his pathos lay rather in the fact that he accepted it all without question or rebellion. There were five children to be reared on his meager earnings as gardener in one of the town's public parks; five mouths to be fed; five small minds to be trained; five pairs of feet to be shod and that was all there was to it. No grumblings. No complaints. No skimping in so far as it was possible for him to provide.

He was just the best old thing! Time and time again, Kathleen's conclusions regarding him summed themselves up in that rather defeated conclusion. He's just the best old thing.

Completely unaffected in the way that Kathleen was affected were the remaining four children of Pat. Emma, the eldest, had no particular attitude about her father. That is, in so far as she felt anything more than the warm filial affection due a parent from a dutiful daughter. The three boys, pretty rough, all of them, from the vagabonding childhood about the streets, took their "old man" somewhat for granted. "Pap's all right. Little bit of a dub, but Pap's all right. Gives me a pain in the neck sometimes, but Pap's all right."

Not one of the four would have known quite what Kathleen meant had she tried to explain the pathos that cut into her heart where her father was concerned. His patient way of plodding off to the park, grateful for coffee if Kathleen or Emma happened to be up to give it to him before he left; uncomplaining and silent if the kitchen stove were cold when he came down and starting off to work with a roll taken from the baker's bag of them at the kitchen door, as he made exit.

It was not often Kathleen let this happen, but the weeks she had been laid up with a broken ankle, time and time again Emma had lain oversleeping and father had gone off without breakfast.

He had a way with the boys, too, of letting them bully him. He was forever contributing out of his weekly wage to tide them over this and that dilemma. "Pap, if you don't let me have a fiver this week, I might as well throw up my job and it'll mean the devil to pay. I owe the till five and it's got to be paid."

That patient, tired, horny old hand sliding down into the worn pocket of his baggy trousers! That patient, walrus-shaped, sandy-colored old mustache, drooping with perplexity and disapproval. Not a particularly efficient father, as fathers go, weak with his boys, vacillating in what few demands he made and absurdly sentimental with his girls.

"My Katy's the queen of them all. My Emma is a lark of the morning."

This because, Emma, with a pretty tinty voice which had been trained from lessons squeezed, dear knows how, out of father's lean weekly envelope, had created about herself, in the narrow little household, somewhat of the aura of a prodigy.

Emma sang. Emma's voice was something to be treated like a jewel in its casket. That was why it was sometimes necessary for father to go off to work without breakfast. A body that contained a voice must not be overtired or overtired.

Father fell in with that. But Kathleen, who was on night shift as telephone operator and did not always return home in time to fix father his breakfast, would boil and then sob a little, inwardly, at the patience of father. The dear, tired, gallant patience of father.

For eighteen years of widowerhood, father stood for all this, sweetly, a little tiredly, but so uncomplainingly that sometimes it seemed to Kathleen he must be made of the stuff of saints. Then, one by one, the boys married and took themselves and their bickerings and their demands and their uncouthness and their inconsiderate bullyings out of the house; and next came Emma, who inside of twenty-four hours met, fell in love with, married and went off with the orchestra leader of a traveling musical show which had come to town.

By this time, resolutely, there began to take full shape in Kathleen's mind a half-formed dream which had lodged there ever since she had been old enough to celebrate about the stunted life of her father. He was fifty-nine by now, rheumatic, subject to spells of asthma and bent from the long years at gardening.

Father must have his day. Somehow, some way, now with the boys and Emma no longer hanging like so many sacs around his neck, he must be given the first respite he had known.

Safely hidden beneath Kathleen's mattress, were three one hundred-dollar bills and a fifty, the result of five years of saving toward this end. Given this start, and what with her capacity for earning at the telephone exchange where she was now chief operator, there was no reason in the world why father might not retire.

The scheme, amusingly presented, was to be his sixtieth birthday gift.

There was, to be sure, one serious rift within the lute. It meant a continuation of the indefinite postponement of Kathleen's own romance, one of long standing, with a young fellow exactly her own age, proficient in the lovely work of bookbinding. Not a highly paid success job, as those things go, but a quiet, beautiful vocation that in Kathleen's eyes was part of the very bone and fiber of the youth himself.

It was hard, the waiting. There had been six years of it already. But there had always been valid reason, and now, with the father approaching sixty, more valid the reason than ever.

With more of staid reconciliation to circumstance than their years would presuppose, the youngsters bowed once more to the diehtes of the situation and Kathleen began the dedication of her time, her funds, and herself to her father's twilight years.

It would all have gone through very well, the surprise she had planned for him on his birthday when the new scheme for his retirement from gardening, his leisure and his new life in a home freed of responsibility were to be sprung on him, except for one circumstance.

On the eve of his birthday, father married the widow Croop, a comely neighbor woman of forty-three, with seven growing children and, as she shyly confessed to Kathleen the incredible evening that the incredible pair came trooping home, "the hope of more."

Father, seeming thus to love his punishment, Kathleen and the young bookbinder are married now, and even as father and the widow Croop, are living happily ever after.

Civilization Has Laid Hand on Desert Trail

I remember chromos of the desert trail, with hollow-eyed skulls of longhorns beside the wagon tracks. And now I have seen that trail, graded and ditched, with signs marked "soft shoulders" and "speed limit: forty-five miles." There are skeletons beside the road now, too—the rusting, crumpled, wheelless skeletons of old Fords, upside down.

On that blue mountain, blue from here, but white sand and pale olive brush when you get to it, the miners used to make little holes and tunnels in hope of precious metal. Now there in a great white "A" on its crest, visible for miles around. A tribute to alma mater from the students of the University of Arizona.

Famous Ocean Races

One of the famous California clipper races was that of the Wild Pigeon, John Gilpin, Flying Fish and Trade Wind. They sailed against time, leaving New York on different dates. Flying Fish won, making the passage from New York to San Francisco in 92 days 4 hours, from port to anchor. The Gilpin made it in 93 days from port to pilot, and Wild Pigeon in 118 days. The Trade Wind, which left some time after the others, followed with 102 days, having taken fire and burned for 8 hours on the way. Another famous race was that between William H. Webb's Swordfish and Donald McKay's Flying Fish. The latter sailed from Boston November 5, 1851, and on the same day the Swordfish passed Sandy Hook. The Swordfish arrived in San Francisco on February 10, 1852, after a passage of 90 days from Boston.

Chemicals Combat Ice

Several states where there is considerable snow or ice on the highways have adopted the use of chemicals in conjunction with the sand or cinders used heretofore to prevent skidding. Calcium chloride mixed with the sand or ashes causes it to imbed itself in the ice and prevents it from blowing away or being swept aside by passing cars.

Day of Rest

Joe was putting up his usual argument against going to bed at the usual time, and the day being Sunday it took this somewhat new form.

"Oh, no, mamma, I don't need to go to bed yet, 'cause I slept late this morning, and I slept all through church."

Little Used Language

A book was recently printed in a language that is spoken by only 300 people. It is a version of the Gospels prepared by the British and Foreign Bible society for the use of the Worrora, a tiny tribe of Australian aborigines.

State's Name a Mixture of French and Indian

It is surprising how many people, particularly in the Middle West, pronounce "Wisconsin" as if it were spelled "Wesconsin," with an "e" instead of an "i" in the initial syllable, says Pathfinder Magazine. The name is correctly pronounced "Wis-kon-sin," and there is little in its history to account for or to justify the colloquial pronunciation. So far as known the first white man to set foot on any part of what is now the state of Wisconsin was Jean N'colet, a courcur de bois, who in 1634 was sent into that region by Champlain to make treaties with the Indians. He landed at Green Bay in 1633. In 1673 the region was traversed by Father Marquette and Joliet. At that time the river was known to the Indians by a name which sounded to the French like "wis-kon-sin" and the whites picked up the Indian name and applied it to the territory itself. In early literatures dealing with Wisconsin the name is variously spelled "Wisconsing," "Ousconsing," "Ouisconsin," and "Wiskonsan," etc., but in no case does the short "e" sound occur in the first syllable. However, in 1695 Le Seuer referred to the tribes along the Wisconsin river as the Ouesconsins, and this may be taken as circumstantial evidence that the name was even then sometimes pronounced "wes-kon-sin."

Strict Treasury Rules as to Damaged Money

There is no federal law forbidding the total destruction of coins by their owners. But there is a statute forbidding the mutilation or lightening of a coin in such a way that the original coin may later be circulated in its impaired condition. It is also illegal to deface a coin without removing any part of it.

Occasionally the ashes of burned money are identified by the Treasury department and redeemed at face value. But no relief is granted by the government to the owners of paper currency totally destroyed. Three-fifths or more of a mutilated United States paper currency bill, note or certificate is redeemable at face value by the Treasury department. When less than three-fifths, but clearly more than two-fifths of the original bill remains, it is redeemable at one-half the face value of the original bill. Such fragments, however, must be accompanied by satisfactory evidence, as affidavits, subscribed and sworn to before a notary public, setting forth the cause and manner of destruction.

Zoo Specimens Come High

Lions are the lords of the jungle, but their value on the open market is often much less than that of other animals. A good gorilla usually is worth about $1,000, while lions have sold for even less than $200. And a gorilla is a risky purchase because the climate of most American cities is hard on the big apes. In the zoo market, the rhinoceros brings the highest price—$500 or more. Snakes are sold by the foot, some of the more interesting varieties selling at $15 a foot. Giraffes run the rhinos a close race in price. A pair of angelfish are snapped up at $100. Among birds, the little blue lovebirds are worth their weight in gold.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Gorilla Walks on All Fours

Contrary to popular belief, the gorilla walks on all fours, points out a writer in Boys' Life Magazine. "There have not been many gorillas brought out of Africa," says he, "and most of them have lived only a few months in captivity. Gorillas have only recently been brought to the attention of the world. The first gorilla in England arrived in 1837, and the first exhibited by the London Zoological society was received in 1855. On the other hand, an Indian rhinoceros was shown in Europe in 1513, a giraffe was sent to the emperor of Germany in 1550, and the first elephant in England was presented by the king of France to Henry III in 1255."

Admitted

Martin was talking at the dinner table about the inconsistency of woman.

"These girls who protest that they are never going to marry!" he broke out. "Everybody knows they will belie their own words at the first opportunity."

He paused, and evidently hoped that Mrs. Martin would come to the rescue of her sex. But that discreet woman held her tongue.

"Why, Mary," he continued, "you remember how it was with yourself. I heard you say more than once that you wouldn't marry the best man alive."

"Well, I didn't," said Mrs. Martin.

Post Office in the Home

Letter writers often find themselves without stamps when ready to mail their letters. One mother has solved this problem, according to the Parents' Magazine, by delegating one of the children in the household to act as postmaster. He is given a dollar's worth of stamps and it is his business to see to it that stamps are always available. The various members of the family buy their stamps from him. This arrangement not only ensures a supply of stamps being in the home, but also provides the child with training in the handling of money and the keeping of accounts.

Father Loved Punishment

By FANNIE HURST

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)
(WNU Service)

TO KATHLEEN, ever since she could remember, there had been something almost unbearably pathetic about her father. Not alone because he was so good; not alone because widowered at thirty, his middle years had been entirely dominated by the heritage of a brood of five young children; not alone because with hands horny from labor, nightly he would undress with the tenderness that would have befitted the wife who had left him in death, the five noisy, brawling, often squalling youngsters, who rode him with a high hand because of his apparently infallible good humor.

To Kathleen, his second, his pathos lay rather in the fact that he accepted it all without question or rebellion. There were five children to be reared on his meager earnings as gardener in one of the town's public parks; five mouths to be fed; five small minds to be trained; five pairs of feet to be shod and that was all there was to it. No grumblings. No complaints. No stinting in so far as it was possible for him to provide.

He was just the best old thing! Time and time again, Kathleen's conclusions regarding him summed themselves up in that rather defeated conclusion. He's just the best old thing.

Completely unaffected in the way that Kathleen was affected were the remaining four children of Pat. Emma, the eldest, had no particular attitude about her father. That is, in so far as she felt anything more than the warm filial affection due a parent from a dutiful daughter. The three boys, pretty rough, all of them, from the vagabonding childhood about the streets, took their "old man" somewhat for granted. "Pap's all right. Little bit of a dub, but Pap's all right. Gives me a pain in the neck sometimes, but Pap's all right."

Not one of the four would have known quite what Kathleen meant had she tried to explain the pathos that cut into her heart where her father was concerned. His patient way of plodding off to the park, grateful for coffee if Kathleen or Emma happened to be up to give it to him before he left; uncomplaining and silent if the kitchen stove were cold when he came down and starting off to work with a roll taken from the baker's bag of them at the kitchen door, as he made exit.

It was not often Kathleen let this happen, but the weeks she had been laid up with a broken ankle, time and time again Emma had lain oversleeping and father had gone off without breakfast.

He had a way with the boys, too, of letting them bully him. He was forever contributing out of his weekly wage to tide them over this and that dilemma. "Pap, if you don't let me have a fiver this week, I might as well throw up my job and it'll mean the devil to pay. I owe the till five and it's got to be paid."

That patient, tired, horny old hand sliding down into the worn pocket of his baggy trousers! That patient, walrus-shaped, sandy-colored old mustache, drooping with perplexity and disapproval. Not a particularly efficient father, as fathers go, weak with his boys, vacillating in what few demands he made and absurdly sentimental with his girls.

"My Katy's the queen of them all. My Emma is a lark of the morning."

This because, Emma, with a pretty fluty voice which had been trained from lessons squeezed, dear knows how, out of father's lean weekly envelope, had created about herself, in the narrow little household, somewhat of the aura of a prodigy.

Emma sang. Emma's voice was something to be treated like a jewel in its casket. That was why it was sometimes necessary for father to go off to work without breakfast. A body that contained a voice must not be overtried or overtired.

THREAT OF SUMMER FIRES BECOMES REAL IN STATE

Forest Fire Season Officially Ended But Blazes Continue

Maryland's spring forest fire season officially terminates on May 15, when observation towers usually close for the summer and forest guards must seek other employment, but forest fire conditions in Western Maryland are still critical because of the absence of the usual abundant green growth which has been retarded by scanty rainfall.

Serious fire menace continues in the mountains, making operation of Allegany and Garrett county towers necessary. Large and threatening mountain fires confirm the danger of a real summer drought as forecast by John R. Weeks, Baltimore's weather specialist.

Instead of conditions adating about the middle of May in Maryland's mountains, scrious fires burned as late as May 24 and 25. The largest fire of the year burned 600 acres on Marsh Hill, Garrett county, blackening the slopes near Deep Creek Lake, Maryland's only mountain lake area. At the same time fires 100 acres in size raged on Snaggy Mountain and Dunkard Lick, severely taxing the Garrett county control forces.

"Summer fires are always difficult to control," stated State Forester Besley. "They invariably burn deeply, requiring expensive methods to retain fire lines and green growth results in heavy smoke which hinders effective fire attack. Summer temperatures frequently tax the strength of the fire fighters and result in heat prostrations very often."

VOLUME 55. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND, JUNE 16, 1932. NUMBER 18.

BOYS' BAND RENDERS 3RD BROADCAST FROM WMMN

Mayor Grover C. Stemple Tells Radio Audience the Advantages of Living in Oakland

PRESENT TEN SELECTIONS

Once again the radio audience listened to a program of the Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band of Oakland and heard the advantages of Oakland and Garrett county recounted by Mayor Grover C. Stemple in a radio address Sunday from 12 to 1 o'clock p. m.

The broadcast came from Station WMMN, Fairmont, W. Va., from the ballroom of the Fairmont Hotel, and was the third time the local musical organization had been on the air since the first of the year. The broadcast was arranged by special request of the owners of the Falrmont station.

A program of ten selections was presented by the members of the band under the direction of Russell H. Brown, and one selection was directed by R. R. Gilbert, of Buckhannon, W. Va., who organized the boys in 1927.

The first presentation by the band over the radio was during the latter part of February at Fairmont, and the following week a similar program was rendered through Station KDKA, Pittsburgh, Pa.

During the short intermission Mayor Stemple delivered an address on the desirability of living in Oakland. His speech follows:

Ladies and Gentlemen of the Radio Audience:

I feel very grateful indeed to Station WMMN of Fairmont that we again have the opportunity and pleasure of sending this music into your homes as rendered by this band of high class musicians, known as the Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band of Oakland.

I ask that those of you who are listening in at this hour, and enjoying this program, use your imaginary vision for a moment; picture yourselves here in the studio looking upon a band composed of fifty boys, dressed in beautiful blue coats with trimmings of gold, white duck trousers, creased to perfection, nicely polished shoes, and not a hair of their heads out of place, such is the scene which greets my eyes at this time. We, the people of Oakland, are proud of this organization, and it gives us great pleasure to share this form of entertainment with the Radio World. I regret very much that the famous Band Master and Composer of Marches, the late John Phillip Sousa, never had the opportunity of hearing this Band render a concert. At the close of my remarks I shall ask Mr. Brown, our director, to have the boys play one of Mr. Sousa's stirring marches which he has left as a memoria to himself.

I mentioned to you on a previous broadcast from this studio, that this is not a paid musical organization, although we call it the Million Dollar Band. Oakland is justly proud of this band, just as we are proud of and boast of all our musical, fraternil and patriotic organizations; our parochial, our grade and high schools, our ladies' auxiliaries and civic club; our American Legion drum and bugle corps our Junior drum and bugle corps, our Girl Scouts, our Boy Scouts, our 4-H clubs, our volunteer fire department,

FARM PRODUCTS GREATLY HELPED BY RECENT RAINS

Farmers Had Begun to Fear Repetition of 1930 Drought

Garrett county's farm products were given a new lease on life in the heavy rains of Sunday and Monday when 1.3 inches of rainfall was recorded at the government station at Weber's, south of Oakland.

It was the first rain of any consequence for a month and came at a time when virtually all crops were badly in need of water. Farm leaders said the downpours were of unestimable value to the crops in this area.

Although the strawberry crop had been damaged considerably by the dry weather, other crops promise fairly good returns. The hay crop has been shortened somewhat, it was stated, through lack of rain, but both the oats and potato crops have been helped greatly.

Corn had been at a virtual standstill during the period when no rain fell but the downpour of Sunday and Monday has provided a real impetus for the crop.

Farmers were beginning to fear a repetition of the drought of 1930 when the relief came.

Approximately fifty athletes from the schools of the county participated in the meet. They left Thursday morning by bus, returning on Saturday. While in Baltimore they were entertained by the Playground Athletic League, under whose auspices the State meet was held.

77 O. H. S. SENIORS TO BE GRADUATED THIS EVENING

Dr. Albert Norman Ward, President of Western Maryland College, To Deliver Address

ALUMNI DANCE ON FRIDAY

Seventy-seven seniors of Oakland High School will receive their diplomas this evening in the twenty-fifth annual graduating exercises to be held at the school auditorium.

Dr. Albert Norman Ward, president of Western Maryland College, Westminster, will deliver the address to the graduates. The senior class is the largest one ever to graduate from the local school, being an increase over last year of fifteen.

The diplomas will be presented by Stuart F. Hamill, a member of the Board of Education, and F. E. Rathbun, Superintendent of Schools, will present the awards. The seniors will sing their class song; Rev. David Trimble will deliver the invocation and Rev. Archibald Moore will pronounce the benediction.

Class Night on Tuesday

The class play, "Come Out of the Kitchen," was presented by the senior class on Tuesday evening under the direction of Miss Margaret Kochenderfer, the cast of characters including Norma Welling, Clara Bell Hamill, Vida Smith, Catherine Baker, Nelle Helbig, Lewis Jones, James Treacy, Wayne Hamilton, Lindsay Gonder, Carroll Casteel and Joseph Welch.

The sermon to the graduates was delivered at the high school auditorium last Sunday night by Rev. C. A. Shilke, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church.

Rev. Shilke spoke on "Life Investments." In part he said:

"What we need today is the revival of our obligations as citizens, which involves not merely political, but financial, social and religious obligations as well. Much of our present thinking is based on propaganda which is readily accepted as fact.

"When the gradute today asks himself, 'How shall I invest my life?' do as Paul the Apostle suggests and forget what is past and press toward a goal. The goal must be to get away from the pursuit of wealth and pleasure in order to give real service for others. The greatest thing in the world is the human soul, and life's greatest investments must be to develop that soul.

"If you would be leaders of tomorrow you must catch the ideals of man's needs and throw yourself into the gap. The key to a well invested life is to find in your own life the worthy and give it direction, follow what you find to full satisfaction, use what is at your command in an honorable way, give in service and have character.

"Give the best you have and the best will come back to you," Rev. Shilke concluded.

Alumni Dance Tomorrow

The annual alumni dance will climax the senior activities and will be held tomorrow evening in Naylor's Hall on Third street. Don Lohr and his orchestra will furnish the music and the admission will be $1.25 per couple. Seniors will be guests of the Alumni Association.

During the intermission the seniors of 1932 will be introduced to the alumni, followed by a short business session in which the president and secretary will be elected. Mr. H. A. Loraditch will be chairman of the business session.

Patrons and patronesses will be Mayor and Mrs. Grover C. Stemple, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Rathbun, Mr. and Mrs. Foster D. Bittle, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Loraditch.

Collecting Material For Sunday Sun Edition

Messrs. Stuart Gibson, feature writer, and Aubrey A. Bodine, photographer, members of the Baltimore Sun staff, spent Monday and Tuesday in Oakland gathering material and photographs for an illustrated story, which will appear in the Sunday Sun in the near future. While in Oakland they were shown points of interest by Mayor Grover C. Stemple, who had previously arranged with Mark S. Watson, editor of the Sunday Sun, for this publicity.

LIGHTNING STRIKES BARN DURING STORM YESTERDAY

J. W. Riley, Pleasant Valley Farmer, Sustains Heavy Loss

The large frame barn on the farm of Jasper W. Riley, in Pleasant Valley, a few miles south of Mountain Lake Park, was struck by lightning and in the fire that ensued all of the contents of the building, including a number of cattle, three horses, farm implements, grain and hay, were consumed about one o'clock yesterday afternoon during the electrical storm which swept over this area and which was accompanied by considerable hail.

The flames seemed to envelop the entire building at once, and it was impossible to save anything contained in it. One of Mr. Riley's horses succeeded in breaking loose in the stable and escaped to the barnyard.

The barn had been erected at a time when the farm was owned by H. B. Harvey and cost several thousand dollars.

The loss to Mr. Riley is exceptionally heavy and amounts to more than $5,000, it has been stated.

Lesson for June 19

JACOB THE AGED FATHER

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 46:1-7, 28-30; 47:7.

GOLDEN TEXT—Honor thy father and thy mother: that thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Joseph Honors His Father.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Joseph's Father Blesses the King.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How May We Honor Our Parents?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Our Obligations to Our Parents.

I. Jacob Journeys to Egypt (45:16-46:27).

1. Joseph sends for his father (45:16-24). At Pharaoh's request Joseph sent an urgent invitation to Jacob to come to Egypt, promising to give him the "good of the land."

2. Jacob consents to go (45:25-28). The news that Joseph was alive and "lord of all Egypt," backed up with the sight of the "wagons which Joseph had sent to carry him," induced Jacob to consent to go.

3. Jacob's vision at Beer-sheba (46:1-7).

a. He offered sacrifices unto God (v. 1). As he was now about to leave Canaan, Jacob sought God's guidance and blessing. His soul, no doubt, was moved with great emotion.

b. God's response to Jacob (vv. 2-4). He bade him go to Egypt without fear, assuring him of the divine presence and blessing and his ultimate return to Canaan.

c. Arrival in Egypt (vv. 5-7). Jacob was accompanied by his sons, their wives, their children and cattle. With the meeting of Joseph the family circle was now complete, seventy souls in all (v. 27).

II. Jacob Meets Joseph (46:28-34).

Though the journey was now over, they were faced with perplexing problems. God had promised to be with Jacob, and Pharaoh had promised to Joseph that they should "eat of the fat of the land," but the details were not known.

1. Judah sent before (v. 28). He was sent perhaps to direct them to the Land of Goshen.

2. Met by Joseph (vv. 29, 30). Joseph, being the lord of Egypt, properly traveled in his royal chariot. Though he was Jacob's son, it was proper that he should extend a royal welcome.

III. Joseph Presents His Father and Brethren unto Pharaoh (47:1-6).

1. Pharaoh's invitation (45:16-19). Jacob and his sons were in Egypt by the king's invitation. Joseph, though occupying an exalted position, was not ashamed of his father.

2. Joseph's tact (47:1, 2 cf. 46:30-34).

a. In introducing his father and brethren in a personal way, thus capitalizing his own influence in favor of his kin.

b. In having his father and brethren come to Goshen (45:10). Since possession is "nine points of the law" they were already in Goshen before asking Pharaoh for permission to occupy it (v. 4).

c. In coaching his brethren (46:34). He taught them beforehand what to say because he knew how awkward they would be before the great king.

d. In choosing five, not all (v. 2). In all probability he chose the five who would make the best appearance.

3. Their request to Pharaoh (vv. 3, 4). Joseph anticipated Pharaoh's questions and put the proper words into their mouths to be used in making their desires known.

4. Pharaoh's response (vv. 5, 6).

a. His gracious offer. They were to enjoy the best of the land.

b. Positions of trust offered to capable men among them. He knew how capable Joseph was and surmised that some of his brethren might be likewise gifted.

IV. Jacob Blessing Pharaoh (47:7-10).

Here is an appraisal of true dignity. Though Pharaoh was the great king and Jacob now a suppliant at his feet, receiving natural blessings, yet morally Jacob was above Pharaoh and therefore conferred blessings upon him.

V. Joseph Nourishes His Father and Brethren (47:11, 12).

1. He placed them in the best of the land according as Pharaoh had commanded (v. 11). They were thus ready to go forward in business as soon as the famine was ended.

2. He nourished them (v. 12). Since there was no bread in all the land to be obtained except as dispensed by Joseph, he distributed to them according to their needs. Our Joseph, Jesus Christ, supplies all our needs according to his riches in glory (Phil. 4:19).

To Kindle Love

Love may not, cannot, be attained in its fullness at once; but the person of Christ, if indeed we see him as he is presented to us in the Gospels, will kindle that direct affection out of which it comes.—B. F. Westcott.

Fresh Messages

He wakens us, if we will, every morning to fresh messages, and we may pour out our hearts before him and be assured of his heed.—W. Robertson Nicbol.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By Scoop Himself

To those who didn't know any more about why the flags were flying on June 14 around Oakland than I did, when I caught sight of them early in the morning, I can explain, having garnered my information from authoritative source that it was Flag Day.

On June 14, 1777, Congress resolved: "That the flag of the thirteen United States of America be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation."

But I can sing the Star Spangled Banner word for word.

This evening Di-di Jim, the office devil, will receive his diploma from Oakland High. While I never saw his report card, I'll wager that the only high marks he ever made were in the bathtub.

And yet the grades aren't everything, as many students have demonstrated in days gone by. A passing mark, a little "it" and what else have you and your success is assured.

A rumor of a wedding in local circles has turned out to be nothing but a rumor.

After Doc Clarke, the local health officer, had examined a number of pupils in the Oakland school and one of the boys had signs of a little eye trouble, he wrote the father the following note:

"Dear Sir:—I beg to inform you that your son William shows signs of astigmatism, which ought to be attended to at once."

He got the following reply:

"Dear Doc:—I don't know just what it is that Willie's been doing, but I gave him a good walloping for it at dinner time, and if he isn't any better hereafter, you can take a few swats at him yourself."

This thing of going out in the afternoons to help take pictures of bathing beauties and lake scenery isn't all it's cracked up to be ,especially when I promised the Boss Editor to get back at 2 o'clock and didn't really get my feet beneath the typewriter until 4:30, a matter of only two and a half hours late.

The things that might compensate me for having to work Tuesday and Wednesday nights were gathering together the bathing beauties; seeing Mayor Stemple in hip boots, fishing pole in hand, ready to haul in a 26-inch trout and discovering about the time the photographer was ready to pull the trigger that the boots were leaking; meeting Judge Jake Fisher and family and going through his camp palace; riding in Doc Bullard's boat and Bill Casteel's Packard for the first time. I thought I'd never get to ride in that car until I was either a war veteran or the speaker for the Labor Day picnic.

I have never seen so many gilgadgets on one car. I even found out that from Oakland to the big bridge over the lake there was a drop in altitude of 500 feet.

I wish those big flies would try to get out some other window. It isn't that I am chicken-hearted, but any more murders on the pane and I won't be able to see out.

Bruce Barton, noted writer, says that you can't advertise today and quit tomorrow; that you're not talking to a mass meeting—but that you are talking to a parade.

Sometime the conscience of those who always borrow their neighbor's Republican instead of subscribing for it, is going to hurt them, and then they will feel ashamed of themselves. The easiest way to a free and easy conscience is to subscribe now.

A fellow who claims to be leading a certain tax league in the county and then pays approximately $50 to print and mail out around 5000 circulars whose chief aim seemed not to be directed at the reducing of taxes but against The Republican, does not have the league at heart, but his own selfish game.

Anyone who reads The Republican with intelligence would know that tax reductions are as welcome to the publisher as this week's rain was to the upturned eyes of the potato.

It's the communistic attitude we don't like, and never will, and incidentally we don't like the "yes-man" who recommends that people withhold their taxes from county, State and National government.

His arguments are so warped that it is beneath the dignity of the editorial columns to comment upon them.

Evidently standing in the sun too long has had its effect.

Just another small potato, probably the result of the 1930 drought.

That "I like the Depression" article by a Texas newspaper man, that I printed on June 2 has caused my stock to go up 100 per cent.

A letter coming in this week praises my article. "It's the best you ever wrote! See if you can't pound out more like it."

I'll never tell him. I just won't be the cause of disillusioning anyone. But here I sit all broken-hearted. I was just beginning to believe I was good.

THE MARYLAND BIBLE SOCIETY'S CORNER

"The Word of Our God Shall Stand Forever"

We wish at this time to lay aside for a brief period the historical treatment of the Bible Distribution Movement and emphasize certain phases of this work which are carried on by the American Bible Society.

The American Bible Society is a missionary organization whose sole object is to encourage a wider circulation of the Holy Scriptures. It does a fourfold work: Translation, publication, distribution, service to the blind.

A brief word concerning this fourfold task may be of interest to our readers. In the field of translation, some portions of the Bible appears in a new language on an average of once every five weeks. This contemplates the employment of skilled translators who are not only thoroughly familiar with the idioms of the new vernacular in which the Scriptures must appear, but have in addition to this a knowledge of syntax a background of culture which enables them to bring the atmosphere of revelation into the new speech. In this responsibility the Society has a noteworthy share.

In the field of publication the Society publishes the Scriptures in many languages and bindings, especially the inexpensive editions, without purpose of profit.

During a recent five-year period the Society distributed an average of 10,822,489 volumes annually in almost 300 languages, a stupendous program of distribution, certainly unequalled by any other book.

In its service to the blind the Society prepares embossed Scriptures in Braille, which are furnished to and for the blind at a price very far below cost. Type for the Braille Bibles is very costly and the field fortunately rather limited which pushes production costs far above those of any other volumes of the Scriptures. Yet the comfort they bring to those who sit in darkness cannot be measured by the dollar mark.

To carry on this mighty task the Society must receive each year upwards of $325,000 from living donors. Voluntary gifts, whether large or small, are welcomed and may be sent to the Treasurer, Bible House, Astor Place, New York.

Philanthropic persons are often at a loss to know just what their gifts will accomplish. Your gift to the American Bible Society for its work of Bible distribution will open the Book across the earth, spreading your Christian influence around the world. For example, your sharing of $5.00 will do any one of the following seven things: 1, pay for nine English Bibles for Indian children in Government schools; 2, meet the cost of a copy of the four Gospels in Braille for the blind; 3, allow a grant of a score of New Testaments to a Chaplain for as many prisoners in a penitentiary; 4, pay for two large type Bibles and two large type Testaments and Psalms for people whose eye-sight is failing; 5, provide from 100 to 500 Gospels in Armenian, Chinese, French, German, Greek, Japanese, Roumanian, Russian, Polish, Portuguese, Spanish and twenty other languages for distribution in the United States; 6, pay the salary of a colporteur in Japan for three days, during which he will sell more than 300 Gospels to nearly as many different people; 7, send four complete Bibles to the Gilbert Islanders on the Equator In the mid-Pacific.

Few of us have dreamed that five American dollars can do so much work in building the Kingdom of God on earth. Will you, my readers, help to open the Book?

SOME FOOD FOR THOUGHT ON Saving Food

If you, like most of us, must watch your pennies these days, you will be interested in the amazing facts about food spoilage. The U. S. Government estimates that leftovers cost the average family $4.50 every month in the year. Most of this costly waste can be eliminated in homes where electric refrigeration guards the food. This saving alone would soon pay for a modern electric refrigerator and, in addition. afford priceless health protection for your family. GUARD BABY'S HEALTH IN SUMMER, DOCTOR ADVISES

State Department Gives Hot Weather Hints for Infant's Care

Speaking of ways by which babies may be protected against the digestive disturbances that are prevalent during the warm weather, Dr. J. H. M. Knox, Jr., Chief of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health, said:

"Bottle-fed babies are the ones who are most likely to suffer from digestive disturbances. Babies who are nursed by their mothers are less susceptible to serious digestive ailments. Clean, cow's milk, modified under the doctor's directions to suit the needs of the individual baby, is the best substitute for mother's milk. If a suitable qaulity of cow's milk can not be obtained, unsweetened evaporated milk can be used. If an equal quantity of water is added to the unsweetened evaporated milk, whole, cow's milk is reproduced.

"All cow's milk used for infant feedings should be boiled for two or three minutes—it is not necessary to boil it longer—before preparing the feedings. It should then be cooled as rapidly as possible. It should be placed in individual bottles and kept on ice or in a very cool place and warmed as needed.

"Many of the digestive ailments that occur among bottle fed babies can be traced to carelessness in handling milk in the home and to failure to keep the feeding bottles properly cleaned and sterilized. Twenty minutes is long enough for the baby to take all he is going to take at a single feeding. If the bottle is not emptied by that time, throw out the milk mixture remaining in it. Clean the bottle thoroughly and sterilize it by boiling before using it again.

"Flies are much worse enemies of the baby than most people realize. Flies carry disease-producing germs from all sorts of places and sources and deposit them on the baby's face and hands, on the baby's food and on articles that come in contact with the baby. Babies should be protected against flies by screening the kitchen and other rooms in the house and by using mosquito netting over the baby's carriage or crib when he sleeps out of doors.

"The best way to keep baby well is to have him under regular medical supervision at all times. The doctor should see the well baby at frequent intervals—at least once every month. This is especially important in the summer."

Only the NEW NuGRAPE Has Their Delicious Flavor

You'll admit there is a goodness in the flavor of grapes—and that's why the New NuGrape is different from all artificial flavors—different as gold and brass.

In a certain valley, made rich and productive by reason of the moisture, in season, from surrounding hills—a famous brand of grapes is raised. The vineyards are renowned for the rich, wine-like flavor of the great purple clusters of fruit. And it has been our obligation to YOU, to transport that natural delicacy of flavor—to your home—to places where soft drinks are sold.

The New NuGrape — made exclusively with Welch's Grape Juice — costs no more than any artificial grape substitute. It's now on sale everywhere for 5¢.

ON PARADE

This evening and tomorrow Oakland, Garrett County, and the entire Tablelands will be on parade before Pittsburgh, as more than fifty representative citizens are coming here on a two-day tour.

Since the Tablelands movement was started the people of Pittsburgh have been told of the many things farmers of this section have to offer, what wonderful hospitality, scenery, climate, etc., are here. Now they are coming to see if what we have told them is true. There will be a dinner meeting at the William-James Hotel this evening, and a community gathering at 8 o'clock at Mt. Lake Park.

The Republican extends a most hearty welcome to these visitors and hopes that they may find here all that they are seeking. We need visitors from the Pittsburgh area, and it is our hope that Pittsburgh will feel that she needs us.

WATCH THE TAXES

Up to this time we have had deflation in everything excepting in the cost of government in America and the resulting taxation. Of course, as everyone knows, taxes are now mounting because of the falling off of the federal revenues, and higher income tax rates and nuisance taxes will be necessary until there are added revenues resulting from a resumption of normal conditions.

It is obvious that there can be no real permanent improvement in America until taxes can be reduced, and that the only way they can be reduced is through a lessening in the expense of government. The one healthful sign everywhere is that the people are becoming outspoken in their opposition to new government ventures at this time. Governments everywhere state and local, as well as the national government, are being importuned to reduce their costs of administration, and if the people who are protesting will only translate their criticism into votes next fall, there will be some real reductions in the cost of government before many months.

In fact in many states and many communities, genuine efforts are now being made by officials to reduce the cost of government. It is not to be forgotten after all, that most of the tax burden shouldered by the ordinary man comes to him from his local government, and it is here that the real tax reform can commence. The Federal government is always under the watchful eye of political leaders and the newspapers of the country, and is the first to reduce taxes when the opportunity arises. But it is so easy to forget about the real burden of taxation—the local taxes—and to focus one's attention on the tax debates in Congress.

If there could be some assurance that lower taxes would be the order of the day during the next decade, this in itself would bring the assurance of better times. In the future the community which is efficiently managed and has therefore a low tax rate, is the one which is going to attract new industries.

MARYLAND GORGAS PRIZE WON BY FRANCIS HOOPES

The State prize for Maryland, in this year's health and sanitation contest conducted by the Gorgas Memorial Institute of Tropical and Preventive Medicine, of Washington, has been won by Francis Bain Hoopes, a student at the McDonough School in Baltimore county, according to an announcement by Dr. Cary T. Grayson, president of the Institute. Every State in the Union was represented in the awards.

The contest was nation-wide and was the fourth held under the auspices to the Institute. It was open to juniors and seniors in public, parochial and private schools throughout the country. Last year, twelve thousand students participated in it; this year there were fifteen thousand participants, representing every State and the District of Columbia. "Mosquitoes, their Danger as a Menace to Health and the Importance of their Control," was the subject of this year's essay.

The winners in each high school were selected by a faculty committee appointed by the principal. The winners of the State awards were chosen from the high school "firsts", the committee in each State consisting of State officials or others interested in health and sanitation.

Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, Dr. Dean Lewis, professor of Surgery at the Johns Hopkins Medical School, and Mr. David Winebrenner, Secretary of State for Maryland, constituted the committee for this State. The essays upon which they based their recommendations were submitted by winners from the Maryland high schools. Ther ewere thirteen in all—three from Allegany county, two each from Baltimore, Dorchester and Caroline counties, and one each from Baltimore City, Prince George's, Somerset and Wicomico counties.

Each of the high school winners received a Gorgas medal and was entered in the lists for the State award—a cash prize of $10.

State winners, in turn, are eligible for the National awards, the winners of which will be announced later. The winner of the first national award will receive a cash prize of $500 and a travel allowance of $200 to Washington to receive the award which will be presented by President Hoover, the honorary president of the Institute. The presentation will be made at the White House.

The second national prize is a cash award of $150, and the third is $50. The donor of the cash awards is Mr. Henry L. Doherty of New York City, who has long been interested in the problem of the mosquito as a health menace.

our public spirited Rotary club, our Protestant and Catholic churches, I say we are proud of all these groups and organizations that contribute so largely to the making of our wide-awake and prosperous town. Our places of business are a credit to a town of 20,000 population and speak well for the progress of the town and the enterprizing people who live therein. Our hotels cannot be surpassed for the good, wholesome meals they serve and for the excellent type of service they render. With a summer climate unexcelled Oakland attracts visitors from New York to San Francisco. Its pure, dry air, and an altitude of 2,700 feet above sea level, pure mountain spring water, scenery that cannot be duplicated, modern and up to date homes, unlimited natural gas supply, continuous electric service, are but a few of the many inducements Oakland has to offer. In fact Oakland has everything to offer you that a large city can, except high taxes.

On May 1, the City officials of Oakland, by careful budgeting, were able to give the people a sixty-eight cent tax rate, this being the second tax reduction in two years. Oakland is only two hours drive from Fairmont, Clarksburg, Uniontown, and only three and one half hours from Pittsburgh, Wheeling and Steubenville. During these summer months when you are thinking of nice places to go and cool places to go, drive over the beautiful mountains to Oakland and spend a week-end with us, breathe our pure mountain air, and you will feel that you have added ten years to your life. You will find the people of our town most hospitable and courteous, a people whom it is a pleasure to know, and whose friendship is lasting and pleasant to cultivate. A drive over our miles of streets improved with amiesite will convince you that Oakland is all we claim for it.

Oakland is located in the extreme western part of Maryland, on route No. 37, of the State Roads of Maryland. Improved roads enter Oakland from all points, east, west, north and south. We are proud to have Oakland as the County Seat of Garrett County. Garrett County is considered by many people to be the best County in the State; it is a farming center, is prosperous and progressive. With its six substantial banks, three of which are located in Oakland, all with their unlimited surplus, Garrett stands out as the foremost county of Maryland.

The delicious peas which are served on your tables are grown in Garrett County, near Oakland and Accident, and are packed by the Mount Airy Canning company, at Loch Lynn, just two miles east of Oakland. This cannery gives employement to a large number of men, women, boys and girls during the canning season.

Nestled among the beautiful hills of Garrett County, and resting in the valleys and over the meadows, eight miles north of Oakland on route 37, lies beautiful Deep Creek Lake. This lake is fed by mountain streams, covers 4,500 acres of land, has a shore line of seventy-two miles and presents a scene which only the eye can appreciate and the soul and mind feast upon. Cottages and cabins are numerous here and this lake is fast becoming a Summer Paradise.

We read these words in the Scriptures, "God did smite the rock and water gushed forth from the rock." No place is this act of God more clearly demonstrated than to see the bubbling water gushing forth from the mountains in Garrett county and winding its way along the mountain side into this beautiful lake.

Mountain Lake Park, one mile east of Oakland, is a lovely Park of summer cottages and has auditoriums with a seating capacity of six thousand, and is noted as a desirable place for large gatherings and conventions.

I could spend a great deal more time talking to you about Oakland and beautiful Garrett county, but my time is limited, so I extend a most cordial invitation to all my listeners everywhere, to visit this wonderful town and county, that God, nature and man has made possible. Our motto is "It pleases us most when we serve you best."

"Transitional Writing"

According to the Encylcopedia Britannica, six different peoples in various parts of the world developed a system of writing usually known as transitional, that is to say, including ideographs or pictures and phonetic symbols or letters. These include the Sumerians and Babylonians, the Egyptians, the Hittites, the Chinese, and the Mayas and Aztecs in America. Our present letters of the alphabet are derived from the Phoenicians, who probably improved on the ideas of the Egyptians and Babylonians.

Hawaiian Volcanoes

Doctor Jagger of the geological survey says that volcanic activity in the Hawaii national park, in either Kilauea or Mauna Loa, is due to occur within the near future. The Hawaiian volcanoes are known as the most continuously, variously and harmlessly active volcanoes on earth. Eruptions are welcomed by the Hawaiians, since visitors from many places are attracted to the spectacular outbursts. It is said that these are probably the only volcanoes that can be visited with reasonable safety.

DEAN OF WOMEN

Two Sides to Every Question

By FANNIE HURST

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)
(WNU Service)

MOST people in summing up the subject of the Studdiford sisters were inclined to agree that of the two, Marion had the better mind. Luella had simply used hers to better advantage.

As a matter of fact, compared with the erudition of her twin, Marion was sorely lacking. Life had turned out that way for her. In the beginning, the two sisters, hand in hand, neck to neck, so to speak, had begun what was to be their four years' course at the state university for which they had both qualified with honors.

Of the two, it is probably true that during the first year, Marion's college standing was a peg ahead of her sister's. Not that it was scarcely worth recording. Marion would have been the last to encourage that. For all practical purposes, the two sisters ranked about on a level. Super intelligent girls, carrying on the fine intellectual traditions of their father, whose geographical textbooks were in use throughout the country.

It was at the beginning of her sophomore year that Marion, suddenly, and like a bolt out of the blue, threw over her academic career without so much as an ounce of apparent compunction, and returned one evening to the modest flat she shared with her sister, married to a young automobile salesman she had met at a charity function.

For the first, the incongruity of this marriage seemed apparent to every one but the young pair most concerned. Pale, thoughtful, studious, and even precious Marion Studdiford, married to the ruddy young man Tom Ford, whose shoes were so glossy, whose hair was so glossy, whose linen shone with even a separate splendor and whose use of English in a man with whom she was not in love, would have caused the erstwhile Marion Studdiford's ears to shudder.

It was a matter, however, of a full three years, before the veils of illusion began to tear themselves from the eyes of Marion, and she began to awake gradually, terrifyingly, to the strange truth that in marriage, this vigorous, boyish, refreshing young man of her ideals, had become no more than the too corpulent, slightly vulgar, blatant young salesman whose horizon was bounded by rubber tires.

It was not the kind of realization that came over night. Slowly, like a reluctant tide, it crept upon her, washing misery into her soul, drenching her waking, and even her sleeping hours, in a jumble of regrets. Regrets for what might have been. Regrets for a freedom that was gone. Regrets for the birthright which she had forfeited so blindly, and into which Luella had meanwhile come in full prime.

Not that she would have exchanged with Luella. After all, to be dean of women in a large college, portentious as it might seem, was scarcely the destiny that even Luella, at thirty, must have planned for herself.

Marion wanted more than that. And yet—had it been in her power to choose, over and over again she would have selected for herself the destiny that was Luella's, rather than her own as the stagnating wife of her ruddy vulgarian.

At least to Luella's life there was a dignity of achievement and congeniality of environment.

From her own kind, almost overnight, as it were, Marion, after her marriage became outcast. The friends who had known her, university colleagues, the members of her social group, simply did not speak Tom's idiom.

Fool! Fool! Nature had trapped Marion. At twenty-three, the entire course of her life had shifted away from the fine true course of her sister's. At thirty, Luella, all on her own, mind you, and with a mind no better than Marion's, had achieved position.

Not, as she told herself again and again, that she would yearn for the rather frigid dignity that went with Luella's position as dean of women, but just the same, life could be no more barren for Luella, unmarried, than it was for Marion, married to Tom.

On the contrary, for the freedom that was Luella's it seemed to Marion that she would be willing to sacrifice actual years of her life. And the horrible part of it was Tom's innocence of all this dismay. He was like a small boy, content with his lot; content with his wife; content with his playtoys of cheap automobile and expensive radio. Life was good; Marion was good; automobile tires were lucrative. All was well in his world.

He was killed outright while demonstrating, to a customer, the performance of a set of his own tires.

To Marion, who had repeatedly, throughout the years of her life with him, contemplated the hour when she must destroy his house of cards, by revealing her state of mind, his death came as release, and yet, at the same time filled her with a sense of rectitude that took away stings of conscience.

Tom had died without knowing. Tom had died believing her to be as uncomplex and happy in their marriage as he had been.

Marion was grateful for that. It made everything subsequent come easier.

What actually happened, as her friends put it, was the return of the fish to its water. Two months after Tom's death, Marion matriculated in the university from which she had married as a sophomore and took her first degree two years later, cum laude.

They were to her the happiest years of her life. It was as if her mind, dehydrated by the long period of inactivity and intellectual sunlessness, had suddenly found capacity of expansion again. Sometimes it actually seemed to her that under the congeniality of the old environment that she could actually feel her mentality reviving, lifting itself, warming itself in stimulating contacts.

It was considered remarkable that at the conclusion of her college course she had gone beyond that point, and was halfway qualified for a second degree.

The return of the native, said Luella, smiling upon her with a large indulgence.

The indulgence of Luella meant more to Marion than she would admit, even to herself. It was not that she craved a position similar to that of Luella's, but—well—it had to be faced at last, more than anything she could think of, Marion wanted to prove to herself, and to the world, that her mind, if not better, was at least as good as her erudite sister's.

The eye of Marion was fixed resolutely upon a difficult goal, similar to sister's.

Marion wanted to be invited to hold the position of dean of women in one of the country's large universities.

The opportunity came sooner than she dreamed.

Within a month after her second degree had been conferred upon her, Marion was called to accept the position of dean of women in the place vacated by Miss Luella Studdiford, who had eloped suddenly with a chauffeur in a neighboring town.

High Praise Coming to Mothers of Invention

Whitney, Howe, Morse, McCormick, Bell, Edison—run down the list. There is not a woman inventor from the cotton gin to the talking movie, if we are to believe the school histories. That such a one-sided version could be the whole story we have always doubted, but now a display of women's inventions in New York supports our contention. Not only do feminine inventions go back to 1843, when Nancy Johnson devised the first ice cream freezer, and before, but, according to government records, no less than 15,000 patents have been issued to women. At the recent exhibition, Beulah Louise Henry, known as "Lady Edison" and credited with 42 inventions, showed her latest, a typewriting ribbon which makes five copies without use of carbon paper. Her other benefits to mankind include a collapsible umbrella and an electric fan shield. That not all inventions of women are of the detachable collar kind was pointed out by the exhibition chairman, who attributed the Coston pyrotechnic signal light to a member of her sex. Adopted by the United States coast guard more than a half-century ago, its variously colored flares are now used by mariners all over the world. It is a pleasure to correct the record. A belated hats-off to these mothers of invention.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

First American Astronomer

David Rittenhouse was an expert clockmaker in Philadelphia and became a maker of astronomical instruments and because of his work and observations, he was famed in the New world and the Old. In 1770 he built a brick octagonal observatory which was the first and for a long time the only observatory in this country.

Rittenhouse is probably most famous for his construction of several planetariums or orreries, which were so made that they could determine the time, duration and path of eclipses, extending over a period of 5,000 years before and after 1767. Even the great Zeiss planetarium does not attempt to do this.

Mammals That Lay Eggs

The echidna, pronounced e-kid-na, accented on the second syllable, is found in Australia, Tasmania and New Guinea, is sometimes called a porcupine anteater. It resembles the hedgehog, though it is somewhat larger. The hair of the skin is mingled with spines on the upper part of the body. Its egg is about three-fourths of an inch in diameter, with a leathery shell, and is placed, as soon as laid, in the mammary pouch of the mother.

The echidna and the duck-billed platypus of Australia are the only warm-blooded animals that lay eggs and also suckle their young.

Explaining Gulf Stream

The Gulf stream owes its origin to the northeast trade winds, which blow constantly toward the American shore from the direction of the Canary and Cape Verde islands. The wind sets in motion a broad, shallow film of water upon the surface of the ocean and this, when it encounters the sloping northeast coast of South America, trends northward, passes by the Lesser Antilles into the Caribbean sea. Being constantly driven on from the east and gaining in depth as its area becomes restricted, it is driven through the Yucatan channel to the gulf of Mexico.

Old Legend Concerning World-Famous Painting

Raphael's "Madonna of the Chair," says a noted Paris art lecturer, was the realization of a hermit's wish.

"There have been many stories told regarding the painting of Raphael's 'Madonna of the Chair,'" the artist said, "but the one that seems most fitting is as follows:

"An old hermit, widely known and loved for his charity and Christian service, lived in a hut in the valley. Near his humble home stood a giant oak tree, which he called his silent friend, because it gave him shade and sheltered him from the storm. Close by lived a vine dresser's daughter, known to everybody for her kindness to the old hermit, who called her his friend that talked.

"One day a terrible storm arose, which was followed by a disastrous flood. The hermit sought shelter in the branches of the tree and was rescued by the vine dresser's daughter, who took him to her home. The hermit was very happy and prayed that his two good friends might be glorified together. Long afterward the hermit, Bernardo, died, and the oak tree was cut down and made into wine casks. By this time the beautiful girl had married and was the mother of two fine sons.

"One day the young mother sat at the door of her cottage with her two sons at her side. Raphael passed by and noticing the beautiful picture made by the mother and her sons quickly took his crayon and sketched it on the head of a wine cask. From this sketch the artist is said to have painted the popular picture of the 'Madonna of the Chair,' and the wish of the old hermit was realized."

First White Woman in West Arrived in 1806

The first white woman in the West of whom there is any record, came out from the Orkney islands in 1806 in a Hudson's Bay company's ship, disguised as a young man. She came out to join her sweetheart. In the journal of Alexander Henry, it is recorded without mention of her name, that on December 29, 1807, she gave birth to a child at his trading post at the mouth of the Pembina river. Of the life of the child born that day, the first child born in the West of white parents, nothing is known but that his mother took him with her when she returned to Scotland the summer after his birth. Marie Laglmodiere, who became the grandmother of Louis Riel, was the second white woman to come to the West of whom there is any record. She arrived in 1807. It was 1812 before there were any other white women in the West. In that year, the second party of Selkirk settlers arrived at York Factory. They included 18 women.—Montreal Herald.

Invocation on Proscription

The science of medicine had its origin in the very depths of ignorance and superstition, and even today it has not entirely shaken off all the hereditary beliefs and symbols which have adhered to it down through the ages. For example, the capital R with the line across its foot, to be found on every prescription, is thought by most physicians to be an abbreviation of the Latin word "Recipe," but Dr. Howard W. Haggard, associate professor of applied physiology at Yale university, has traced it back to an invocation to the god Jupiter, a prayer for his aid to make the treatment effective. In many old medical manuscripts all of the R's occurring in the text are crossed.

Find Ancient Grave

Students of the seminary of the University of Marburg have excavated in Hunfield, in the Rhon, a grave dating from the Fifth century B. C. It contained the remains of 25 men, women and children. On one woman's skeleton were found four dozen amber beads, a ring, bronze ornaments and a bronze bracelet.

The grave held also the skeleton of a woman who had been buried 1,000 years before the others. Two earrings, a necklace, large bracelets, a broad metal girdle and an anklet were found on it, all excellently preserved. The finds have been placed in the provincial museum in Kassel.—German Travel Bureau.

Too Risky

On his appointment the new manager of a certain bank was given much publicity, and photographs of him were reproduced in newspapers. All were not printed attractively.

A depositor wandered in, walked up to the manager, produced one of his photographic reproductions, and asked, "Is this your picture?"

The manager assured him that it was.

"And are you the manager of this bank?"

The other admitted that he was.

"Well, give me my money!" ordered the depositor.

Decided

Harold, aged four was a lonely only child, and begged his father to buy him a dog. But father put him off, and asked if a little brother or sister wouldn't be a nicer playmate.

Harold agreed to wait. A few days later his father took him upstairs to see the new brother who had just arrived. Long and earnestly the child gazed at the red, wrinkled, flannel-wrapped mite. Then he lifted sorrowful eyes to his father and said, "Daddy, buy me the dog."

MT. LAKE PARK

Flag Day, appointed as the anniversary of the birth of Old Glory, was marked by the scarcity of flags displayed both here and in Oakland.

The "No Trespass" sign, noted a few weeks ago as having been displayed on the postoffice building, is explained by the fact that one of the ministers of the Park had used the blank side for the writing a church notice and had tacked it up on the regular bulletin board. Some mischievous boy just reversed the sign and tacked it in another place. Another mystery solved.

HOOVER AND CURTIS ARE AGAIN CHOSEN NOMINEES

Both Are Named on First Ballot At National Convention Held In Chicago Last Week

DEMONSTRATION IS HELD

Again, as in 1928, it is Hoover and Curtis for the Republicans.

A lone ballot sufficed in each case, the President winning renomination by 1126½ of the 1154 votes and his 1928 running mate gathered 634 1-4 votes in quick order at the Republican National Convention at Chicago.

What there had been of dissention over the ticklish prohibition plank was drowned in the closing hours last Thursday night beneath waves of enthusiasm.

Especially did the President triumph, the merest scattering votes in opposition being divided with 13 for Senator Blaine, of Wisconsin; 4½ for Calvin Coolidge, 4 for Dr. Joseph I. France, of Maryland, and solitary counters for Charles G. Dawes and James W. Wadsworth, of New York.

Following the nomination of President Hoover, submitted by his friend, Joseph L. Scott, of Los Angeles, a noisome half-hour demonstration was held.

When President Hoover was informed at the White House of what had taken place in Chicago he replied, expressing gratitude and pledging, "I shall labor as I have labored to meet the effects of the world-wide storm which has devastated us with trial and sufferings unequalled in but few periods of our history."

Mr. C. N. McIntire, a delegate from the Sixth Congressional District of Maryland, returned to his home in Oakland on Friday evening of last week. Mr. McIntyre stated that while there were many tense moments during the days of the convention the differences between the contending delegates were all ironed out and a bold front will be presented to the opposition at the fall election.

MAY BRING GIANT AIRSHIP OVER OAKLAND ON JULY 4

Letter to Mayor from Acting Secretary of Navy is Favorable

That there was a strong possibility of the Akron, giant airship of the U. S. Navy, passing over Oakland either on July 2, 3 or 4, was announced by Grover C. Stemple, mayor, following a communication from Admiral W. V. Pratt, acting Secretary of the Navy.

Several days ago Mayor Stemple, hearing that the Akron was to be at the Fort Necessity dedication near Uniontown, Pa., along Route 40, on July 4, wrote to the Secretary of the Navy asking that it change its course approximately twenty miles so that it would float over Oakland. Mr. Stemple received the following reply:

Receipt of your letter of June 11, requesting that the Akron be flown over the city of Oakland, Maryland, on July 4, is acknowledged.

The department has not definitely scheduled the Akron to fly over Fort Necessity on July 4. However, if this airship does fly to Fort Necessity on July 2nd or 3rd, the commanding officer will be requested to include Oakland, Maryland, in its itinerary.

(Signed) W. V. PRATT,

Acting Secretary of the Navy.

ALLEGED ROBBER KILLED TRYING TO ENTER STORE

Only Mark of Identification Is Name "Harley Dawson", Tattooed On His Right Arm

JOHN SERENO NOT HELD

A man of about 27 years of age, whose only identification was the name "Harley Dawson," tattooed on his right arm, was shot and killed about 2 o'clock last Saturday morning by John Sereno, 76, of Hutton, this county, when he is alleged to have attempted to break into Sereno's store.

A pistol bullet pierced the man's juglar vein.

Investigation by Walter W. Dawson, State's Attorney; Sheriff Walter H. Haenftling and Magistrate W. A. Gonder, disclosed that the man had been living for the past several months at the home of Bill Johnson, of Oakland, but that nobody knew his address.

Numerous people identified him and gave directions as to how to find his family, but each clue produced nothing. He was said to be from Rowlesburg, W. Va.; Liverpool, Ohio; Wheeling, W. Va.; Cumberland, and other towns. He was prepared for burial at Bolden's Undertaking parlor, and when the body remained unclaimed, it was buried yesterday in the Oakland cemetery after authorities had taken finger prints.

Two young men who left town with the man last Friday night have not returned, and cannot be located.

Had Been Sleeping In Store

Mr. Sereno, who had been sleeping in his store since a former robbery, said he was awakened by the sound of shattering glass, caused by someone throwing a stone through the door. He declared he waited until the man attempted to enter his store before he fired. Mr. Sereno was not held by authorities.

Mr. Sereno declared that he did not go outside until about two hours after he had fired the shot, fearing that others who were with the would-be robber might be there. When he did go out he found the man in front of the wareroom, face downward, on the ground, having fallen off the store platform. Authorities were then summoned and the investigation started. The man wore a pair of canvas gloves and carried a wrench and a flashlight. He was dressed in a dark blue suit of good material, and practically new.

Ringer's store at Terra Alta, W. Va., was entered on Friday night sometime, and about $100 in merchandise and $20 in cash removed. The merchandise consisted mainly of suits of clothing, a number of pairs of children's shoes, clothing, cigarettes, etc. Entrance was gained through the rear door which they opened by means of prying with two railroad spikes.

Pittsburghers Thank Community for Reception During Tour

Through a letter to The Republican this morning, H. V. Carroll, secretary of the Allegheny Tableland Council of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, wishes to thank the people of this community for the splendid reception which was given the Allegheny Tableland tourists last Thursday and Friday.

Mr. Correll also states: "In leaving Pittsburgh we hoped to have a pleasant trip, but we little anticipated the enthusiastic welcome and wholehearted friendship which greeted us in each town along our route. We thoroughly enjoyed ourselves and hope to visit the Tableland communities again later in the season and we also hope that we may have the pleasure of welcoming a large delegation of Tableland people in Pittsburgh at some convenient time."
